Pastor Steven and Jan Sparley and family were honored at a farewell dinner on Sunday, August 26 at Oak Park Church. Pastor Sparley received and accepted a call to go to Oregon, in the Medford area. Good luck to the Sparley family in their new home.

Gloria Rustan, Jean Halvorson and daughter were weekend guests at the David Odegaard home in Fargo, N.D. Bailey and Katie Odegaard also returned home after spending a week at their Aunt Glenda Sirend's home by Erskine. While in Fargo they had a birthday celebration for Katie. Ronnie and Judy Rustan also attended. From there Ronnie and Judy drove on to Elbow Lake to see the new home purchased by their son and wife. From there they drove to St. Cloud and visited with their daughter Kim, and then on to Wisconsin Rapids to visit Keil.

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT #564
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA
August 13, 2001, 8:00 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular Meeting of the Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, August 13, 2001, in the Conference Room of the District Service Center. Chair Steve Young called the meeting to order at 8:00 p.m.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Jean Larson, Barb Kalinoski, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol, Mike Barry and Steve Young. Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by M. Spears to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Galen Sylvester, the chairman of the Kiwanis, addressed the Board regarding the Key Club. The Key Club is sponsored by the Kiwanis. They would like to see the advisor for the Key Club as a paid position. The Key Club had approximately 40 members last year and performed 340 hours of community service. There is a lot of organization involved in the position. The Kiwanis Club does raise money for the group. Last year they had a budget of $750. They would like to encourage the district to explore the advisor position. Steve Young asked that Irv Peterson, Superintendent, look into this further.

Steve Young recognized the TRF Education Foundation for awarding grants to the district in the amount of $3,114.74, the Challenger PTSP for donating $4,500.75 for audio enhancement units, Brady, Martz & Associates donated $500.00 to the BMX/Skate Park and the TRF United Way donated $2,500.00 to the Family Advocacy Program.

Carol Ihle and ADawn Melbye reviewed the Staff Development Manual. ADawn is the newly appointed chair of the staff development committee. She recently attended TALL (Teachers As Learners & Leaders) training. She said that she received a lot of valuable information. They explained the three components to staff development and how they are funded. The district has approximately $200,000 for staff development. 25% goes towards district staff development, 50% goes towards site staff development and 25% goes towards best practice grants. The Board thanked ADawn and Carol for the work that they have done on the staff development manual.

Jean Larson reported on the Staff Development Committee. She reviewed the schedule for the August 28 district-wide Staff Development Day and the August 20 New Staff Orientation.

Randy Twistol updated the Board on the recent NWSC meeting. They are receiving bids on painting the building. They discussed the opening on the LINKS Board. The board now contains 15 members and they discussed the option of reducing the Board. They feel the Board could be more productive with fewer members. The NWSC has purchased blocks of time from Computerland for technical support. This time may be purchased by member districts. There are only five districts participating in the program currently.

Carl Clark updated the Board on the negotiation meetings with the Education Association. They are still working on some language issues. The next meeting is Tuesday, August 14, 2001.

Barb Kalinoski reported on the MEC Center. They are looking at additional parking needed at the softball fields. The architect will be attending their next meeting to work with them. The next meeting will be at the end of the month.

Harry Nelson reviewed the bids contained on the agenda. He also reviewed the Health and Safety report, which was presented at the meeting.

Irv Peterson updated the Board on upcoming activities taking place for returning staff and new staff in the next week. He updated the Board on MSBA area meetings taking place in September. Irv will be attending the Annual Superintendents Conference and the MSBA Annual Convention in Minneapolis this week.

Becky Rogalla reviewed the background pertaining to Policy #472 - Experience Increment Allowance for Classified Staff.

SCHOOL IS IN!

BE ON GUARD!

STOP

Never pass a school bus that is loading or unloading passengers. By staying focused behind the wheel, together we can make this a safe and successful school year for all of our children.

RED LIGHTS AND STOP ARM

You must stop for a school bus when the red lights are flashing and the stop arm is extended: this means that children are getting on or off the bus. Stop at least 20 feet from the bus, and remain stopped until the lights are turned off and stop arm retracts!

KNOW AND OBEY SCHOOL BUS LAWS

Under Minnesota Law, these are Misdemeanors, punishable by a fine of up to $1,000, and 90 days in jail:
- Failure to stop at least 20 feet away from a stopped school bus.
- Passing, or attempting to pass, a school bus on the right side when amber lights are flashing.

Under Minnesota Law, these are Gross Misdemeanors, punishable by a fine of up to $3,000 and 1 year in jail:
- Passing, or attempting to pass, a school bus on the right side when the stop arm is extended and red lights are flashing.
- Passing, or attempting to pass, a school bus when a child is outside the bus, on the street or highway.

WARNING SIGNALS

A school bus driver activates the bus's amber warning signals at least 100 feet before stopping. When the amber lights flash, you should immediately prepare to stop your vehicle.

If the speed limit is higher than 35 m.p.h., the bus driver must give 300 feet of warning.

Independent School District 564 will join other districts across the state November 6 when it asks taxpayers to approve a levy referendum at the polls.

According to board Chair Steve Yoong, school board members discussed the topic at length during a special meeting on August 29. The one board member who was unable to attend the meeting and participate in the discussion abstained from voting as the remainder of the board unanimously approved the measure at its meeting Monday evening.

The passing of a levy referendum will provide the district with the opportunity to maximize funding from the state. A local contribution of approximately $81,000 will expand to nearly $437,000, including $130,000 in equity revenue that the district will not receive without a referendum levy. With this in mind, it is the general consensus of the board that the referendum amounts to good business sense on the part of the district.

The decision to appeal to the voters in November was also made in light of the fact that the district is currently in good financial condition.

However, when Roy Lunke of Brady, Martz and Associates presented the board with the district's current audit report Monday evening, he noted that even though the Thief River Falls district is in good shape and currently "bucking the trend as far as large schools go," its anticipated enrollment decline has the potential to "eat up the surplus." Lunke noted, too, that all but one of the approximate 30 schools his firm has audited will ask voters for a levy referendum this fall.

After approving the resolution calling for a special levy referendum election, the board of education discussed how it would go about presenting information to the public.

• The board of education recognized Family Bowl for its $500 donation to the school district and $300 donation to Challenger PTSP.

• In addition to the audit report by Roy Lunke, the school board heard a cabinet report by Elaine Grovum, special education director for the district. Grovum reported to the board about the activities of the special education department during the previous school year and its goals for this year.

• The board of education heard reports from the following committees: MEC Center, Barb Kalinoski; NWSC, Randy Twistol; and Curriculum Committee, Mike Spears.

• In his report to the school board, Harry Nelson, business manager, discussed the rental agreements and change order that the board took action on later in its meeting.

• Superintendent Irv Peterson updated the board about several upcoming meetings and workshops.

Peterson noted that he had received notification from the Department of Children and Family Learning that Brittany Larson had recently been named one of the state's Academic All-Stars and commended Brittany for her achievement.

He also reported to the board about his investigation with regard to the Key Club advisor position at Lincoln High School. At an earlier meeting, a Kiwanis representative addressed the board, suggesting that the club advisor position be a paid position. However, after researching the subject, Superintendent Peterson recommended that, because the club is not school sponsored, the district not set a precedence by paying its advisor. Rather Peterson said the district should continue to provide in-kind services in the form of providing a meeting place for the Kiwanis-sponsored organization.

• The board of education approved the following personnel items in its Consent Agenda: the resignation of Jody Bakke in food service effective August 30, 2001; the resignation of Tom Koop, bus driver, effective August 27, 2001; the resignation of Velvet Langevin as cleaner effective August 31, 2001; the elimination of the 5-hour

What the referendum will cost property owners

The property tax portion of the revenue authorized will require an estimated referendum tax rate of approximately 0.024285 percent of the referendum market value of the school district. The annual dollar increases for typical residential homesteads, agricultural homesteads, apartments, commercial-industrial properties, and other classes of property within the school district are as follows:

Market Value	Dollar Increase
$50,000	$12
$60,000	$15
$75,000	$18
$100,000	$24
$125,000	$30
$150,000	$36
$200,000	$49
$250,000	$61
$500,000	$121
$1,000,000	$243

Bike park opens for local youth

▶ Hunter Blowers studiously maneuvers over a series of moguls that line the recently constructed dirt bike course near Franklin Middle School. Initially, he had some difficulties, but that didn't stop him from trying until he got it right. He was the first youth to try out the completed course. A grand opening celebration is being planned for the new park

Mike Blowers and son, Hunter, age 6, try out the bike course at the new roller-park. Initially, Hunter had a little trouble getting over the top of one of the dirt moguls and required a little assistance from his father. The course, which is located near Franklin Middle School, was completed on Sept. 4, with the assistance of Harlan Kirkeide, Steve Olson and Arctic Cat's four-wheeler test team. A grand opening celebration will be held at a future date.

Hospital Association members decide

■ Bylaws approved and board members elected

by David Hill
Editor

Northwest Medical Center Association members approved amended bylaw changes made by their board of directors Monday night that may put an end to the controversy surrounding representation on the association board of directors. The association members also elected the three board members chosen by the board's nominating committee, rather than a candidate nominated from association members who also represent Dakota Clinic.

A total of 398 of the 864 members of the association voted Monday night. Dick Spyhalski, chief executive director of Northwest Medical Center and a member of the association board of directors, stated that he was pleased with the strong turnout and by the continued interest in the association.

Members of the association elected Jerry Wigness, 282 votes, Tom Kays, 274 votes, Bob Flynn, 251 votes. Dr. Ashok Patel, who was nominated from hospital association members who also represent physicians connected to Dakota Clinic, received 163 votes.

In a response to a question of whether his interest in running for election was to represent Dakota Clinic or physicians on the board, Dr. Patel said his interest in running for a position on the board of directors was strictly to represent physicians.

Dr. Patel explained that there are many physicians in the community, including himself, who have had a lot to do with providing health care in the community for many years. Dr. Patel has lived and worked in Thief River Falls for 14 years. Dr. Patel said physicians have had input in how that care is delivered, and should.

The amended bylaws were approved by the membership by a vote of 234 for and 158 against.

In regards to the approval of the amended bylaws, Spyhalski said it's now at the discretion of the board of directors to determine whether a nomination is perceived to represent a competitive interest and disqualify the nominee.

The amended bylaws approved by the membership Monday night were as follows:

"D. Exclusions. (New Second Paragraph) No member (or member with a spouse, parent or child) who is employed by, derives substantial financial benefit from, or functions in a decision-making capacity for an entity which substantially competes with the corporation, shall be nominated, elected or appointed by the board of directors.

"G. Board to determine qualifications. The board of directors shall be responsible for determining whether any member meets the

NCTC presents Blues in the Night

For the Blues is the music of strength and the music of survival.

Blues in the Night, a musical that explores the lives of three women and a saloon singer with the help of great blues and jazz songs of the 1920's and 1930's, will be presented at Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) in Thief River Falls Friday through Sunday, September 21 through 23, in the college auditorium. The performances on Friday and Saturday will be held at 7 p.m., and the performance on Sunday at 3 p.m.

All three women and the saloon singer (accompanied by a five-piece jazz band) are onstage for the entire time. As their thoughts, emotions, and memories converge, they often express these thoughts together in song. Sometimes in sadness - often with humor and joy. Through their songs (and also through the saloon singer's numbers, which become a running commentary on the lives of the women) we come to know these people, we share their lives, and we rejoice with them as they find the strength to go on.

The characters include The Lady from the Road, a warm, beautiful woman in her late 50's or 60's, who has the blues. The Woman of the World, a stylish, seductive woman, who is a survivor fallen on harder times. The Girl with a Date, an energetic woman, who is bright and has a range of emotions but a hidden bitterness. The Man in the Saloon, who is a charming, slightly dangerous man, who is an under appreciated singer. There is also a Landlady, who makes a special appearance to give a little break to the action.

The musical was conceived and originally directed by Sheldon Epps.

Cast members performing Blues in the Night include Linda Samuelson, director of music at NCTC, as The Lady from the Road; Vanessa Anderson, NCTC adjunct

Three sentenced on felony charges

Three individuals were convicted of felonies, according to the Pennington County Citation Disposition Bulletin issued Sept. 7. The felony charges included possession of controlled substance, fifth degree assault, failure to registered as a sex offender and theft.

Matthew Martin Karp, 30, Thief River Falls was convicted of fifth degree assault of a police officer, failure to register as a sex offender and possession of controlled substance in the fifth degree. The fifth degree assault conviction stems from an incident on January 25, 2001 during which he bit a police officer on the hand. He will serve 12 months in prison for this offense concurrently with other charges. His conviction on a charge of failure to register as a convicted sex offender stems from the fact that he was convicted of third degree criminal sexual conduct on July 10, 1990, and that he failed to register as a sex offender when he moved to Thief River Falls. He will serve 12 months in prison concurrently with other charges for this offense. The fifth degree controlled substance conviction resulted from drugs being discovered in his room at a Thief River Falls motel on January 25, 2001. Karp was fined $95. He will serve 15 months stayed for five years that will be served consecutively with other charges. There will be supervised probation for five years.

Michael James Glenn, 32, Thief River Falls was convicted of theft. Glenn requested that audio equipment be installed in his car. He then left the business without permission and without paying for the equipment or labor on July 12, 2001. He was fined $245, and sentenced 60 days stayed 12 months one day for five years. He will have supervised probation for five years.

Charles M. Ruppillus, 40, Minocqua, Wisc. was convicted of theft. He purchased a computer with a check from an account without money in it on July 16, 2001. He was fined $95 and sentenced 43 days in jail and has supervised probation for five years.

Citations listed on the Pennington County Citation Disposition Bulletin included speeding and no seat belt use, along with other traffic violations.

Strong milk prices mean opportunity for Minnesota dairy farmers

Expert says now is a good time for new marketing approaches and reinvestment

With higher-than-normal milk prices expected to continue into 2002, Minnesota Department of Agriculture Livestock Development Specialist Harold Stanislawski says now may be a good time for the state's dairy farmers to consider new marketing strategies and investing to upgrade their operations.

For several years, Minnesota farmers have suffered from milk prices that sagged below $10 per hundredweight. These prices helped drive hundreds of dairy farmers out of business. Fortunately, things have improved in recent months. The most recent Chicago Mercantile Exchange report listed the September Class III milk price at $15.71 per hundredweight, and the CME's outlook suggests prices will remain above $13 for the rest of the calendar year.

It's important for Minnesota farmers to take advantage of the good prices. Stanislawski suggests two ways they can do this.

First, they can use dairy put options to lock in a good price for several months into the future. These options allow a farmer to purchase the right to sell milk at a given price. The farmer pays a premium to lock in an acceptable price at a chosen date, and then waits. If on that date the futures price is below the locked-in price, the farmer exercises the option and is paid the locked-in price. If the price is above the locked-in price, the farmer disregards the option and sells the milk at the higher price.

Farmers benefit from put options because they guarantee a reasonable price for their milk. If prices drop sharply after the option is purchased, the farmer is insulated because he or she can still capture the preset option price. Futures prices are looking strong, but volatility is a constant in the dairy sector. That's why Stanislawski believes now is the perfect time for farmers to get familiar with how put options can help them ensure a profit.

"With prices looking strong for the next few months, producers should think about locking in a decent price to reduce their downside risk in the future," Stanislawski said.

Farmers looking for more information about dairy put options can contact the MDA's Agricultural Marketing Services Division at 651-297-4648 or 1-800-967-AGRI(2474). The division can provide farmers with a list of approved put option brokers.

The other way Stanislawski suggests Minnesota farmers can take advantage of higher milk prices is by re-investing in their farm. Most of the recent growth in America's dairy industry has taken place in western states such as Idaho, while the dairy sector in Minnesota has stagnated due in part to high production costs and low milk prices. With a strong milk price outlook and low interest rates, Stanislawski believes now could be a great time for Midwest farmers to make investments that can boost their herd production and their profit.

"With low prices the last few years, many Minnesota farmers decided to sell out instead of put more money into their operation," Stanislawski said. "It looks like these higher milk prices will be around for awhile, so right now there is an opportunity for farmers to make an investment that can make them more financially sound for years to come. That investment can take a number of forms, including upgrading milking facilities or herd genetics, and it can also mean expanding the herd."

However, Stanislawski reminds producers that expansion only makes sense if sound business planning indicates that the project is feasible. The current high cost of replacement heifers makes a sound business plan even more critical. To help in this area, the MDA offers farmers early planning grants that can contribute up to $5,000 per farm in matching funds. Application forms are available on the department's web site at http://www.mda.state.mn.us.

Playwright uses Thief River as title of his play

"Thief River," a play by Lee Blessing, enjoyed a season on an off-Broadway stage (Signature's Peter Norton Space) between May 8, and June 17, 2001.

In an interview with Signature, a newsletter of Signature Theatre Company in New York, Blessing explained that while he is from Minnesota, he's not from Thief River Falls. He chose the name because ". . . it seemed like a good place, a very rural place. . . ." He added that ". . . so I thought that would be the sort of place that this play would take place."

The play, which begins in 1947 and concludes in 2000, deals with a sensitive subject of two men who fall in love when they're 18, and their interaction when they meet in their early 40's and again late in their lives. The play is about their lives and how the society around them has changed in that same 50 years.

Blessing has written numerous plays that have been nominated for many awards, including Tony and Olivier Awards as well as the Pulitzer Prize. His plays have won the American Theater Critics Award and the George and Elisabeth Marton Award.

Signature Theatre Company is the only theatre in the United States dedicated to season-long explorations of a single living playwright's body of work. Blessing was Playwright-in-Residence during the 1992-1993 season.

Grants available to prevent drinking during pregnancy

Minnesota Department of Health has announced that $850,000 in grants will be awarded to community organizations and coalitions that submit winning proposals to prevent drinking during pregnancy, fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) and related effects of alcohol use during pregnancy.

FAS is the leading known cause of mental retardation. Children born to women who drink during pregnancy may experience a range of health, intellectual, emotional and social concerns. Health issues may include abnormalities of the face, eyes, heart, brain and kidneys. Intellectual deficits are linked to impaired motor skills, delayed development, and learning disabilities. Individuals with FAS and alcohol-related effects also appear to be at greater risk for depression and mental health issues.

Organizations eligible to apply for the competitive grants include Minnesota-based community boards of health, non-profit health and human service organizations, tribal governments and entities, health care organizations and other interested agencies. The grant awards could range from $100,000 to $350,000 per year over two years.

The grants are intended to support broad-based prevention of maternal alcohol use and prenatal alcohol exposure. This comprehensive approach addresses the knowledge, attitudes, skills and behaviors not only of the woman, but also her partner, her family and the community.

Organizations interested in applying for a grant should contact Sheila Marshall, Minnesota Department of Health, Center for Health Promotion, 85 East Seventh Place, Suite 300, P.O. Box 64882, St. Paul, MN 55164-0882. Phone: 651-281-9850; Fax: 651-215-8959; email: sheila.marshall@health.state.mn.us. Applications must be received no later than 4:30 p.m., Friday, November 2.

USDA announces steps to reduce sugar inventory

U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that it is taking additional steps to reduce its inventory of surplus sugar by implementing a payment-in-kind (PIK) diversion program for the current crop.

The USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) has accumulated 741,148 tons of sugar under the current sugar price support program. Because of the nature of the product, there are fewer opportunities for use of this surplus than for other commodities. The CCC is insuring monthly storage costs of $1.35 million on 446,594 tons of refined sugar and 294,554 tons of raw cane sugar.

The PIK program will offer eligible sugar cane and sugar beet growers the choice of diverting from production a portion of their 2001 crop in exchange for sugar held by the CCC. Farmers can bid for this sugar in CCC inventory by offering to divert acres from harvest. The total diversion program will be limited to a maximum payment-in-kind of 200,000 tons of CCC-held sugar, and individual farmers will be limited to a maximum $20,000 value in sugar. By reducing this year's harvest, the PIK program will help reduce government inventory costs and alleviate the current sugar oversupply situation.

Sign-up for the program will begin on September 10 and end on September 21. Individual producers should contact their local USDA Service Center or FSA County office between these dates to obtain additional information, report the specific acres that will be diverted, and to complete program forms. The amount of sugar in dollars per acre that the producer could generate will be computed for each producer, and each producer will specify in dollars the amount of sugar the producer will take to divert the acres. Bids will be ranked on the percentage that the second amount is of the first. The bids will be ranked so as to ensure that the 200,000 ton goal is not exceeded.

The Department plans to announce by September 28, which bids it will accept (by ranking percentage), subject to such additional eligibility criteria as also may apply to the program. Program agreements with full details will be available from Farm Service Agency County offices after September 10 for those areas where the program will be made available.

The PIK program is authorized under the cost reduction options provided for in the Food Security Act of 1985. The USDA's objective is to move this program toward a more market-oriented system that would reduce government involvement in the storage of sugar. Large publicly-held sugar stocks can have a distorting impact on the market and the sweetener industry as a whole.

Essay winners write about grandparents

Winners of this year's Grandparent Essay contest included (from right) Kristen Mutnansky and Nicholas Schuler of Goodridge and Adam Sisler and Shawna Rogalla of Thief River Falls. The annual contest is sponsored by the Minnesota Board of Aging and Northland Retired Educators Association. The students and their grandparents were guests at a recent noon luncheon meeting of the local retired educators organization. (Submitted Photo)

Grandparent Essay Contest winners and the grandparents they wrote about were guests at the August 27 luncheon meeting of the Northland Retired Educators Association.

Winners were Kristen Mutnansky and Nicholas Schuler of Goodridge and Shawna Rogalla and Adam Sisler of Thief River Falls.

The annual contest for sixth grade students is sponsored by the Minnesota Board of Aging and Northland Retired Educators Association.

Grandpa Marck
By Kristen Mutnansky

(Kristen is the daughter of Arletta and Jim Mutnansky. She was the student of Mrs. Laidley when she wrote the this essay about her maternal grandfather.)

My grandfather, Joe Merck, was born February 17, 1927, in Karlsruhe, North Dakota. His parents, Mary and Felix, were Russian-born Germans, who immigrated to America. Mary came with her family straight to North Dakota. Felix and his family went to Argentina before coming to North Dakota. Grandpa's name is pronounced Yosep Madik in German.

Grandpa is the seventh of ten children: Jane, Catherine, John, Mary, Elizabeth, Rejina, Grandpa Joe, Alexander James, William and Leo. He spoke German until he started school. That's when he learned English.

Grandpa was eighteen years old when he went to the Army for two years during World War II. At times he served as an interpreter while guarding German prisoners.

After that, he worked as a farmer. That farmer was a neighbor to Grandma's family, but he didn't meet her until a few more years had passed.

Grandpa and Grandma got married in Helena, Montana. He worked delivering milk and in a steel mill in Montana. At the steel mill, a hot piece of metal flew into Grandpa's eye, causing that eye to go blind. He drove himself to the hospital that day. My mother, Arletta, was born in Helena in 1952. When she was six months old, they moved to Grandville, North Dakota.

In North Dakota, Grandpa farmed. He had cattle and did some grain farming. He also worked on construction jobs, building churches, schools, and missile silos. Grandpa and Grandma had five more children: Gloria, Joel, Gerald, Thomas, and Beverly. While living in North Dakota, Grandpa and his family lived on three different farms before moving to Minnesota.

Grandpa and Grandma and their six children moved to Bagley, Minnesota in October of 1968. Grandpa farmed, worked at a lumber mill, and at a gas station.

Since retiring, Grandpa keeps busy by helping a neighbor with his farm work. He also has a few chores around the yard, tends the garden, and works in the woods. Homemade pies and soup are two of Grandpa's specialties that he has taken up since retiring. Another specialty is the best homemade jerky in the world!

Two of the things that make him special to me are when he magically finds candy in our ears and makes a joke to make us feel better.

That's my Grandpa Joe.

Grandma Tharaldson
By Nicholas Schuler

(Nicholas is the son of Sherri and Kurt Sigerud and Tim Schaler. When he wrote about his maternal grandmother, he was a student of Mrs. Laidley.)

I chose my grandma Tharaldson as my special grandparent, because she treats me very special. She is very kind. She treats me very well.

When I was a baby my mom told me that my grandma couldn't wait to babysit me. She would always hold me when I was a baby. As I got older my mom was working full-time. She would bring me to Grandma's house every morning. Grandma would wake me, feed me a good breakfast, and help me get ready for school.

When school was over, I rode the bus to her house, and she would give me a snack. Sometimes she would play games with me. Some of the games we used to play were checkers, cards and board games. Other times she would let me watch cartoons.

Every Christmas she gave me lots of presents. At my birthdays she hugs me and gives me a special gift. Another reason Grandma is so special is because if I am sick at school, she offers to come and get me. Sometimes she invites us to her house for dinner, and she makes a special dinner. Even though my grandma has a lot of grandchildren, she sometimes makes me feel like I'm her only one. I get to go fishing with her. She takes me to town and buys me clothes and mostly anything I want.

Halloween is fun too, because when I go trick or treating over at her house, she always tries to play a practical joke on me. She always gives me a lot of candy.

Thanksgiving is my favorite holiday over at my grandma's house. She always invites me and every one else. She makes me the most delicious meals and my favorite pumpkin pie. My cousins and I go and play pool in her basement. When we go, she always gives us food to bring home. That's why I chose my Grandma.

Grandma Bea
By Shawna Rogalla

(Shawna is the daughter of Becky Rogalla and Jim Rogalla. When she wrote about her maternal grandmother, she was a communications student of Mr. Zutz at Franklin Middle School.)

Do you know who is the best cook in the whole world? Well, if you do, you probably know my Grandma Bea. She is the most loving and caring person I know, besides my mom. She lives just out of town over by the movie theater.

You can tell she's friendly if you look into her deep, dark, and warm eyes. Her eyes are just like my mom's. When she smiles, her wrinkles seem to hug her unforgettable brown eyes and they frame her wonderful face. You can picture her loving face over and over again. My Grandma has glasses and is about 5'1" tall. She likes to wear black slacks or blue jeans and she is always hot so she wears t-shirts and a vest. She weighs about 150 pounds and is 69 years old.

My Grandma loves colors so her T-shirts are usually colorful. She is always laughing or smiling. Her shirt usually brings out or frames her wonderful smile. My Grandma's smile never goes away unless something awful has happened. My Grandma's heart is so big it could cover Texas. She is always trying to help or make anyone smile or laugh.

My Grandma and I have had some pretty fun days together. When I spend nights at her house she makes it so much fun it seems like we are at a friend's slumber party. Sometimes it's fun to go over to her house to talk or hang out. My Grandma knows how to have fun and that's why I like to sleep over. My Grandma is never at rest. She is on the go 24/7. She goes to work at 6:30 a.m. and comes home at 6:45 p.m. She works at the bakery so she's always cooking. When she gets home it is suppertime, so she has to cook again. When she gets five minutes off she often likes to go for walks, watch TV, or sit outside.

My Grandma Bea is very special to me because she is one of my very best friends. If you just met her you'd think she was the friendliest person you've ever met. I don't know how I ever got a wonderful Grandma like her. She can't fully be described because she grows ten times more wonderful each and every day. That is why I wrote about her.

Grandma Lucilla
By Adam Sisler

(Adam is the son of David and Beth Sisler. When he wrote about his maternal grandmother, he was a communications student of Mrs. Johnson at Franklin Middle School.)

My grandma is a great person. I think she is the best grandma in the world. I am very lucky to have her as my grandma. I am going to tell you about this wonderful person and why I think she is so wonderful.

My grandma's name is Lucille Passa. She is five feet six inches tall and is an average weight. She has curly brown hair that dangles over her blue eyes. She has long skinny fingers with big knuckles. My grandma wears glasses. She wears lipstick which looks great with her fabulous smile. She likes to wear sweaters or sweatshirts and pants.

My grandma is always telling jokes when we are doing things together. She loves kids and is very kind to them. She is usually happy because I have never seen her get mad. I think sometimes that my grandma is sad because her husband (my grandpa) died two years ago and she misses him a lot.

My grandma and I do many activities together. She is always thinking of fun things to entertain the two of us. I sometimes spend the night at my grandma's apartment on weekends and play card games and board games such as Sequence, Phase Ten, Kings in the Corner, and Yahtzee. We pick her up for church on Saturday nights and sometimes she has supper cooking for us to eat after church. She is a very good cook and makes many family get-together meals and picnics. Like the time my grandma had my family over in the middle of the winter and we had to wear shorts. Then we roasted hot dogs over the fireplace. One time my birthday present from my grandma was a balloon filled with money. Then when I turned eleven she opened a checking account for me. We go on many car trips together. My grandma calls me on the phone and tells me news every once in a while, or asks me about school and sports.

My grandma does lots of things in her spare time. She loves to read, and watch news and movies, but doesn't watch a lot of television. She works on her computer and e-mails family and friends. She also likes to visit family or have company over. She does a lot of baking and cooking. She makes the best homemade soup in the world.

What makes my grandma so special to me is that she is always interested to know what is going on with me. She is glad to have me visit or spend the night. I can always tell my problems to her and she will listen. She is very proud of me and what I do. My grandma and I have always been very close in miles and in talking to each other.

I love my grandma and she loves me. We are very great friends. It is really nice to live in the same town as I do. My grandma is the greatest.

Farm-related accidents end higher this season

Twenty-four farmers, workers and children died in farm-related accidents in Minnesota during the year ending June 30, 2001. That's up slightly from the 22 deaths that occurred the previous year, says Stacey Madsen, farm safety and health educator with the University of Minnesota Extension Service. Madsen says National Farm Safety and Health Week is a good time to reflect on the safety of Minnesota's farming community. The observance this year is Sept. 16-22.

"Minnesota averaged 25 farm-related deaths per year over the five-year period that ended June 30, 2000," says Madsen. "The number of deaths for agricultural workers remains high. Across the nation, agriculture recorded the second highest fatality rate of all occupational categories in 2000. The rate was 20.9 fatalities per 100,000 workers, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics."

The most common farm-related cause of death in Minnesota during the 2000- 2001 year was being pinned against, between or underneath a tractor or other piece of equipment. This caused 11 of the 24 deaths, according to Madsen. Four people were killed in a roadway collision involving a car and a sugarbeet truck. Two people died after falling. One person died from injuries sustained after becoming entangled in a power take-off and another suffocated when he was covered with grain.

Males were killed in 20 out of the 24 farm-related incidents, or 83 percent.

The average age of the people involved in these fatal accidents was 52.1 years old. There were four children killed. When the children are not included in the calculations, the average age of the farmers who died was 62 years old. Nine of the farmers who died were 70 or older. The four children who died ranged in age from less than one year to three years old. One child was female and the other three were male. Two were involved in falls that led to their deaths. One child was run over by a tractor. One drowned in a runoff gutter of a hog feedlot. All of the child fatalities occurred in the family's farmyard.

Information about the time of day an accident occurred was not available in all cases. Based on the data available, however, many of the deaths occurred in the early afternoon. Ten of the 16 incidents occurred between noon and midnight.

The University of Minnesota Extension Service farm safety and health website at www.bae.umn.edu/~fs/ contains a wide variety of information and resources. The website for National Farm Safety and Health Week is www.nsc.org/farmsafe.htm .

Northern Colors Shop Hop offered

Ten northwestern Minnesota quilt shops have joined together to sponsor the First Annual Northern Colors Shop Hop this fall.

It's a perfect time to tour the northern part of the state and enjoy the autumn colors. The tour will encompass approximately 590 miles, taking participants from the flatlands to the iron ranges to the wooded pine forests.

Participating shops include: ABC's of Quilting, Grand Rapids; Willow Wood Quilt Shop, Bemidji; Annette's Fabrics, Thief River Falls; Quilt S'more, Roseau; Crazy Ladies Fabrics, Fort Francis, Ontario, Canada; Quilter's Corner & Gift Shop, Ray; North Country Quilters, Tower; Pinberries, Virginia; Pins n' Needles, Hibbing; and Hingeley Road Quilting, Floodwood.

Together, the shops are n offering prizes, including the grand prize Elna Quilter's Dream sewing machine endorsed by nationally renowned quilter Eleanor Burns. To be eligible for the grand prize, tour participants must visit each shop and have their "Shop Hop" card punched. Also, a new 10-step "Shop Hop" pattern by Debbie Caffrey will be offered. Tour participants will receive one free step at each shop, amassing all of the directions after they have visited all of the shops. Each store will also have a daily drawing for a gift certificate, and there will be instant winners.

All of the participating stores are independently owned and carry a variety of different quilting, fabrics, patterns and supplies.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

We await the first frost. It might come at any time, and it might be both good and bad.

On one hand, an early frost kills off a good part of the garden and can damage some farm crops. On the other hand, an early frost kills off the mosquitoes and brings relief to those who suffer hay fever.

Let's hope humans never gain control over the weather. Can you imagine the fights if something as simple as the date of the first frost had to be determined by the legislature, or by the county commissioners?

The big money would push for a late frost. Cargill and ADM would lobby for late October to keep commodity prices low. Drug companies would want the hay fever season extended so they could sell more pills. Chemical companies would want to keep the mosquitoes buzzing as long as possible so they could sell more spray.

On the other side, the big gas companies would object to holding the frost off for too long. Prices might sink and jobs might be lost. Arctic Cat and Polaris would lobby hard for an early snow, as would the powerful ice-fisherman's lobby, formed to make sure the legislature keeps the ice on area lakes a foot thick five months per year.

Farmers would push for an early frost on everybody's corn but their own. Their demands would thus cancel each other out and be completely ignored, as usual.

Environmentalists would present the bizarre argument that nature should be allowed to take its course. Such radical whiners would be told in no uncertain terms that this is 2001, please get your beads and smelly little hippie children out of our office or we're calling the cops.

To solve the frost date dilemma, lawyers from the early-frost companies would meet behind closed doors in a money-filled room with lawyers from the late-frost companies.

The compromise, pleasing to all parties with pull, would push the frost date quite late. Mosquitoes would require spray into late October. Bins would overflow with cheap corn. Allergy sufferers would pop pills right into flu season.

To make up for the revenues lost to early-frosters such as gas companies by the postponement of cold weather, the late frost, when it finally arrived, would immediately be followed by a good stiff blizzard and a month of 40 below zero. Revenues would flow. Energy prices would soar.

The first frost agreement would disappear deep into the back pages of a popular tax rebate bill. The only debate would be: How much cash will it take to purchase the voters' silence on this issue and all others — $300 per person? A thousand?

No, let's be careful what we wish for. The ability to control the weather would just give humans more to fight over, more to decide in court, more decisions to be left in the hands of those with enough backing to twist things to their advantage.

Thank you to everyone for the prayers, cards and calls during the illness and death of our Mom, Grandma, and Great-Grandma, Hilma Horien.

A special thanks to the staff and workers at Oakland Park Nursing Home and NWMC. Also to all the ladies for serving dinner after the funeral service.

Thanks you too, to Pastor Bob Dahlen and Pastor Eugene Flaletsd for their words of comfort. May God bless each of you.

Thank You!

The family of Alan "Pete" Noreen would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for the kindness and concern they showed us during this time of intense sorrow.

Thank you, Erling, and the staff at Green Funeral Home for helping our family with arrangements. Thanks to the American Legion Ecklund Holmstrom Post 117 and the Veterans of Foreign Wars for providing the color guard and military honors. Also to the Thief River Falls Law Enforcement Center for their presence at Dad's funeral.

Thanks to Pastor Gary Johnson for a wonderful prayer and funeral service, and for the compassion he showed the family. Thanks to Joel and Laura Rude and Amanda and Michelle Noreen for providing music that sounded like it came from Heaven.

Thanks to the ladies of Zion Lutheran Church for a fine luncheon. And thanks to Dad's nephews and Craig for being pallbearers.

Thanks to all the family and friends who brought food and other items to the house. Also thanks for the beautiful flowers and plants that were sent as well as the many cards and memorials.

Everyone's prayers, words of comfort, acts of kindness and presence are deeply appreciated and will never be forgotten.

You'll always be in our prayers
Dee, Julie, Marlys, Jeff, Nancy and Jim Noreen and families.

Local church awarded Lutheran Brotherhood grant

In an effort to fulfill its mission to assist Lutheran congregations, the Lutheran Brotherhood Foundation recently awarded a Church Extension grant of $40,000 to the American Association of Lutheran Churches (AALC). New Hope Lutheran Church of Newfolden will receive $2,500 of those funds.

The grant money will be divided among 17 AALC congregations throughout the country.

The goal of the foundation's Church Extension grants is to reach out to the unchurched. The program provides resources for special evangelism projects in established churches and contributes funds to help develop mission congregations.

TRF Christian Women's clubs meet Sept. 18

"I'm Impressed" will be the theme of this month's Thief River Falls Christian Women's Club meetings on Tuesday, September 18, at the Best Western Inn.

While this church in the mountains of poverty-stricken Haiti has no walls, its door is "locked." Because termites are a problem there, a new church is being built of concrete and stone next door. On Saturday, September 15, a fund-raiser pancake breakfast will be held from 7 to 9:30 a.m. at New Hope Lutheran Church in Newfolden to help finance an upcoming mission trip led by its pastor, Rev. Ollie Urdahl. (Submitted Photo)

New Hope hosts fund-raiser Sept. 15

With the words of Matthew 19:26, "With God all things are possible," in mind, New Hope Lutheran Church of Newfolden is planning its mission project in Haiti.

A pancake breakfast will be served on Saturday, September 15, from 7 to 9:30 a.m. at the church. Proceeds, which will go to the New Hope Haiti Project, will be matched by Aid Association for Lutherans Branches 7090 and 9863. Anyone wishing to contribute to the project may send donations to the church at Box 185, Newfolden, MN 56738.

Pastor Ollie Urdahl, who has served New Hope for the past five and one-half years and has made several prior mission trips to Haiti, works with Rev. Marcel Temivol, who has a church and school in Croix Des Bouquets and shepherds other churches and pastors in the area. On previous mission trips, Pastor Ollie has been accompanied by various parishioners, community members and youth with each paying his or her own way and bringing a suitcase filled with supplies. While in Haiti on these mission trips, they have dug a well, built a latrine and conducted clinics.

Currently land is being purchased where the Haitians will be able to plant fruits and vegetables and dam a flowing well to raise Tilapia, a fast-growing fish native to the Holy Land.

Recently, a letter was received that states there is a shortage of money for food. Money sent by New Hope church assures the children attending Pastor Marcel's school will receive a noon meal.

New Hope Lutheran Church is a member of the American Association of Lutheran Churches.

NCTC is offering nursing classes by way of ITV

In response to area demand, Northland Community and Technical College has partnered with Northwest Technical College to offer Associate Degree Registered Nursing classes at clinical sites in Detroit Lakes and Wadena. Additional liberal arts classes will be offered via ITV.

Dorrs announce birth of daughter

Kelsey Marie Dorr

Kelly and Brian Dorr of Princeton are proud to announce the birth of a daughter, Kelsey Marie, at 9:21 a.m on August 27 at Fairview Northland Regional Hospital in Princeton.

Kelsey weighed 8 pounds, 5 ounces and was 21 inches long. She was welcomed home by her sister, three-year-old Brianna.

Grandparents are Charlie and Kittie Cornell of Thief River Falls and Sherry Dorr and Luther Dorr, both of Princeton. Great-grandparents are Ruth Acheson and Alma Cornell, both of Grand Rapids, and Edith Hiles of Sparta, Wisc.

AAUW hosts State President-Elect at meeting September 24

Minnesota State President-Elect Terri Griffiths will give members of the Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) a look at the future of the organization at its meeting on Monday, September 24.

The event will be held in the lobby area of the Northland Community and Technical College aviation building at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport. Following a light supper at 6:30 p.m., a nostalgic look to the local branch's beginning and a look at how the organization is currently involved in the community will precede Griffiths' presentation. Griffiths is currently serving as State Education chair and will be the next State President. She designed the fund-raiser, "The Getaway Weekend," which raised more than $9,000 for the Education Foundation in 2001.

Anyone who has ever thought about joining AAUW is encouraged to attend this event. Membership is open to persons who have a bachelor's (or higher) degree from any accredited college. AAUW promotes equity for women and girls, education and self development over the life span and positive societal change. For more information, contact Marj Lavalier at 681-2278.

Evening meal September 17 at Heritage Center

Reservations for the Monday, September 17 evening meal at Heritage Community Center can be made by calling 681-2793.

A tabletop flea market will follow the 5:30 p.m. meal. The menu will feature roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy, broccoli, bread, dessert and milk.

ECFE offers infant classes

The Thief River Falls Early Childhood Family Education (ECFE) program will offer an infant class for infants and their parents on four consecutive Tuesdays, beginning September 18. Classes will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in Room O107 at Challenger Preschool.

Because having a baby can be exciting and challenging at the same time, the class will give parents an opportunity to gather informally, sharing and learning together. Research and observation reveal that babies and young children learn best by interacting with people and objects in their environments while using all of their five senses.

The first two weeks of the class will focus on activities that enhance growth and development.

The second two weeks will teach the techniques of infant massage. These classes will be taught by Judie Storhaug, an occupational therapist certified in infant massage from Altru Hospital in Grand Forks. Infant massage enhances the bond between parent and child and is beneficial to an infant's physical, emotional and gastrointestinal development. It can also be a pleasant, intimate time shared between parent and child in today's busy, high-stress world. Participants are asked to bring a small bottle of baby oil and blanket on which to lay the baby.

Preregistration is required by Monday, September 17. To preregister or for more information, call 681-8670.

Star Homemakers meet Sept. 17

Star Homemakers Club will hold its annual organizational meeting on Monday, September 17, at 1:30 p.m. in the dining room at Eklund Lutheran Church.

Members can look forward to an interesting program with lessons being assigned for the year. There will also be a potluck lunch and drawing for the market basket.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Fondly Remembering Past Pets

A friend's dog got sick recently and we got to talking about pets and how sad we can feel when they get sick or die. People who don't have pets just don't understand how we pet lovers feel about our animals. It's terribly hard to go to work with red eyes and then try to explain that we are feeling bad because our pet is sick or has died. Some people just don't understand.

I came across the following column I wrote about my two pets in 1992. Since that time, both of the pets mentioned have died. I still think about them and miss them. They were so much a part of the family for years. But I enjoyed reading about them and remembering them again, and I hope you will enjoy reading about them too.

Oh, No, I Think I Do!

They say that people resemble their pets. I wonder if that is true. I've been trying to make some observations of this phenomenon, although my observations have been limited.

I haven't been able to observe cat owners and their pets, because most of them are inside their houses. Once in a while I see a cat creeping through a yard, stalking some prey. I hardly ever see any cat owners creeping around though.

Nor have I had a chance to observe the owners of parakeets, canaries, hamsters, gerbils, guinea pigs, fish or other types of small animals. I suppose because they are kept in a cage or a container of some sort - the animals, I mean.

I have, however, been able to observe people out walking their dogs and a few people chasing their creeping cats and I am beginning to fear that the saying is more than a saying. My eyes have told me that the old saying may very well have some basis in fact. An awful lot of people look an awful lot like whatever it is they are walking on the ends of their leashes or creeping after.

I am beginning to have a nagging feeling that I may possibly look like my pets. But I have both a cat and a dog. They look nothing alike, so I cannot see how I could possibly look like them.

My cat is black and smooth-haired. Her name used to be Beelzebub, but everyone has called her Bibs since she came to our house, because she has a small white bib under her chin. Sometimes she acts like Beelzebub, though.

She scratches furniture and watches to see if I notice her, ready to jump and run the minute I do. She had her claws removed a few years ago, but she still scratches furniture, even though it doesn't do any damage, still with that same wicked expression on her little face, watching me to see how I react. I think she misses my yelling at her about it.

Bibs also pouts when I don't do what she wants immediately, such as feed her. If I am lying in bed, facing the edge of the bed, and she wants breakfast, she will park herself two inches from my sleeping face and pout and breathe heavily. To say the least, it is very disconcerting to awaken and find oneself face to face with a pouting cat, not to mention breathing her cat breath. Some morning I may have a heart attack from it.

Bibs also does other naughty things when she isn't happy with me. When she thinks I have done something very bad to her, such as disciplining her when she gets on the cupboards and licks the butter or runs away, she has even been known to do something really naughty under my desk upstairs instead of in her litter box.

And have I mentioned her attitude when she uses her litter box? I don't make a habit of watching her when she is using it, but sometimes I am washing clothes a few feet from her and can't help but see. She comes creeping down the stairs, sees me, stops for a few minutes, and then, glaring at me, steps on sneaky cat feet into the laundry room where we have the litter box.

She steps carefully into the box and, keeping her back turned, sits there pretending that she isn't doing anything but taking a little rest. When the "resting" is finished, she turns around, nose in the air, scratches two or three times as if to announce that she is done, then steps gingerly out and runs immediately upstairs again, making a little whirring sound as she goes. All of this "attitude" tells me that she is unhappy with me and I am invading her private space. (Which I am, but it is my house, after all!)

Bibs has a small face with rather rounded ears (they froze) and wicked green eyes. Her front paws are large because she has several extra toes. I believe there are many cats in the area running around on large feet with several extra toes because she passed this characteristic on to nearly all of her copious progeny (prior to The Visit to the veterinarian).

(For you animal lovers, the dog part of the story will be in next week's Times.)

Lakehead Pipe Line changes name to Enbridge Energy

Lakehead Pipe Line Partners, L.P., became Enbridge Energy Partners, L.P. recently. The name change will better align Lakehead within the affiliated Enbridge international group of companies, which owns part of and operates the Lakehead partnership. The change also takes advantage of the strength and reputation of the Enbridge brand name.

"Even though our company has a new name, Enbridge Energy Partners, we will still have the same reputation for service, safety and excellence" said Dan C. Tutcher, new president of Enbridge Energy. "To landowners and communities along the former Lakehead pipeline route, the name change will be largely transparent - with the biggest change being the new signs on equipment and facilities, which will be transitioned over the next several months."

For registered unit holders, many of whom live along the pipeline routes, existing certificates in the name of Lakehead Pipe Line Partners, L.P. continue to be fully negotiable and need not be replaced.

Enbridge is a coined word, the fusion of two central ideas about the company: "energy," which is the primary focus, and "bridge," which signifies the connection the company will continue to make with energy customers throughout the world.

"We are excited about our new name and the opportunities to expand our business scope and growth strategy," said Tutcher. "We are building bridges to move energy in the right direction."

Bazaar at Oak Ridge Church September 15

Oak Ridge Church will hold its annual Fall Bazaar on Saturday, September 15, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Produce, baked goods and crafts will offered along with coffee and bars. Lunch will be served throughout the day.

Funds raised will be matched by Lutheran Brotherhood Branch 8129. Oak Ridge Church is located seven miles west of Thief River Falls on Highway 1 and one mile north.

Jordes to celebrate 50th anniversary September 15

An open house commemorating the 50th wedding anniversary of Chester and Betty Jorde will be held on Saturday, September 15, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Heritage Community Center.

The event will be hosted by their children, Gary and Joan Jorde and Bruce Jorde, and grandchildren, Joshua and Suzanne.

TRF garden club visits sanctuary

Several members of Moccasin Garden Club of Thief River Falls recently visited the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary near Warren for an evening of special activities.

Sanctuary Director Blane Klemek welcomed the group, showed slides about the history of the sanctuary and led an interpretive hike around the wetlands and waterways and motorcade on the Bluebird Trail.

In addition to seeing many species of flora and fauna, club members learned about wildlife management activities conducted at the sanctuary, including locations of current and future wildlife food plots, tree plantations, created wetlands, a shorebird habitat project, bluebird and wood duck nesting boxes and the benefits of using fire to manage the sanctuary's prairies.

Club members concluded the evening in the visitor center, serving refreshments and conducting their monthly business meeting.

PARENTING TIPS
Television and Children

Television can be so convincing that children believe most of the things it tells and shows them. But since children aren't yet experienced in the ways of the world, they can't always distinguish between what is real and what is make-believe. This can confuse and mislead. Children have been known to hurt not only themselves, but other people by imitating what the television tells and shows them.

Television can prove harmful to children in other ways. Spending too much time in front of the set can cause children to become passive and unable to be creative.

Many parents worry about the "hidden" message of television. They hear that some programs teach negative attitudes toward women, minorities and other social groups. They are concerned about the commercials that push toys, junk food, and sugared products. Especially worrisome is the mounting evidence of the relationship between television violence and the increase in violence in our schools and communities.

There is no need to go to the extreme of forbidding any television viewing in your home. Rather you can decide to cut down on how much television your children watch. Decide which kinds of programs they should watch and how often. If at all possible, watch some of the programs with them. This can frequently lead to family discussions of topics which might otherwise be neglected or postponed in day-to-day family life.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Plan your child's television viewing. Decide what you want your child to watch. When the program is over turn the television off.

Business planning grants available for Minn. dairy farmers

To help dairy farmers stay competitive in the 21st Century global marketplace, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture announced today that grants are available to help pay for dairy farm business plans.

Through funds appropriated during the 2001 special legislative session, the Dairy Development and Profitability Enhancement program was awarded $200,000 in grant dollars that will be distributed at up to $5,000 per dairy producer to cover half the cost of a comprehensive business plan that evaluates farm start-up, modernization and expansion.

Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson says these grants are a reinvestment in Minnesota's dairy community.

"Long-term planning is critical to the success and competitiveness of any business venture, and reinvestment is key to the long-term viability of a business," Commissioner Hugoson said. "Reinvesting in our $3.6 billion dairy industry is important to its revitalization and rural economic development."

The Minnesota Dairy Business Planning Grant Program is modeled after Wisconsin's highly-successful Dairy 2020 Early Planning Grant program.

Planning grants will be distributed on a first-come, first-serve basis. To receive a "Dairy Business Planning Grant" application, call Project Consultant David Weinand at 651-215-3946 or mail 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107.

NCTC RN graduates exceeding state/national standards

The State of Minnesota Board of Nursing has recently released quarterly results for licensure among registered nursing candidates. In the quarter, April 1, 2001 thraugh June 30, 2001, 95 percent of Associate Degree registered nurse graduates from Northland Community and Technical College passed their Board examinations and received licensure.

Northland graduated 45 students from the RN pragram last spring, and to date 20 students have taken their licensure exam.

The past five-year pass rote among Northland students is consistently higher than both state and national averages. In 2000, the state pass rote for professional nurse licensure was 89 percent. The national average ln 85 percent.

Deb Filer, Dean of Nursing at Northland, says the success rate among graduates is evidence of the quality of Northland's nursing pragrams.

"We have had many skilled and talented students go through our program. I am very proud of our graduates and the work they are doing in the field," said Filer.

Northland offers both a Practical Nursing program and Associate Degree Registered Nursing program at its main campus in Thief River Falls. Satellite campuses are also based in Bemidji, Detroit Lakes and Wadena.

Northland Community and Technical College is a comprehensive college offering a quality technical and liberal arts education since 1949. One- and two-year degrees, transfer progroms and diploma certification are available in 75 majors.

Reflections

by Brittany Larson

This is the first in a series of articles that will focus on our senior citizen's memories. "Reflections" is a project by Brittany Larson for the Governor's Scholars program. This pragram is sponsored by the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) and challenges young people to implement positive change in their communities.

The country school. . . most of us can only imagine what it must have been like, relying on writings of people such as Laura Ingalls Wilder's to pravide an accurate depiction. But 89-year-old Estelle Grinde doesn't have to use her imagination. She was not only a student at a country school, but, like Wilder, she also became a teacher.

Grinde was born in Silverton Township in 1912. Her parents homesteaded the land in 1904. "They had to work the land two years before they could get a crop because the sod was so tough," declared Grinde. Norwegian was spoken at home, and until around 1940 even the Silverton church services were conducted in that language. Although this might strike some as unusual, actually it was the custom to worship in Norwegian. Grinde's class was the last to be confirmed in Norwegian, and she still retains the language.

In 1919, when Grinde was seven years old, a terrible flu epidemic struck. It has already debilitated Europe, but many, including Grinde's mother, refused to believe it would devastate our area. However, this thinking was proved incorrect - fatally. In fact, Grinde's own mother died as a result of this flu. Then, only four days later - the day of her mother's funeral - Grinde's only brother passed away from the same scourge. Distraught with grief, her father suffered a nervous breakdown and left his three daughters in their grandfather's care. He didn't return for a year. With such a traumatic childhood, it's a wonder Grinde was able to carry on. But carry on she did, propelled by determination.

Both bright and driven, she was a violinist in the Lincoln High School Orchestra and a member of their first National Honor Society. She graduated salutatorian of the class of 1929. "I wanted to be valedictorian," she admitted, "because I felt then I'd get a scholarship." However, bouts with appendicitis, measles, and scarlet fever prevented her from attending school, which ultimately affected her marks. "I was one-and-a-half points below the valedictorian," she lamented. As fate would have it, Grinde's graduation year would go down in history - albeit history tainted by "gloom and doom," as she puts it. The world winced in October of 1929 as "Wall Street laid an egg" and the stock market buckled. The Great Depression was in full force.

Implications of this crash were evident even in Thief River Falls and Grinde recalls on telling of the instance. As has always been tradition, the senior class was approached with the prospect of purchasing class rings. At $7, the rings were relatively inexpensive even for that day and age. However, many of her classmates were still unable to afford them. Grinde herself was also directly affected. "I had hoped to go to college," she confided, yet as was often the case, her dreams were dashed since money was scarce. Instead of becoming discouroged, Grinde persevered and underwent teacher training the year following gradaation. She began teaching in the fall of 1930 - at the height of the Great Depression. Although the Depression struck all areas of the economy, the schools were among the earliest victims, and teacher salaries suffered greatly. Over the years, Grinde's own salary diminished considerably. Her initial $80 a month graduation dwindled to a scant $50 a month by 1936. Of this $50, $12 went to pay her room and board. "Somebody that didn't graw up in the Depression can't really comprehend it," Grinde said.

> Everybody has a talent and they should try to find out where they belong and then work to achieve their goal. And I think the happiest people, the most satisfied people are those that go into a life where they serve other people. — Estelle Grinde

While the Depression certainly placed strain upon this teacher's life, she didn't have much time to dwell on it. The hardships of teaching consumed substantial time and energy. Without electricity, indoor plumbing, and central heating, the schoolhouse lacked all of the conveniences that we consider "essential" today. Grinde would trudge one-and-a-half miles to school each day in order to sweep out the snow and start the fire in what could be 33-degrees-below-zero temperatures. In addition, the teaching workload itself was exhausting. Grinde administered 32 classes a day, instructing a total of eight grades. Her dedication was remarkable. She typically remained at school until 6 p.m. Then, upon returning home, she worked late into the night completing lesson plans. She said, "nobody had to tell you what to do. You were everything - you were teacher, nurse, and principal!" But in spite of it all, Grinde did not hesitate to say, "I loved my work. In the country school, you were so appreciated. . . they looked up to the teacher."

Although life has undoubtedly grown easier over the years, in some ways the country school still has a quaint appeal, especially in the small class sizes. "I think where you have the individual, smaller classes and a smaller school, it's much easier to control," said Grinde, dismissing the view that bigger is better. The tragic school shootings, so frequent today, would be unheard of back then. "In the country school, I knew what everyone was doing - they smoked once, out in the woodshed and they never did that again!" emphasized Grinde, who today is still tempted to hold the parents responsible for their children's actions. "We have to get back to training our children at home," she said, admitting, "I was very glad I was able to stay at home with my children when they were small." She believes that the law enforcement can't change the hearts. As for the advice she would give to young people today, Grinde offered this: "Everybody has a talent and they should try to find out where they belong and then work to achieve their goal. And I think the happiest people, the most satisfied people are those that go into a life where they serve other people."

Estelle Grinde eventually achieved her goal of a college degree. She retired from teaching in 1973; her husband passed away in 1980. Although she lost one of her sons four years ago, the other survives, as does her 96-year-old sister. Grinde is a proud great-grandmother and still lives in her home. She remains committed to serving others and regularly writes letters to shut-ins. "I have it so good. . . I'm never lonely because I don't have time," she laughs. Her passion for teaching continues, as does her gift to inspire.

qualifications set forth in this section.

"H. Qualifications Continuing. Failure to meet the qualifications of a director at any time during a director's term shall be cause for immediate termination."

Dr. Patel said he thinks it is still possible for the board to amend the bylaws so that a physician can be on the board. He said he intends to seek nomination from the membership next year. He appreciates the support he has received, and will be seeking support next year.

Dan Olson of Dakota Clinic - Thief River Falls, said the clinic did not have an official statement to offer.

Physicians have sought representation on the board ever since Dakota Clinic moved from the Northwest Medical Center campus. (While Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic have shared resources and physicians of Dakota Clinic have been on the board of directors of the hospital association board in the past, they have always operated independently.) Earlier this year, amended bylaws were challenged in court by physicians and association members, who also represent Dakota Clinic. In that case, the judge ordered that a vote of the membership be taken. In that vote, association members approved the amended bylaws.

He is the son of Curt and Peggy Bruzek of Thief River Falls and a 1989 graduate of Lincoln High School. He received a bachelor's degree in computer science in 1993 from Moorhead State University and a master's degree in management in 2001 from Troy State University.

Bruzek, his wife, Shannon, and their daughters reside in Callaway, Fla.

STUDENTS IN THE NEWS

Larson begins college career as sophomore

After successfully completing examinations in several advanced placement courses, Katie Larson will began her college career at the University of Minnesoto Morris as a sophomore.

Larson was notified that she would receive 25 ungraded credits for her achievement by the Scholastic Committee of the university.

She is the daughter of Harold and Linda Larson of St. Cloud and the granddaughter of Arnie and Helen Skibicki of St. Hilaire. She is a 2001 gradaate of St. Cloud Technical High School.

Amber Sorter a soccer standout

Amber Sorter, granddaughter of Tom and Bev Gustafson and LuVern and Judy Sorter of Thief River Falls, received recognition recently for her soccer abilities.

In addition to being a member of the 2001 Albert Lea Elks U-10 girls' soccer team and placing first in the local Soccer Shootout, Amber represented Albert Lea in the District Soccer Shootout in Rochester where she finished third in the girls' age 10-11 division.

UMC ranked as U.S. News "Best College"

The University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC) has been ranked one of the best public colleges in the midwest for the fourth consecative year, according to U.S. New and World Report's college rankings for 2002. UMC was ranked among the three colleges in the category "Top Public Midwestern Comprehensive Colleges - Bachelors."

UMC received the recognition in the publication's annual "best colleges" issue which was schedaled for release September 10. The 2002 rankings were made public Thursday on the U.S. News website, www.usnews.com.

"It's been o banner year for us for state and national recognition. We've been featured in The Wall Street Journal, Dnline Learning magazine, Converge magazine and on Minnesota Public Radio," says Curt Almlie, director of University Relations ot UMC. "But being ranked in the top three on o U.S. News list is certainly on honor, and it comes at a time when we, as a campus, are actively striving for excellence. This kind of recognition helps reinforce that."

This year, U.S. News changed the names of its ranking categories to better reflect college missions as described by the Carnegie classification system. UMC's category, "Top Public Comprehensive Colleges - Bachelor's," included 322 comprehensive colleges that focus on undergraduate education. These colleges were further categorized into four geographicol regions.

According to U.S. News, the method of ranking colleges and universities consists of three basic steps. The schools are first categorized by size, mission and region. In the spring, data is gathered from each institution regarding several indicators of academic excellence, including academic reputation, retention of students, faculty resources, student selectivity, financial resources, graduation rate performance and alumni giving. Each factor is assigned a weight that reflects U.S. News' judgment about how much each measure matters. Finally, the colleges in each category are ranked against their peers, based on their weighted composite score.

UMC is beginning its ninth year as a baccalaureate degree granting aniversity. It is also in its ninth year of providing notebook compaters to every student.

Killian graduates from NDSU

Beth Marie Killian, daughter of Larry and Dione Killian of Plummer, was among the May 2001 graduates of North Dakota State University.

Killian majored in elementary education and minored in child development. She is currently pursuing a teaching career in Dverland, Kan.

US Academy application deadline is November 1

Senator Mark Dayton said today that Minnesota young people interested in receiving his nomination to one of the four U.S. Service Academies should return a completed application to his office by November 1.

Minnesoto residents between the ages of 17 and 23 can opply to any of the four service academies if they meet eligibility requirements in leodership, physical optitude, scholarship and character. The four service ocodemies are the Military Academy at West Point, New York; the Noval Academy ot Annapolis, Maryland; the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colorado; and the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, New York.

"Each year many talented Minnesota young people opply for the limited oppointment spaces at our nation's service academies," Dayton said. "Deciding whom to recommend won't be an easy process, so I put the November 1 deadline in place to ensure that my academy advisory committee and I will hove enough time to review all applications and make the most informed recommendations possible."

Doyton and his Academy Advisory Committee will interview candidates in mid-November and make final recommendations to the academies on the most qualified candidotes by Jan. 31. The academies will make final decisions on appointments next spring.

Interested applicants should contact Senator Dayton's office at 298 Federal Building; 1 Federal Drive; Fort Snelling, MN 55111; or call (612) 727-5220 (Toll Free at 1-888-224-9043).

Autumn decorations for inside and outside the home were among the many items which could be purchased Saturday at Everybody's Market. Due to inclement weather and the construction situation downtown, this year's event was held at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

This booth was "for the birds" at Everybody's Market in Thief River Falls Saturday. Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Society was among the many vendors who gathered at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center to sell their wares at the annual event.

Picking just the right gourd was on the mind of this shopper at Everybody's Market in Thief River Falls Saturday. While most tables were set up inside the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center, Lew and Tammy Wallace of Honker Flats opted to sell their produce, trees and plants outdoors near the front entrance of the facility.

These vendors were a prime example of what could be discovered at Everybody's Market in Thief River Falls Saturday, as they offered an assortment of handmade goods, from decorative rosemaled pieces to practical potholders.

Schedule

■ Saturday, Sept. 15 - Itasca at Rochester, 1:30 p.m.; Mesabi Range at Ridgewater, 1:30 p.m.; Northland at Minnesota West, 1:30 p.m.; Rainy River at Central Lakes, 1:30 p.m.; Vermilion at Fergus Falls, 2:30 p.m.

Central Lakes built a 41-12 fourth quarter lead Saturday afternoon and weathered a late-game Northland comeback bid to leave Thief River Falls with a high-scoring 47-32 Minnesota Community College Conference football win.

The Raiders' Roderick Warren, a 5-8, 152-pound freshman from Miami, rushed for 208 yards on just 12 carries, scoring on four of those runs.

Central Lakes racked up 434 yards worth of offense – 330 yards on the ground and 104 through the air on 6-for-12 passing by Ronnie Jones, who threw for two touchdowns.

It was the home opener and the second game of the 2001 season for the Pioneers, who lost a 45-6 opener to Rochester on Aug. 24, then drew a second-week MCCC bye. It was the first win in three starts for the Raiders, who lost to Mesabi Range 46-7 and Vermilion 27-7 to start the year.

Turnovers hurt the Pioneers. A fumble and a blocked punt set up back-to-back short scoring drives for the Raiders in the first quarter, with the both touchdowns scored by Warren on runs of 5 and 10 yards just three minutes apart.

Third Central Lakes touchdown followed yet another Northland fumble, with Jones scoring on a quarterback keeper from a yard out 1:48 into the second quarter for a 21-0 scoreboard spread.

The Pioneers had six turnovers for the day – five fumbles and an interception. "We coughed up the ball," acknowledged Northland coach Guy Finstrom. "We were slow coming out of the gate. The bye week maybe had something to do with that, but that's not an excuse. We just weren't ready to play at the start."

Northland got on the board when Justin Skjerven, on his first snap of the game, connected with Brian Harris on a 63-yard touchdown pass to open the second quarter.

But just 1:41 later Warren broke off a 78-yard touchdown run that made it 28-6 at the half.

Warren went 79 yards for the only Central Lakes touchdown of the third quarter.

Skjerven hit Jamie Miramontes on a 9-yard touchdown pass with 2:57 left in the third quarter, but the Raiders answered on a 6-yard Jones touchdown pass to Thomas Hanley 3 1/2 minutes into the final period to make it 41-12.

The Pioneers tried to make a game of it when, in a 37-second span of the fourth quarter, Maurice Johnson scored on a 43-yard run and threw a 48-yard touchdown pass to Patrick Cash – the latter coming with 9:31 still on the clock.

When Jeremy Cost scored on a one-yard quarterback keeper with 4:27 left, the Pioneers lined up for a two-point conversion attempt that would have made it a seven-point ball game.

But the run was stopped short of the goal line, and Central Lakes iced it on a 3-yard Scott Imgrund run with 53 seconds to play.

"We're disappointed," admitted Finstrom. "I was expecting to win, and the kids were expecting to win But they have to learn that they've got to come ready to play. They've got the talent; they just have to come out and do the job."

Johnson, a 5-10, 195-pound runningback from Chicago, produced 274 yards worth of offense for the Pioneers as he netted 155 yards on 16 carries; picked up 71 yards on three pass receptions, and had the 48-yard touchdown pass on an half-back option throw.

The Pioneers finished with 431 yards of offense, which included 195 yards on 50 running plays and 236 yards on 16-for-26 passing.

Aaron Schmitz (8 tackles, 10 assists), Ben Myers (3-16) and Ben Grahn (3-8) were the Pioneers' leaders on defense, according to Finstrom.

Northland will be back on the road again Saturday when they drive to Worthington for a 1:30 p.m. game against Minnesota West, a team that has opened the season with losses to Vermilion 28-7, Rainy River 25-12 and Hibbing 20-14.

The two teams last met in the 2000 MCCC state playoff semifinals at the Multi-Events Center, a game won by Minnesota West 12-6.

TRF boys finish second Monday at Warroad meet

■ Cross country results

A second place finish by the Thief River Falls boys highlighted the Prowlers' efforts Monday at the Warroad Invitational high school cross country meet.

Host Warroad finished with a 45-80 victory margin over Thief River Falls in the seven-team boys' portion of the race.

"We raised the level of our standards today," said Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons. "Our boys team really focused and ran well. This is the first time our varsity boys have placed above third in a couple of years. They hung together and placed well."

Matt Damico of East Grand Forks won individual honors. The Prowlers were led by Brian Newton, who finished tenth. Thirteenth place Nathan Browning, who made up major ground in the middle of the race, pointed out Persons, was the second Thief River Falls runner across the line.

In the girls' race, the team title went to East Grand Forks and the individual winner was JaNae Altepeter of Crookston.

"Because of illness and injuries, we did not field a complete girls team," explained Persons. "However, I give credit to Janae Harlow, who pulled (encouraged) Ashleigh Anderson through the race."

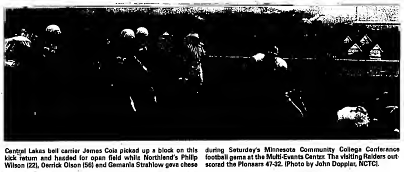
Jeff Mumm will be speaker at Boosters Club Thursday

Lincoln High School head football coach Jeff Mumm will be the guest speaker Thursday during the weekly Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club noon luncheon meeting at the Elks. The public is welcome.



Central Lakes ball carrier James Cole picked up a block on this kick return and headed for open field while Northland's Philip Wilson (22), Derrick Olson (56) and Germania Strahlow gave chase during Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference football game at the Multi-Events Center. TRF falls to Duluth Denfeld; Duluth East will be home opener opponent...

Prowlers lose conference debut 20-14

Thief River Falls made its debut as a Super Sea Range Conference high school football member Friday in a 20-14 loss to Duluth Denfeld at the new $1 million artificial surface Public Schools Stadium in Duluth.

It was an improved performance over a 47-14 season-opening loss to Albany a week earlier, according to Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm, but the setback still left the Prowlers looking for their first win of the season heading into their home opener Friday against Duluth East. Game time for the conference match-up at the Multi-Events Center is 7 p.m.

Denfeld turned two early touchdowns and a 14-0 head start into a win in the 5:15 match-up with the Prowlers.

"They (Hunters) were a very beatable football team," said Mumm. "We thought we could beat them, and we're disappointed we didn't win the game. But it was a big improvement over the week before. After we gave up the two touchdowns, we challenged our kids on defense. To that point, we hadn't stopped anybody. But they settled down and did a nice job the rest of the way."

A 2-yard run by Steven Muellner that was followed by a Denis Jacobson conversion run, along with an 18-yard touchdown run by Jacobson, gave Denfeld the 14-0 advantage.

Jon Swanson broke loose on a 27-yard run and Stephan Hahn added the conversion kick as Thief River Falls chopped the difference in half by intermission.

The Prowlers then caught the Hunters on a 15-yard Swanson touchdown run in the third quarter, only to give up a 14-yard John Borich touchdown pass to Matt Mobley on the exchange of possession.

After stopping Denfeld at the Thief River Falls 13-yard line with 3:28 remaining in the game, the Prowlers pressed for the tying touchdown when Swanson took a first down hand-off to the Hunters' 34-yard line.

Then, facing a fourth-and-five, the Prowlers kept the threat going on a Swanson carry to the Denfeld 23 with 2:33 still on the clock.

It ended, however, on fourth down at the Duluth 20, a bobbled snap led to a quarterback sack by defensive end Mike Thro with 1:15 to play. It was his third sack and 12th tackle of the night.

Swanson finished the game with 140 yards on 13 carries, which was nearly half of the Prowlers' 287 total offense yards. Anderson was 2-for-10 passing for 37 yards. He was intercepted once.

"We moved the ball pretty well," noted Mumm. "We played some good old-fashion Prowler football; we came off the ball hard and our backs ran hard."

Muellner carried 19 times for 102 yards and Jacobson added 80 yards on 14 attempts.

Duluth East will present another challenge for the Prowlers, admitted Mumm. "They're big, and they're very athletic," he warned.

The Greyhounds lost to Princeton 25-8 in the 2001 season opener, but bounced back to beat Hibbing 36-24 in the second half of the Friday doubleheader at the Duluth facility. Sophomore runningback Chris Sikjendahl carried 21 times for 146 yards in that one.

Northern Division features top-notch volleyball

Some high-quality volleyball is being played in the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division this fall. Northland coach Mike Zachow figures he has a team with the potential to be among the MCCC leaders, but the Pioneers are finding other teams in the same situation – programs having elevated their talent level with an eye toward state, regional and national tournaments.

Northland split a pair of Northern Division matches on the road over the weekend, losing to Mesabi Range 3-1 Friday night in Virginia before beating Vermilion 3-2 Saturday afternoon in Ely – results that put the Pioneers at 7-4 for the year and 2-1 in the MCCC standings.

"They are really improved this year," said Zachow, and he said it twice as he described the weekend competition. "Everybody is improved this year."

Mesabi Range beat Northland 26-30, 30-27, 30-22, 30-23.

"We started out really well against Mesabi," explained Zachow, "but mistakes caught up to us. Mostly it was a lot of little, stupid things; mental errors."

The Pioneers' top front row-back row combination that night was Christel Berube (11 kills, 7 blocks) and Lindsay Wegge (26-for-26 serving, 21 assists).

Berube followed that performance with 25 kills and 5 blocks in a nearly 2 1/2-hour marathon match against Vermilion won by Northland 30-28, 26-30, 34-32, 27-30, 15-13).

"It was the longest match in volleyball history," quipped Zachow. "At times we played really well, and at times we didn't. We just hung together and got the job done. Christel had a great match. Any time we really needed a point, we went to her."

Amanda Spong provided some offensive support that afternoon with 13 kills.

"After losing Friday, getting the win on Saturday was pretty big," noted Zachow, "especially with Rainy River coming up next."

Northland and Rainy River will meet a second time this fall Friday at 6:30 p.m. in the Pioneers' gym. The Voyageurs won the first encounter 3-0 in the Northland Pepsi Invitational Aug. 30.

The Pioneers will also be at home Saturday vs. Hibbing at noon.

Prowlers are winless at tournament

■ TRF volleyball team 0-4 at Ada-Borup Invitational

Thief River Falls went winless Saturday at the Ada-Borup Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Handing the Prowlers pool play losses were Red Lake County Central 15-2, 10-15, 15-7; Fertile-Beltrami 15-9, 16-14; and Ada-Borup 15-4, 15-7.

Climax/Fisher beat Thief River Falls 15-7, 13-15, 15-5 in the seventh place match.

"We went in spurts," reported Erika Jensen, Thief River Falls co-head coach, along with Kelly Skeim. "We did really well at times; everybody was working hard and keeping the ball off the floor. But at other times we struggled."

Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton beat Red Lake County Central 16-14, 15-8 in the championship match.

The results extended the Prowlers' season-opening losing streak to eight matches heading into a Tuesday contest at home against East Grand Forks.

TRF tennis squad downs Spuds 6-1; falls to Pirates 4-3

Thief River Falls handled Moorhead 6-1, but couldn't get by it's biggest North Sub-Section 8AA hurdle Monday, losing the second half of a double-dual girls high school tennis meet to the host Pirates 4-3.

The Prowlers and Pirates split four singles matches, with Crookston's 2-for-3 edge in doubles producing the difference in the final team score.

Thief River Falls is 5-1 in dual meet play this fall.

Mustangs reach finals of Ada-Borup tourney

Red Lake County Central reached the finals of the Ada-Borup Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday before losing to Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton 2-0.

The Mustangs got by Thief River Falls 15-2, 10-15, 15-7, then swept Ada-Borup 15-10, 15-9 and Fertile-Beltrami 15-4, 15-10 in the pool play portion of the eight-team event.

Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton overcame an early 6-0 deficit to beat Red Lake County Central 16-14, 15-8 in the title match.

"It was a good day," said Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton was the best team there. They're big. But we played well. We served 92 percent for the day."

The 3-1 tournament showing put the Mustangs at 5-2.

Strong start produces Storm win over Devils

■ Stephen-Argyle wins 54-24

Stephen-Argyle made sure its stay atop the state Nine-Man high school football rankings would last at least one more week Friday by beating Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 54-24 in Argyle.

The Storm led 10-0 at the end of the first quarter and opened up a 34-0 halftime spread.

"They're good," acknowledged Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "They just manhandled us in the first half. We had a wake-up call in the third quarter and played a lot better, but it wasn't nearly enough."

The 0-2 Blue Devils, who lost to Kittson Central 27-8 a week earlier in the 2001 season opener, were limited to 127 yards on the ground by the Storm defense. Cory Osthy had most of those, with 94 yards on 28 carries, including a touchdown. Sophomore quarterback John Polansky carried the ball nine times for 42 yards and was 6-for-12 passing for 80 yards. He ran for one touchdown and threw touchdown passes to Nathan Gast and Casey Jones. Gast caught four passes for 47 yards.

Defensively, Wilebski said Polansky, Osthy and Gast all played solid games against the high-powered Storm offense.

The Blue Devils will play Marshall County Central in a Friday Top of the State Conference game at Goodridge. That will be the only home game for Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke in the first month of the 2001 season.

Prowlers swim at Bemidji Saturday

Hutchinson won eight of the 12 events Saturday en route to an easy team victory at the Bemidji Invitational girls high school swim meet.

In an otherwise all-northern Minnesota field, Hutchinson made the long drive worthwhile by scoring 648 points, followed by Warroad with 331.50, Bemidji 312, Thief River Falls 242, Moorhead 221, Detroit Lakes 145, Bagley-Fosston 137, Roseau 124, Hibbing 92, Perham 37, and Crookston 35.50.

Thief River Falls efforts included a first place finish by Chelsea Haviland in the one-meter diving competition. Her 277.15 points established a record for the new Bemidji High School pool.

Haviland also had a second place 57.52 in the 100-yard freestyle and anchored a pair of second place relay teams – the 200 freestyle and 400 freestyle – that also included Cami Hendrickson, Brittany Haviland and Allyson Helling. Season-best times for both units included a seven-second drop in the 400 and a five-second improvement in the 200, where they they were less than two seconds from a state meet-qualifying time.

Thief River Falls coach Jill Buck was more than satisfied with the Prowlers' fourth place team showing. "The girls did a terrific job," she said. "They did a wonderful job. I am proud of them; they should be proud of themselves."

Eighth grader Casey Engelstad came up with a sectional-qualifying time in the 100 breaststroke.

Personal-best swims were also turned in by Allyson Helling, 200 individual medley, 50 freestyle, 100 freestyle; Brittany Haviland, 50 freestyle; and Katie Pribula, 500 freestyle.

A seventh place performance by Helling and a 12th place showing by Amber Curry in a field of 24 divers also produced special recognition from Buck.

It was the third meet of the 2001 season for the Prowlers, who will make a belated home debut Thursday with a 5:30 p.m. dual against Detroit Lakes. A scheduled Sept. 6 meet against Park Rapids Area was called off because of weather-related problems at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Shorthanded RLCC loses 27-0 decision

Red Lake County Central found itself short on numbers Friday – both on the scoreboard and on the field – in a 27-0 Nine-Man high school football loss to Ada-Borup.

The Oklee/Plummer cooperative lists 21 players in grades 10 through 12 on its roster. But because of a combination of injuries, absences and rules violations, the Mustangs dressed 14 players for Week 2 of the 2001 season. By game's end, they were down to 11 players.

"We just didn't have enough bodies," offered Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "They were a tired bunch of kids at the end. I was very proud of them – the way they hung in there."

Complicating matters for Brantl and the Mustangs is an early-season schedule quirk that has them playing three times in nine days. The game at Ada was followed by a Tuesday (Sept 11) match-up with Climax/Fisher in Climax and a Saturday (Sept. 15) contest against Northome/Kelliher in Oklee.

Against Ada-Borup, the Mustangs' depleted backfield was limited to 43 yards on 17 rushing attempts. Quarterback Carl Dugstad led the way with 20 yards on eight carries. He was 9-for-18 passing for 88 yards and two interceptions. Ryan Paradis caught six passes for 51 yards.

Paradis was also busy on defense, where he was in on 20 tackles. Doug Melby was credited with nine tackles and five assists, while Dugstad (7-1) and Thor Vettleson (5-5) also also ranked high on the tackle charts.

Roseau wins TRF event

Roseau was the winner Saturday in the Thief River Falls Invitational C squad high school volleyball tournament.

Rest of the finishes included: 2. Warren-Alvarado-Oslo; 3. Norman County West; 4. Thief River Falls; 5. East Grand Forks; 6. Win-E-Mac; 7. Red Lake County Central; and 8. Red Lake Falls.

In recent C squad matches, Stephen-Argyle (14-16, 16-14, 15-3), Red Lake County Central (15-6, 9-15, 15-6) and Bemidji (15-4, 11-15, 15-3) all handed Thief River Falls 2-1 setbacks.

Street Stocks 2001 season points championships at the Greenbush Race Park produced a 1-2-3 finish for Thief River Falls drivers when the final races were held Friday, Aug. 31. The group included, from left, Dave Mayer, first place; Rod Paterson, second; and Sheldon Paterson, third. (Photo by Stacy Spilde).

Bears outlast Wolverines

Lake of the Woods pull out a 3-2 win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Thursday in a marathon high school volleyball match at Grygla.

The Bears won 12-15, 15-12, 15-8, 13-15, 16-14.

It was the first loss in three starts for the Wolverines, who opened the 2001 season with wins over Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and Warroad.

"It was a good match," reported Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz. "We were pretty even. They had a little bit of edge in blocking, and that was the difference."

The Wolverines' balanced attack featured Ashley Holthusen with 13 kills, Beth Tharaldson 12, Anna Anderson 11, and Laura Anderson 10.

They were fed a steady supply of sets by Kelsey Johnsrud, who finished with 40 assists. She also had five service aces.

Gators start season with a pair of losses

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River has found it tough to hold on to the ball in season-opening a pair of high school football losses to Walker-Hackensack-Akeley 29-0 and Fosston 36-13. The Gators have lost 10 fumbles in the two starts.

Youth might be partly to blame for the slow start. The Gators play just two seniors on defense and three on offense. But it's a group that went 10-1 at the junior varsity level, so the potential is there," according to Kent Janieke, who took over the Gators' head coaching reigns this fall from Tom Neibauer. "I thought we could win two of our first three," said Janieke. "I thought if we went 4-4 or 5-3, it would be a pretty good year for us. Right now, we're just not playing up to our potential."

All the scoring was done in the first half Friday when Fosston grabbed a 20-6 first quarter lead and extended the margin to 20 points in the second quarter.

Brian Thompson scored both Badger/Greenbush-Middle River touchdowns – on a 33-yard run and a 53-yard pass from quarterback Jason Smith.

Tim Dion was the Gators' top ball carrier with 74 yards on 16 attempts. Thompson netted 71 yards on 10 carries. Smith was 5-for-6 passing for 79 yards.

Thompson was named the Gators' Defensive Player of the Week by the coaching staff.

Bemidji picks up 3-0 volleyball win against Prowlers

Bemidji swept Thief River Falls 15-7, 15-9, 15-5 Thursday in North Sub-Section 8AAA high school volleyball.

It was the fourth loss in as many starts for the Prowlers, but their level of play was improved, according to Thief River Falls co-head coach Erika Jensen, who said, "That's the best we played this year. Bemidji is really tough. We played well against them. We just didn't get the points."

Bemidji won the junior varsity match 15-5, 15-9.

■ Aces - Lindsay Swenson 1, Ann Marben 1, Kelly Bendickson 1.

Wolverines top MCC

Marshall County Central played Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke close, but still lost a 3-0 high school volleyball decision Monday.

The Wolverines won 15-11, 15-12, 16-14.

"They (Nordics) came out ready to play, and we didn't," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz. "We were flat. Our serving was good, but we weren't moving our feet on offense or defense."

The Wolverines are 3-1; the Nordics fell to 1-2.

Anna Anderson had 10 kills and Ashley Holthusen 9 for the winners. Kelsey Johnsrud collected 20 assists and had 11 service points. Holthusen served 15 points, including three aces.

The Nordics' attack featured Jordan Holthusen with 11 kills and Alicia Halvorson 9. Rhandi Halvorson had 11 assists for the Nordics. Rhandi and Alicia Halvorson both had three aces.

First Bear!

Abby Neigebauer, Waseca, Minnesota, age 12, got this 250-lb. black bear with her 42-lb. Hoyt Bow using a Barrie Rocky Mountain Premier 72-grain broadhead.

The bear was taken near Grygla on August 23, 2001. Abby was hunting with her father Paul and Mike Powell who purchased their campsite five years ago from Walter Quam through the Norm Anderson Realty.

This was Abby's first bear. The group of four took three bears.

Fishing tournament regulations in place

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials are reminding fishing contest organizers that they need to begin planning now for contests in 2002. The DNR began accepting applications for the 2002 tournament season on Sept. 1 and will continue to accept them through Oct. 27, 2001.

In 2001, the DNR tightened some restrictions regulating fishing contests. The new restrictions grew from meetings among tournament organizers, angling clubs, recreational anglers, boaters, lakeshore property owners and DNR officials in recent years. The meetings were held to address increasing complaints by many lake users that fishing tournaments disturb their fishing, swimming, boating and other water recreation.

Restrictions on the number and frequency of fishing contests held on lakes each month were created to redistribute tournaments held on Minnesota's busiest waters. In this first year under the new regulations, fishing tournament complaints from the public to the DNR have dropped substantially, indicating that the regulations are having the desired effect.

Among the restrictions are limits on the number of tournaments allowed per month based on lake and tournament size. For example, on lakes less than 2,000 acres, only two tournaments will be allowed per month, and none can have more than 50 boats or 100 participants. Lakes from 15,000 to 55,000 acres can have five contests per month, but only three of those can have more than 100 participants. There are no limits for lakes larger than 55,000 acres.

If the number of applications exceeds monthly limits, the DNR will conduct a lottery to allocate available permits, similar to the system used for wildlife hunting permits.

Tournament organizers planning a tournament in 2002 for a lake and time period that they anticipate might exceed the new limits should consider submitting their applications this fall, according to the DNR. Applications received from Sept. 1 through Oct. 27, 2001, will be eligible for any necessary lottery drawing. Tournaments with a history established for a particular lake and time period will have preference over others. All other applications received after Oct. 27 will be considered on a first-come, first-served basis through the 2002 tournament season.

For a complete summary of the tournament regulations, call the DNR Information Center toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367), or view the summary on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

DNR is offering 20 parcels of land for sale at oral action

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources will offer 20 parcels of state land for sale to the public. The parcels, ranging in size from less than an acre to 40 acres, will be sold at public oral auction Oct. 1, 2 and 3.

Properties being offered include three newly platted lots on White Iron Lake near Ely, an inland parcel adjacent to Highway 61 and located between Gooseberry State Park and Split Rock Lighthouse State Park, and a site previously operated as a bed and breakfast near McGregor. Also offered are some urban sites in Beltrami and St. Louis counties, and rural recreational sites in Aitkin, Beltrami, Crow Wing, Mille Lacs, Morrison, Pine, St. Louis, Stearns and Wadena counties.

"These properties can be great values for the right buyer," said Kathy Lewis, DNR Land and Minerals Division transactions manager. "However, bidders need to be aware of the terms and conditions of the sales and need to have inspected or be knowledgeable about the properties before bidding."

Prospective bidders are urged to obtain full information on properties and sale conditions prior to appearing for an auction. No properties will be sold for less than the minimum bid identified for each property. The minimum bid consists of the appraised value of the land and any improvements, plus the timber value and sale costs. All properties are sold "as is".

The DNR will provide property data sheets for each parcel containing exact location, minimum bid, site description and property condition, and the date and location of the auction.

For more information about any or all properties, call the DNR toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

Land sale information is also available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us. Information can also be requested by e-mail at landsale@dnr.state.mn.us.

Minnesota deer hunters group awaiting fall hunt

Hunters are reminded by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources that there is one sure way to avoid problems associated with trespassing: "Always Ask First."

Wayne Edgerton, the DNR agricultural policy director, said the trespass law in Minnesota has been changed this year so hunters or other outdoor recreationists could find themselves in trouble if they do not familiarize themselves with the change.

"Basically, the change this year from previous years is in the interpretation of what is considered agricultural land as it pertains to the trespass law," Edgerton said.

As noted on page 12 of the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations handbook, all planted grassland and hayland and other woody plants that are harvested for their fiber within 15 years of planting meet this definition, including grasslands enrolled in the federal Conservation Reserve Program, Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, or the state Reinvest in Minnesota Reserve program.

These lands do not need to be posted to prevent unauthorized trespass. However, land that is covered by brush or trees, including CRP, CREP and RIM Reserve that is brush or trees (except short-rotation woody crops as defined above), does not meet this definition and must be posted or verbal notice given to trespassers for enforcement action to be taken.

"Trespass is the biggest problem landowners have with hunters," said Capt. Randy Evans, the DNR's Region 4 enforcement supervisor at New Ulm. "It is critical for hunters to have good relationships with landowners, especially when you consider that in some parts of the state, such as southwestern Minnesota, about 95 percent of the land is privately owned," Evans said. "If hunters and other outdoor recreationists would just make it a standard practice to always ask for permission before entering any private land, those relationships would improve a lot."

Evans encourages all hunters - and landowners - to obtain a copy of the 2001 Hunting and Trapping Regulations handbook and to review the trespass information on pages 10-14.

"I can't stress enough how important it is to be very familiar with the trespass law," Evans said, "particularly since it has been changed this year."

Pheasant population declines

Ring-necked pheasant counts are down 50 percent from last year, according to surveys recently completed by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. DNR wildlife biologists blame the drastic drop on last year's harsh winter and a soggy spring. The adverse weather also helped reduce rabbit numbers by 44 percent and gray partridge numbers by 25 percent.

Minnesota's pheasant season opens Saturday, Oct. 13. The small game season, which includes rabbits and partridge, opens Saturday, Sept. 15.

"To sum it up," said John Giudice, wildlife research biologist with the DNR Farmland Wildlife Population and Research Group in Madelia, "hunting prospects for Minnesota pheasants and cottontail rabbits are poor to fair this fall."

Giudice, who supervised the DNR's yearly August roadside survey, said that overall the number of pheasants seen along survey routes was down 50 percent from 2000 and was 35 percent below the five-year mean (1996-2000).

"A severe winter followed by a cold, wet spring typically results in declines in pheasant, gray partridge and cottontail populations," Giudice said. "We are disappointed, but we are not surprised."

Population declines are usually most severe in areas lacking adequate winter cover, said Giudice, and this year was no exception. The most severe pheasant population declines were in southern and west-central Minnesota, where winter cover is more sparse, while populations in east-central and central Minnesota remained above the five-year mean.

"During the three-year period from 1998 to 2000 with mild winters, Minnesota's pheasant numbers increased even in areas with marginal winter cover," Giudice said. "But with no improvement in winter cover, the hard winter of 2000-01 resulted in significant overwinter mortality, especially in southern and west-central regions."

Despite the statewide decline in pheasants, fair densities (25-49 birds per square mile) can be found in portions of east-central, southwest and central Minnesota. "By scouting around, hunters will be able to find a few local hot spots in other regions," Giudice said.

Above-average precipitation in April and May resulted in low nest success and may have delayed nesting. "Fortunately the hot, dry conditions in late June and July were excellent for brood-rearing and renesting," Giudice said. He explained that pheasants are persistent renesters if initial nest attempts fail and hens are in good condition. As a result, there could be more pheasants this fall than the August counts indicate.

"Young, late-hatched broods are undercounted in roadside surveys," Giudice said. "As a result, the roadside indices may not accurately reflect late-season production."

Giudice estimated that pheasant hunting prospects should be similar to those in 1997, when hunters harvested 248,000 roosters. "I predict we'll be closer to 275,000 this year," Giudice said. "However, the actual harvest may be greater if there was a strong renesting effort."

Pheasant population trends and harvest predictions are based on results of the DNR's annual roadside survey, which began in the late 1940s and was standardized in 1955. The survey is conducted during the first two weeks in August by DNR conservation officers and wildlife managers in the farmland region of Minnesota.

The survey consists of 175 routes, each 25 miles long, with 156 routes located in the ring-necked pheasant range. Observers drive each route in early morning and record the number of game animals they see. The data provide an index of relative abundance and are used to monitor annual changes and long-term trends in populations of ring-necked pheasants, gray partridge, eastern cottontail rabbits, white-tailed jackrabbits and selected other wildlife species.

Giudice noted that average habitat conditions remain poor for grassland wildlife throughout most of Minnesota's pheasant range due to intense farming and a 33 percent decline in Conservation Reserve Program acres in the pheasant range from the peak of 1.2 million acres in the early 1990s. To put it into perspective, only 3 percent of the farmland landscape in Minnesota is enrolled in conservation programs.

Outlook for gray (Hungarian) partridge hunting continues to be dim. Gray partridge were introduced from southeastern Europe and northern Asia, where they evolved in arid climates. They only produce well in North America during dry or drought years, and their numbers drop when it's wet during nesting and brood-rearing. As expected, the number of gray partridge seen along the August roadside routes was down 25 percent from 2000 and was 48 percent below the five-year mean.

"The best chance of flushing a covey or two will be in the southwest and south-central regions," said Giudice, who predicts the 2001 partridge harvest to be about 19,000 birds.

Number of cottontail rabbits counted during the roadside survey declined 47 percent from 2000, when populations were at their highest level since 1981, and was 18 percent below the five-year mean. Declines occurred in all regions and ranged from minus 21 percent in the southeast to minus 78 percent in the west-central region.

Jackrabbits counted during roadside surveys increased 73 percent from 2000 and were 50 percent above the five-year mean. However, jackrabbit numbers remain at very low levels.

Duck hunters are surveyed

Most duck hunters appear to be satisfied with their hunting experience in Minnesota but not with the number of birds they harvest, according to the preliminary results of a new study conducted by the University of Minnesota and commissioned by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The study was conducted by Dr. David Fulton of the Minnesota Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit, who is an expert on human dimensions of fishing, hunting and other outdoor recreation. Fulton mailed questionnaires to 3,872 randomly sampled Minnesota duck hunters to estimate their opinions and activities. A total of 2,454 hunters (63 percent) completed the survey, which has an error margin of less than 5 percent.

The final report - including detailed analysis of responses by hunter location, age and other factors - will be finished by the end of September, said Tim Bremicker, director of the DNR Division of Wildlife.

"It's essential for us to have objective information about what Minnesota waterfowl hunters are thinking," Bremicker said. "These responses will help us improve our waterfowl management to be consistent with hunters' needs and expectations."

Results of the report will be part of the DNR's new plan to restore wetlands and waterfowl hunting opportunities in Minnesota, which will be released in late September.

When asked about their satisfaction with Minnesota duck hunting, 71 percent of respondents were slightly, moderately or very satisfied. Most were also satisfied with duck hunting regulations, with a total of 57 percent expressing satisfaction. Hunters were less pleased with the number of birds they bagged, however. Only 41 percent replied that they were satisfied with their duck hunting harvest, and just 9 percent reported being very satisfied with their harvest. Twice as many (18 percent) noted being very dissatisfied with their duck harvest.

Similar results came from goose hunters: 66 percent were satisfied with their hunting experience, 52 percent were satisfied with the regulations, and 45 percent were satisfied with their goose hunting harvest.

"It is surprising that satisfaction for duck harvest and goose harvest are so similar," Fulton said. "Given that Canada goose hunting opportunities and harvests are at near-record highs, we'd expected the goose hunting satisfaction numbers to be higher than those for duck hunting."

Another series of questions addressed hunters' attitudes toward the Youth Waterfowl Hunting Day. Most (63 percent) said the DNR should continue to offer the hunt, compared with 21 percent who favored ending the Youth Waterfowl Hunting Day. Another 15 percent were undecided. Of hunters favoring the youth hunt, 57 percent believed it should be two days long, and 33 percent preferred to maintain it at one day.

Hunters supporting the Youth Waterfowl Hunting Day generally did not believe it reduced hunter success on the regular season waterfowl opener (by scaring away local ducks). Those against the youth hunting day were more likely to say that having young hunters out on marshes worsened hunter success when the regular season opened two weeks later.

Hunters were split on their support for the opening day shooting commencing at noon and closing at 4 p.m., with 43 percent supporting and 43 percent opposing. Hunters supported restrictions on open water hunting (45 percent support vs. 22 percent oppose) and restrictions on outboard motor use (53 percent support vs. 21 percent oppose). The strangest opinion stated was support for creating waterfowl refuges (86 percent support vs. 3 percent oppose).

Some hunters believe Minnesota should reduce the duck or mallard hen bag limit below that currently offered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, but a majority of hunters responding to the survey did not support Minnesota unilaterally reducing the bag limit to less than six ducks (62 percent in favor vs. 19 percent against) or reducing the limit from two to one hen mallard (58 percent against vs. 25 percent for).

With the increased use of battery-powered spinning-wing duck decoys, the DNR also wanted to know what hunters thought about the devices. Survey results indicate that 10 percent of Minnesota waterfowl hunters used the battery-powered spinning-wing duck decoys last fall. In contrast, preliminary results from hunter surveys in Illinois and Louisiana indicate that 55 to 60 percent of those states' duck hunters used the animated decoys, which many hunters contend greatly increase hunting success.

If the devices were found to increase the duck harvest rate and might lead to shorter duck seasons or lower bag limits, 67 percent of those who had not used battery-powered decoys said they would support banning their use. In contrast, only 41 percent of hunters who had used the decoys would support a ban under those conditions.

Bremicker added that in addition to helping improve DNR waterfowl management, the survey results will help the agency measure the success of ongoing work to improve waterfowl hunting satisfaction in Minnesota.

Final report will be available to the public and will be posted on the DNR Web site in October.

Hunters should watch for anthrax

Northwestern deer hunters cautioned to avoid diseased deer

State wildlife and health officials are reminding deer hunters to take proper precautions when handling carcasses following the discovery of anthrax in dozens of cattle and two deer in northwestern Minnesota.

As of Aug. 31, approximately 70 dead cows had tested positive for anthrax at 18 sites among Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties. Also, a dead deer found in Kittson County and another in Roseau County both tested positive for anthrax.

Though deer likely have contracted anthrax before, these are the first confirmed Minnesota cases of deer contracting the disease in recent history.

Minnesota's archery deer season opens Sept. 15. Although the chances of a hunter contracting anthrax from venison are slim, state wildlife officials believe that it's possible for a deer hunter to encounter a diseased deer. State health officials emphasized that routine precautions for the safe handling of deer meat should greatly reduce any small risk that exists.

One of the oldest diseases known to humans, anthrax is caused by a type of bacteria known as Bacillus anthracis. When exposed to air, anthrax bacteria produce spores that can survive for many years in soil and then grow rapidly in warm, wet conditions. Animals become infected when bacteria or spores enter the body. Outbreaks occur usually in late summer during rainy weather.

Any warm-blooded animal can contract the disease, but it is most common in cattle and sheep. Outbreaks among cattle occur occasionally in Minnesota.

Risk of anthrax infection in humans is remote. No human cases have been reported in Minnesota for at least 20 years. When people do become infected, it is almost always because bacteria or spores have entered the body through a cut or an open sore. Most anthrax infections in humans are easily treated with antibiotics.

Because they may be handling the carcasses of infected animals, deer hunters may face a slightly higher-than-normal risk of infection, although the risk is still extremely low, say state health officials. In Minnesota, infected deer are most likely to be found in Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties.

It is highly unlikely that hunters will actually encounter a diseased deer, said Joe Marcino, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources pathologist, because any deer that do become infected will get sick and die within 24 hours.

Marcino added that the bacteria does not grow in cool weather, so the likelihood of deer contracting the disease will greatly decline as the deer hunting season progresses.

"Once the temperatures drop below 59 degrees, there's no growth of Bacillus anthracis," he said.

Hunters and others spending time in the outdoors in the affected counties can reduce risk by taking the following precautions:

■ People who see a dead deer should not handle the animal, but should note the animal's location and report it to the DNR by calling Joe Marcino at 651-296-3043.

■ Hunters should not shoot any deer that is staggering or otherwise behaving strangely, or that has an unusual appearance.

■ Hunters should not open up the carcass after shooting a deer with possible signs of illness, such as a swollen neck, open sores or lesions, or bleeding from the nose or anus. Leave the carcass and report the location to the DNR.

■ Even if a killed deer seems normal, hunters should wear rubber gloves when cleaning it, to reduce risk of infected fluids getting into open cuts and sores.

■ To further reduce any potential health risks, people should cook the meat thoroughly before eating it, in order to kill any disease causing organisms that may be present.

Minnesota health and wildlife officials continue to monitor the anthrax outbreak, and will advise hunters of any new developments that may affect their health and safety.

Hunters urged to review state's trespassing laws

Deer populations are at near record highs, more antlerless permits are available, and hunters this fall will have ample hunting opportunities with bow, firearms, muzzleloaders, and cameras. Like the state deer herd, Minnesota's largest organization dedicated to deer and deer hunting is also doing very well.

The Minnesota Deer Hunters Association is celebrating its 21st year, and the organization is busy getting the word out about the deer herd, safe hunting, and the organization itself.

While the MDHA has been in existence for over 20 years, MDHA Executive Director Mark Johnson says some people are not yet familiar with the hunting and conservation group dedicated to Minnesota's most popular game species.

With deer season approaching, Johnson and the 20,000 member organization hope to change that.

According to the organizations by-laws, the mission of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association is to achieve the best possible deer herd, promote high quality hunting, and protect hunting heritage through habitat, education and legislation.

"A lot of people think we are an offshoot of the DNR, or that we get our money from the DNR and deer license fees," Johnson said. "Actually we are a private organization, and not a governmental unit at all. We work with the DNR, and occasionally oppose them, depending on whether we consider DNR activities and policies to be beneficial to the deer herd and deer hunters."

As a non-profit organization, MDHA depends on membership dues and fundraisers to pay for its operations. Volunteers in the 60 chapters of MDHA conduct fundraising banquets, generating revenue for MDHA habitat, education and legislation programs. The deer group raises money for habitat projects through the Hides for Habitat program by collecting donated deer hides and selling them to leather companies. Nearly every dollar raised by MDHA for habitat is matched by other sources, including the DNR, US Fish and Wildlife Service, and other private organizations.

An elected board of directors represents twelve regions in the state, providing geographical balance to the statewide organization.

Representatives of the 60 chapters elect five officers at an annual meeting to fill out the Executive Board. The chapters also set an annual budget, debate and establish policy positions, and set the general direction of the organization.

Educating young people about firearms safety, ethical hunting, and sound wildlife management has been a focal point of MDHA educational activities.

They sponsor annual summer Forkhorn camps for young people, as well as support the DNR Firearms Safety program. They have produced a Large Mammal Curriculum package for agriculture and wildlife high school teachers to assist them in teaching about wildlife management, and host periodic clinics for adults.

Hides for Habitat program is the organization's primary habitat acquisition and improvement tool. By collecting donated deer hides, selling those hides, and dedicating the revenue to habitat work, MDHA has protected and improved thousands of acres of deer habitat and public hunting areas in the state. Successful hunters donated over 30,000 hides in 2000, and MDHA hopes to top that in 2001.

Unlike many conservation groups, MDHA has a lobbyist to represent its interests in the legislature. According to MDHA President Jim Martinetto, having MDHA and its lobbyist looking out for the interests of deer hunters is critical. "Anti-hunting groups and other special interests have an army of lobbyists in St. Paul every day," he said. "Having someone at the Capitol looking out for our interests specifically is an important safeguard."

Individuals interested in MDHA can refer to the center pages of the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, visit www.mndeerhunters.com <http://www.mndeerhunters.com>, or calling 1-800-450-DEER.

NOTICE

All Co-Rec Volleyball captains and players interested in having a volleyball team on Mondays or Wednesdays for the 2001-2002 season must attend the organizational meeting on Wednesday, September 19, at 7:00 p.m. in Room 101 at City Hall (Depot). The season will be starting the week of October 1. If you have any questions or if you cannot attend, please contact Murray Engelstad at 681-8287.

More PROGRESS in Thief River Falls
Congratulations!

Northwest Job Connection received a More Progress award from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce recently. Northwest Job Connection is a community-based employment service operating separately but in cooperation with the Occupational Development Center and the Adult Mental Health initiative of Pennington and Roseau counties, and Rehabilitation Services. It is a new and innovative community-based employability project for adults with serious and persistent mental illness. Participants are available for various positions and come to employers with the following services: free job trial to ensure position compatibility, on-site support as necessary, education regarding job accommodation, on-the-job occupational assessments, job seeking and keeping skills, transportation coordination, and Job Club participation (a support group to help develop skills to effectively deal with many work-related issues). Northwest Job Connection has offices in Thief River Falls and Roseau. Its office in Thief River Falls is located at 213 LaBree Avenue North, Suite 101. Pictured above during the presentation of the award are: (from left) Joe Kezar, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador, Sarah Engelsrud, Northern Lights Bookstore, Joanie Bakke, ODC program coordinator, Martha Logan, mental health employee coordinator for Northwest Job Connection, Kristi Kaushagen, job coach for Northwest Job Connection; and Kermit Generaux, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador.

Felicia R. Lundstrom, American Family Insurance representative in Thief River Falls, received a First Dollar award from the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors recently. Lundstrom operates an office at 103 Third Street East, Thief River Falls. American Family Insurance provides a full line of auto, home, business, health and life insurance as well as financial assistance. The American Family Insurance office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and Saturday by appointment. For more information about your insurance and financial needs call Lundstrom at 681-1102. Pictured above during the award presentation are: Kermit Genereux, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador, Felicia Lundstrom, Christy Stiernagle, and Joe Kezar, Chamber of Commerce Ambassador.

Eagles Club of Thief River Falls was awarded a Community Service Award from United Blood Services for their continued support and active participation in blood drives in Thief River Falls. Joy Miller (left), United Blood Services assistant donor care supervisor, presented the plaque to Kay Nelson and Mike Malby representing the Eagles Club.

Star

Mayme Johnson • 378-4333

Elva Fiedlers nephew, John Fiedler, Nick and Cameron of Cambridge and her nephew, Keith Fiedler of Circle Pine, came on Saturday and they all spent until Monday morning and then they all left for Rollaga along with Joe Fiedler on Monday.

Wednesday evening, visitors and lunch guests at the Merle and Donna Nesseth home were Jean Johnson, Michelle Johnson and her friend, Justin of Thief River Falls and Mayme Johnson.

Lorraine Waino attended a birthday party for Wendy Throne, Arlet Berry and Austin Throne at the water park at the Seven Clans Casino on Sunday afternoon. The guests included guests from Roseau and Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Ronnie Kaitbe attended the wedding for Jennifer Johnson and Brian Sargent at the Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls on Saturday afternoon and later in the evening Ronnie and Gail Kaiba also attended the wedding dance at the Community Center in Goodridge.

Labor Day weekend guests at the Leonard and Bernice Johnson home were Bob and Jeannie Johnson and Grace of Brainard, Mike and Parry Gwynn Mya and Michael of New York, Mills, Curtis and Karen Johnson of Detroit Lakes, Jim and Joy Johnson of Farmant, Richard and Sandra Johnson of Fosston, Mike and Michelle Curfman, Caleb and Emily of Crookston and Karl Johnson of Brainard. They also helped Leonard Johnson and Patty Gwynn celebrate their birthdays while they all were out here visiting. Happy Birthday Leonard and Patty!

Labor Day, in the evening, Andy, Joe and Otto Rubischka were visitors at the Clayton and Marlys Johnsrud home.

Tuesday afternoon, visitors and coffee guests at the Harry and Blanche Bolstad home in Thief River Falls were Darle Stato, her lady friend and Lauretta Slowa.

George Dahle brought birthday greetings to Kathy Hevel and a large birthday cake so they all enjoyed birthday cake and coffee together. Kathy also received birthday greetings from Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Havil on Tuesday night.

Mrs. Clifford Klamar • 459-3445

Saturday, Mike Wilbeski of Wannaska and Jim Avron visited at the Alan Severts home.

Visitors at the Gena Patorsen home during the week have been Boans and Alice Wender of Waubun, Tami Bratang, Austin, Ashley and Jordan of Grygla and Paul and Laura Klamar.

Saturday, Mrs. Arvin Dahl helped serve lunch at the Evert Westberg sale in the evening she attended the wedding of Derrick Gust and Jenny Dahlstrom at United Lutheran Church.

Sunday, Charlie and Ann Winger of Drayton and Ray and Eleanor McMillin visited at the Alan Severts home.

Dot Canfield, Tami and Tonya of McGregor spent Monday until Thursday at the Arvin Dahl home and helped Marvel celebrate her birthday.

Tuesday, Morgan and Hilary Dahl visited with Tami and Tonya at the Dahl home.

Tuesday, Arla and Lyla Peetznick of Middle River visited at the Alan Severts home. Milos Smith was an evening visitor.

On Thursday morning, August 23, LeRoy and Ruth Sustad headed out for Bluewater Covenant Bible Camp north of Grand Rapids. Except for highway construction, it was a perfect drive and beautiful weather. This was family camp weekend and it was perfect for all the campers. The speaker for the chapel service was Joel Rude from Twin Lakes and every morning was devotions and at evening, fireside fellowship at the beach. The teens also chimed in and the ducks were waiting for popcorn. It was a very enjoyable time for everyone. Following the Sunday morning chapel service, dinner was served and the Sustads loaded up their camper and headed back home.

Lloyd Ranum was a coffee guest at the LeRoy Sustad home on Monday afternoon.

Grandma and Grandpa had Bradley and Blake Sustad and Kasey Melvie and "Beethoven" over for treats on Tuesday afternoon.

Strandquist News

The weather in northwest Minnesota has brought this area many sunny days of late. Many storms have gone both north and south of us, holding the moisture until they are past us. When the temperature was in the low 30 degrees around us, it was in the low 40's here. I da wish we could have a couple of weeks more before any frost comes and we have to dig the dahlias. They have been gorgeous the last months.

The other morning we were listening to the news and the newscaster mentioned the oxymorons in the White House and in Congress. Roy was wondering what sort of animals or oxen it was and for what reason were they there. Were they planning to clone them or put them on the endangered species list? When he heard it meant the same as being told, "It hurts me more than it hurts you" when punishment is being meted out, he said, "It just depends on which end of the switch you were on, at the time." He had something there!

Bethesda Lutheran Church will be showing a movie during the fellowship dinner on Sunday, September 16th. Everyone is welcome to attend this presentation.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday with 2 visitors, Maria Braff and Walley Rud. The afternoon was spent visiting and enjoying lunch. Next Thursday they are laying out pieces for a quilt. Come and visit with us there, they always cook a good cup of coffee.

Judy Kleinvachter also turns out a great cup of coffee which generally calls for a second cup. This week her guests have been Pat Larson and Kalle, Vance, Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lafreoth, Marie Steffen, Kay Tumwess of St. Hilaire, June Kasprowicz, Claudia, Jessie, Kali and Cheyenne Berggren, Elmar Holmstrom, Evalyn Albaugh, Marlyn and Cash Jaszczak and children from Las Vegas, Nev., Larena Berggren and Chris Stock of Fargo.

Elsie Lafrooth has been canning and having company all week. Her guests for dinner Monday evening were Don and Austin Lafrooth. Sunday evening Pearl and Karen Thompson and during the week Gloria Renstrom, Elphie Adlis, Roy and I were to her house for one reason or another. Elsie is our seamstress so you can see we have our motives.

LaVarna Rasmussen of Frazee, his son Barry and grandson Tim from Chicago, visited Peter and Pearl Thompson and the Roy Vagles on Friday. Other visitors at Peter and Pearl's home this week were Jeremy Johnson and friend Lisa from the cities, David Thompson, LaVonne and Brian Johnson, and Becky Johnson.

Lloyd and Alyce Vagle of Elk River, and their daughter Valerie, a music teacher in Anoka, stopped in Karlstad and had dinner with Roy Vagles and visited Peter Thompson on their way home on Sunday. They had been to Roseau Friday and Saturday to attend the funeral for Alyce's brother's wife.

Labor Day weekend guests at Paul and Shirley Anderson's were David, Jenny and Bethany Janssen of New Ulm and Kristopher and Kenrick Anderson.

Friday, Eve Bernard and Morris and Hazel Anderson came to visit with the Janssens. Friday evening visitors were Gloria Renstrom, Ellen Johnson and Ken, Nancy and Ericka Pegnac. Saturday Rev. Morris and Naomi Janssen and Amie Manning of Ely and Corey Wollin of Greenbush were supper guests at the Andersons.

Sunday, Bethany Christine Janssen was dedicated at the Gospel Tabernacle. Grandpa Rev. Morris Janssen conducted the service. Later dinner guests at Paul and Shirley's home were David, Jenny and Bethany Jensson, Kristopher and Kenrick Anderson, Rev. Morris and Naomi Janssen, Amie Manning, Eva Bernard, Morris and Hazel Anderson, Keith, Kathy and Allison Britten, Cindy Hagen and Dillon, Roy and I were out in the afternoon, so we could hold little Bethany.

Monday, David, Jenny and Baby Bethany returned to New Ulm and Kristopher and Kenrick Anderson both started for Houston, Texas with their semis.

Improvement in bond rating is positive news

Congratulations to the City of Thief River Falls for obtaining a Baa2 bond rating. You may be wondering what that means. In layman terms, it means less of our taxes will be used to retire future debt, and fewer dollars will be needed to pay debt service costs of several existing bond issues.

Thief River Falls' bond rating of Baa3 was established by Moody's Investors Service in 1997 as a result of demands for an expansion of their rating system that would make finer risk distinctions. Several factors played a role in rating the city at the low end of the investment grade bonds in 1997, but the primary reason had to do with a heavy debt load. Tuesday, the City Council was informed that the investor service the city utilizes, Moody's Investors Service, had assigned a Baa2 rating to the city.

Those individuals who are fond of criticizing the way the city manages its finances will have to swallow their pride. There are things we can control, and many things we cannot control, but I believe the hard work of city staff and council representatives and their demands to hold the line on the city's bonded debt and future bonding are paying off. (The city hasn't been to the bond market since 1997.)

Several reasons were given for the upgrade. A report from Moody's states that one reason for the upgrade is that they believe the city's above average debt burden, which included the overlapping debt of the school district and county, will continue to moderate. Another reason is that Moody's anticipates that the city's financial position will remain satisfactory, despite recent budgetary pressures, and because of improved reserve levels and continued support from enterprise funds (liquor and electricity). In addition, Moody's expects that the city's limited economy will remain stable due to increased diversification. Although still limited in scope, the city's economy has shifted in recent years away from agriculture and agricultural-related business into a more diversified economy that includes manufacturing, health care, education and government. They see this as positive.

> Don't misconstrue the message here to mean that taxes will decline. It does mean that the city will be more competitive in bonding for future improvement projects.

Don't misconstrue the message here to mean that taxes will decline. It does mean that the city will be more competitive in bonding for future improvement projects.

Not only does the rating apply to the current bond issue it also applies to the existing $7.96 million in outstanding parity debt. It also means fewer taxes will be used to pay down the refunded bond issues. City officials and a representative of Moody's called this "very positive."

Another example of the "positive" value of this new rating was observed almost immediately. The upgraded bond rating allowed the city to obtain favorable bids on the issuance of $2,755,000 in general obligation bonds, which the council approved on Tuesday. A portion of this bond issuance will be used on refunding of four outstanding issues, which will result in an estimated net present value savings of $53,000. In addition, the upgraded bond rating resulted in competition for the bonds and a very low interest rate of 4.01 percent.

Yes, unless you're directly involved in the financial services industry, this is difficult to understand, and I have to thank Roger DeLap, city administrator, for helping me work through this editorial. I do understand, and every other resident should understand, that this new bond rating is very positive for Thief River Falls and its taxpaying residents.

Don't judge too quickly

There is temptation to make a snap decision about the proposed levy referendum for School District 564. After all, it wasn't too long ago that they were asking us to approve a levy referendum for operating revenue; and, it wasn't too long before that that they were asking us to approve a levy referendum to construct the new elementary school.

However, we should wait and collect all the information available to us before making a decision. A number of things have changed, specifically the funding formula for schools, and property taxes.

I encourage you to read all that you can about the proposal and contact your school board representative.

Back to school expense

Back to school and to changes

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

With the Labor Day holiday behind us and the hours of daylight growing shorter every day, children across the state went back to school this week. Students, parents and teachers will notice a few changes in school budgets and policies, compliments of the 2001 Legislature and Governor Ventura.

Here are some of the most notable changes:

Alternative Teacher Compensation. The Legislature came to agreement on a new program that encourages school districts and teachers to abandon the traditional teacher compensation program, which is based on years of service. Instead, there will be extra money available for schools and teachers who agree to create a performance-incentive pay system instead. This is a pilot program, and it's expected that a half-dozen schools in the state will take part in this experiment. Lessons learned by these pilot districts could serve as a new model for paying teachers based on the outcomes of their work.

Removing or Dismissing Unruly Students. A law change spells out the circumstances for removing a student from the classroom, and makes removal easier. Additional new language requires parents to be notified and calls for scheduling a meeting if a child is removed from class more than 10 times in a school year.

Students Who Use Asthma Medications. Student asthma sufferers are allowed to possess and use asthma inhalers on school grounds. In the past, school enforcement of zero-tolerance drug policies meant that asthma sufferers were prohibited from having their medications with them. Students can now self-administer asthma medication without having to go to the nurse's office to retrieve their inhaler.

Teacher Shortages. Two bills were passed this session to help ease the state's teacher shortage. The first brings flexibility to changes made in Minnesota's teacher licensure rules and delays implementation of new teacher training rules. The second change expedites the licensing application, issuance and denial deadlines to 30 days. A new web-based computer system will better serve schools and teachers in knowing the status of teacher licenses, and in processing license applications.

Early Graduation for High School Seniors. Seniors graduating in 2003 and finishing all required courses and standards now have the option to graduate early. Parents and schools must approve. Under the new law, school districts will not lose funding for the graduating student and can divert the aid toward all-day kindergarten programs. The purpose of this change is to allow seniors to get a head start on post-high school education or employment, or to get a job to save money for college.

School District Budgets Must Be Structurally Balanced. Compromise language was reached in an effort to ensure that school boards do not enter into labor agreements that cause "structural imbalance" to the district's budget. School boards must use "reasonable and comprehensive projections of ongoing revenues and expenditures to determine structural balance" for the period of the contract agreement. School boards must also show budget costs and revenue projections for one year beyond their approved labor contracts.

State buy-out of voter approved levies. Earlier this year, I was honored to be selected as the Chairman of the Senate committee that writes the education budget for our state's schools.

In my job as the new chairman, I noticed that although the statewide average voter-approved school levy is close to $500 per pupil, many rural school districts did not have the resources to pass such high levies. As a result, students in property-poor school districts were getting short-changed. I succeeded in convincing my colleagues that this wasn't fair.

In the 2002 school year, the state will eliminate the first $415 per pupil of every school district's voter-approved excess levy. Schools will then receive an increase in their state aid of $415 per pupil. Schools with levies of less than $415 per pupil will receive a funding increase, while schools that have excess levies of $415 per pupil or more will not lose any funding. Also, all of the smaller, sparsely-populated rural school districts will see increases in their state revenues as a result of this policy.

While school district finances will be tight for all of the state's schools over the next two years, 2002 should be a bit better for most schools in Northwest Minnesota.

Good luck to all students, parents, teachers and school staff for a great school year. If you have questions or comments regarding education legislation passed in the 2001 session, or thoughts about possible law changes in the 2002 Legislative Session, please e-mail me at sen.leroy.stumpf@senate.leg.state.mn.us) or call me at (651) 296-5312.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vote "Yes" on toll free calling option

To the Editor:

I am a student at Greenbush/Middle River School and am writing to ensure that all local people are aware of the potential benefits to be had by voting "yes" for Extended Area Service (EAS). This toll free calling option would serve citizens in the Gatzke, Middle River, Strathcona, and Greenbush areas.

A fellow student and I had the opportunity to do a school project regarding this proposal. As a result of our research, I am very much in favor of it. I also discovered, through a random telephone sampling, that many other people in the local vicinity responded favorably when made aware of the benefits that this proposal has to offer these communities. I feel that an expanded calling area of toll free service would benefit most people in the area for several reasons.

An expanded local calling area within our school district would benefit both teachers and students. When students have questions about homework and projects, friends and parents are not always able to answer them. These are times when talking directly to the teacher would be very helpful. Also, group project assignments are quite common, with group members being from different calling areas. Coordination and planning of these projects often requires several phone calls. Extra-curricular activities also require planning, car pooling, etc. In addition, there should be some consideration given to students' friendships and socialization. Instead of seeing friends from other towns only at school, the bond of friendships could be strengthened without the burden of paying expensive long distance phone charges. A "yes" vote for EAS would be more beneficial for students in our local schools.

Not only schools, but churches too, would realize benefits from an expanded local calling area. Several parishes in the area have one pastor/priest serving more than one church. In my case, Thief Lake and Gatzke are both pastored by Pastor Sandra Hollands. Gatzke and Middle River are long distance for each other and calling people for joint services, meetings, VBS, newsletter items, youth group, scheduling, etc. really adds up. Voting YES for an expanded toll free calling area would save a lot of money that could be put toward something else within the church.

Some local people no longer have children in the local school system or do not have children yet and may not see why this bill is important. Some people might think, "This doesn't affect me. Why should I vote 'yes?' It will only cost me more money." I ask everyone to please remember that we are all really one community. We all depend upon each other in one way or another. Expanded local calling should be thought of as an investment.

In the end, this proposal could possibly bring benefits that we haven't even thought about yet. We all want our children to receive the best educational opportunities and to be as well rounded as possible. The EAS proposal has the potential to enhance our relationships with other people from other towns, positively influencing our schools, businesses, and communities. Please take time to consider the benefits of an expanded toll free calling area. Please vote "yes!"

Sincerely,
Erin Lee Telander

New school budgets to provide test of expected accountability

As students returned to classes this week, many school district officials across the state began informing parents about budget cuts for the upcoming year. In addition, as many as 200 school districts may propose increasing property taxes through referendums that would have to be approved by voters on November 6.

"The property tax reform and K-12 funding legislation approved earlier this year were supposed to help parents and taxpayers hold their local schools more accountable," said Morgan Brown, executive director of the Minnesota Education League.

"How Minnesotans respond to all the talk about school budget cuts and local tax increases is the first real test of these new accountability improvements," said Brown.

"Despite the claims of some school officials, the state's education budget of $8.7 billion was increased by $381 million," said Brown. "In many school districts, budget cuts are being made not because of a reduction in state funding, but because of poor fiscal management, declining student enrollment, or other local issues.

> School budget priorities are often misplaced. — Morgan Brown

"School budget priorities are often misplaced," continued Brown. "The Minneapolis School District is laying-off teachers, but has hired the mayor's husband for a new bureaucracy job with an $80,000 salary and six weeks vacation. Another district laid-off a teacher who had just been named the state's social studies teacher of the year.

"If you have a school district that is spending more on travel expenses than on textbooks, that's a good indicator there is a problem," said Brown. He encouraged parents to ask school officials questions such as: What percentage of spending goes directly to the classroom? How many of your district's staff are non-teaching personnel? How much of the budget goes to administrative expenses?

Brown also urged parents to carefully examine referendum proposals. "Too often, school districts break their promises about how referendum revenues were to be spent and instead use them to avoid making tough budgeting decisions," he said.

The Minnesota Education League is a non-profit, non-partisan, grassroots organization dedicated to increasing real accountability, student achievement, and parental choice in education.

Forget-Me-Nots To Be Sold Here Saturday

"Auxiliary unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Thief River Falls will conduct a sale of forget-me-nots Friday evening, September 14, and all day Saturday for the benefit of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV), Mrs. Emmett Israelson, president of the local unit, announced today.

"She quoted a message from Vivian O. Corbly, national adjutant of the DAV, who states, 'We have now reached a period when the public is apt to take the disabled veteran for granted. Many persons mistakenly believe that the disabled veteran is well cared for and that they can forget him. It is important that everyone purchase and wear in his buttonhole the little blue flower of remembrance.'"

Good Weather For Harvest Prevails

"After a long period of rainy weather, the weather cleared last Friday, and since then excellent progress has been made with belated harvest operations. Temperatures have been warm, the mercury ranging as high as 74 Tuesday afternoon, with a low of 47 last Friday morning. Rainfall of .88 inch was recorded last Wednesday at Station KTRF with an additional .08 inch arriving Thursday."

4-Way Stop Signs At High School

"Four-way stop signs have been installed at the intersection of Knight avenue and First street, adjoining Lincoln high school, Police reported this week, at the same time warning local motorists to heed the signs. With the resumption of school sessions, the school patrol again is functioning at Main avenue and First street, while students are coming to and leaving the high school."

1,000-h.p. Unit In City Power Plant Fails August 30

"For the second time in two years, the 1,000-horsepower Busch-Sulzer Diesel unit in the municipal power plant was put out of commission August 30 as a result of a broken connecting rod, smashing the crankcase of the unit. Plant personnel currently are making a study of the engine to determine what to do with it. City Clerk P. G. Pederson stated that the last repair job cost approximately $13,000.

"There was no interruption in service following the breakdown, as three other units, two of them larger than the disabled engine, as well as two water turbines, are available to provide current."

DAILY PASSENGER
One To Be Put on This Branch In Two Weeks.

"The Great Northern has decided to put a daily passenger train on this branch, commencing in about two weeks, or as soon as a new time card can be issued. This will be good news to the people of this city, and the improved train service will be greatly appreciated. The freight train will also run every day.

"The time schedule has not yet been given out but the new train will, in all probability, be started from Crookston after the arrival of the Duluth line train at 9 a.m., and return in time to bring passengers to connect with No. 13 westbound that leaves Crookston at 4:49 in the afternoon. The mixed train will likely leave earlier in the day returning at about the time it now does."

SCHOOL OPEN
Total Enrollment The First Day Is 483.

"The public schools were opened for the fall term Monday. The total enrollment the first day was only 403, but it is thought that this number will be increased to over 500 before Christmas."

News from the Demarais family

Megan Demarais, who attends dance lessons at Mary Noel's School of Dance in Crookston, attended the 2001 Dance Olympics dance camp held in Minneapolis. The camp is led by nationally known instructors and choreographers. The children danced from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily. Evenings were spent swimming or at the Mall of America for fun and shopping.

Ryan Demarais recently returned from a trip to the East Coast where he attended the 2001 Boy Scout Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill, Va. Ryan and many of the boys went on an extended tour to New York City, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. Some of the sights they saw were the Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island, Old North Church, the Ford Theater and many monuments dedicated to our veterans. They viewed 'Phantom of the Opera' on Broadway and Ryan ate a 'Philly Cheesesteak' sandwich. All in all, he's glad to be back in Minnesota where he is still sharing stories of the fun and experiences and new friendships.

Joel Demarais left August 23 to serve on the NET ministry team based in St. Paul. He is beginning a five-week training period. With his teammates he will travel around the USA. He is excited to be meeting new people and serving the church. He also hopes to see various parts of the country before completing his tour in May.

Joel and Ryan attended the Order of the Arrow fall conclave held at Camp Wilderness August 17 through 19. This is sometimes explained as the "Boy Scout Honor Society". Joel was surprised and honored by receiving the Vigil Rank, the highest one to be given in the order. Congratulations, Joel!

NOTICE AND ORDER OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR FORMAL ADJUDICATION OF INTESTACY, DETERMINATION OF HEIRSHIP, APPOINTMENT OF PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE AND NOTICE TO CREDITORS

It is ordered and notice is given that on October 9, 2001, at 10:00 o'clock A.M., a hearing will be held in this court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the adjudication of intestacy and determination of heirship of the Decedent, and for the appointment of Brian K. Rokke, whose address is 107 West Johnson Avenue, Warren, MN 56762, as personal representative of the Estate of the Decedent in a supervised administration. Any objections to the Petition must be filed with the Court prior to or raised at the hearing. If proper and if no objections are filed or raised, the personal representative will be appointed with full power to administer the Estate, including the power to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses, to sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the Estate.

Notice is also given that (subject to Minn. Stat. 524.3-801) all creditors having claims against the Estate are required to present the claims to the personal representative or to the Court Administrator within four months after the date of this Notice or the claims will be barred.

INVITATION FOR BIDS SNAKE RIVER WATERSHED CONSTRUCTION OF FLOODWAY CHANNEL AND ROCK CHUTE, MARSHALL COUNTY, MN SOLICITATION NO. MRSRWD-2001-01 ISSUED BY: MIDDLE RIVER SNAKE RIVER WATERSHED DISTRICT NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given, that sealed bids in a single copy, for the work described herein, will be received at the office of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District at 453 North McKinley Street in Warren, Minnesota until 1:00 o'clock p.m. local time October 3, 2001. Mailing address: Ronald Adrian, Contracting Officer, Middle River Snake River Watershed District, at 453 North McKinley Street, Box 154, Warren, MN 56762.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the office of the Secretary of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District, at 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota 56762 upon payment of $50.00.

Said work includes the construction of approximately 5,400 feet of channel and the construction of a rock rip rap chute near Warren, Minnesota and includes quantities estimated as follows: Excavation-234,000 cu yds, Seeding-46 acres; Mulching-47 acres; Turf Reinforcement-9,800 sq yds; Geotextile Fabric-5,800 sq yds; F&I CSP-490 LF; F&I Rip-5,456 tons; F&I Rock Bedding-1,065 tons; F&I Gravel-1,400 cu yds; F&I Flap Gates-3 units.

The total Engineer's estimate is $801,400. No bids will be entertained in which the aggregate exceeds the estimated cost by more than 30 percent. All work shall be completed within 85 calendar days after the date of receipt of notice to proceed.

Bids must be submitted in a sealed envelope and be on forms furnished by the Middle River / Snake River Watershed District. Each bid must be accompanied by a bid bond or certified check payable to the Middle River Snake River Watershed District for not less than ten percent of the amount bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if successful, will enter into a contract for the work as described in the proposal. The certified check or bid bond must be submitted in a sealed envelope separate from the bid. The certified checks or bid bonds of the three lowest responsible bidders will be retained until a contract has been entered into but no longer than 90 calendar days from the date of the opening of the bids.

It is the intent of the District to award the contract for the work described to the lowest responsible bidder who will be required to execute a formal contract. The bidder will be required to furnish the Middle River Snake River Watershed District a performance bond and a payment bond in the penal sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%), each, of the original amount of the contract. Corporations executing the bonds and sureties must be among those appearing on the U.S. Treasury Department's list of approved sureties. In addition the successful bidder will be required to furnish certificates of insurance for workers' compensation and liability insurance.

Prospective Bidders may assemble at the Office of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District at the above address in Marshall County, MN on September 18, 2001 for a group showing of the work. The group showing will start at 9:00 a.m. If you are unable to attend the group show, arrangements to inspect the site may be made with Mr. Ronald Adrian, Contracting Officer, Middle River Snake River Watershed District, 453 North McKinley Street, Box 154, Warren, MN 56762, phone (218) 745-4741.

The right to adjourn the letting of the contract to a time and place other than noted herein, or to reject any and all bids, is reserved.

Fall sports season brings changes to Lincoln High School, Northland College programs

A number of changes were in place when the 2001 fall sports season got underway at Lincoln High School and Northland Community and Technical College.

At Northland, two new head coaches and a new athletic director were appointed, but all three individuals were already on campus.

A new head coach was needed to fill a void in the girls swimming program at Lincoln, and conference affiliation has helped ease what had become an increasingly difficult task of filling a football schedule for the Prowlers.

Northland

Guy Finstrom is in his first year as the head football coach at Northland; Rick Nikunen takes over the Pioneers' men's and women's golf program; and Mike Zachow was recently appointed the interim athletic director at the two-year school.

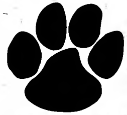
However, none of them are new on campus.



Finstrom was an assistant football coach and Northland's head baseball coach during the 2000-01 school year. He inherited the football job from Dan Willoughby, who resigned after leading the Pioneers to a Northern Division title last fall.

Nikunen has been a coach in both the men's and women's athletic department at Northland since the 1992-93 school year. He gave up his post as head women's basketball coach to take a similar job with the men's program two years ago, and this spring stepped down as head softball coach. He was the head golf coach before Jim Strandlie took the job in 2000, but took over the reigns again this year.

Northland has sent three golfers to the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III national tournament the past two years. The Minnesota Community College Conference offers a fall golf schedule, but national qualifiers have to wait until the following spring to play in the NJCAA tournaments.

Zachow has been head volleyball and head women's basketball coach at Northland since the 1998-99 school year. This year the Wisconsin native added another title when he agreed to serve as the Pioneers' interim athletic director following the resignation of Rick Nelson.

Northland athletic director since 1985, Nelson stepped down this summer to accept a job at Century College in White Bear Lake.

A new twist in fall sports at Northland is the switch from 15-point volleyball games to 30-point rally-scoring. As in the past, regular season matches are 3-out-of-5 affairs. Most invitational meets will be 2-out-of-3. A regular season match tied at 2-2 or a tournament match tied at 1-1 will be decided by a 15-point rally-scoring game.

The NCAA and NJCAA adopted the international scoring system this year, but modified it from 25 to 30-point games. The new scoring format isn't expected to add significantly to the length of a match, time-wise. It will, however, put additional pressure on the server – teams will lose a match on a final serve miss.

Another change in college volleyball makes a serve live and playable even if it hits the net. In the past, a net serve ended play.

Regular season results will determine if Northland teams will make post-season appearances in football and volleyball.

The MCCC football playoffs will include the Saturday, Oct. 27, semifinals and the Saturday, Nov. 3, championship game at St. Cloud State University.

Qualifiers will advance to the MCCC state volleyball tournament Friday and Saturday, Oct. 26-27, at Rochester.

Lincoln

The only head coaching change this fall at Lincoln finds Jill Buck directing the girls swimming program. A former Prowler swimmer, Back takes over for Mary Helen Houlihan, who stepped down at the end of the 2000-2001 school year.

It's the fifth change in the swimming coaching staff over the past eight years. Ryan Lokken left after the 1994 season; Scott Hetherington filled the void in 1995; Brian Olson and Shon Thompson were co-head coaches in 1996; Thompson carried the title of head coach in 1997 and 1998; and Houlihan had the job in 1999 and 2000.

The rest of the Prowlers' head coaches this fall are Chad Persons, boys and girls cross country; Sylvia Sjoberg, girls tennis; Jeff Mumm, football; Erika Jensen and Kelly Skeim, volleyball.

A major change for the Lincoln athletic department occurred in February when School District 564 Board of Education approved the Prowlers' proposed membership in the Sea Range Conference for football.

It's the first time since the 1970s when the Prowlers belonged to the Northwest Athletic Conference, along with Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Roseau, and later Fergus Falls, that Thief River Falls finds itself playing regular season league games in football.

Jeff Mumm

Erika Jensen

Kelly Skeim

Jim Sims

Thief River Falls sought out a conference to alleviate an on-going problem of filling out a schedule. Long-time rivals Crookston, East Grand Forks and Bemidji all play in different classifications than the Prowlers, and they have given preference to scheduling sectional foes to make post-season seeding decisions easier. Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes, facing the same problem as Thief River Falls, jumped at the opportunity to join the Central Lakes Conference. The Prowlers were left with too many open dates to fill each fall.

With conference ties and automatic calendar dates to work with, the schedule headache has all but disappeared for Mumm and Jim Sims, Director of Student Activities for School District 564.

However, the solution has come with a price. Miles. Lots of them. Outside of Thief River Falls, Sea Range teams are located in northeastern Minnesota – producing match-ups with three Duluth schools (Denfeld, East, Central), Grand Rapids, Proctor, Cloquet, and Hibbing. To pick up an eighth team, the Prowlers wound up booking another long trip, to Albany, to open the schedule.

When post-season playoffs arrive, Mumm will have to sell his team to opposing schools in Section 8AAAA – Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Rocori, Sartell-St. Stephen, Sauk Rapids-Rice, Little Falls – since the Prowlers don't play any of them during the regular season.

Section 8AAAA football playoffs include the Tuesday, Oct. 23, quarterfinals; Saturday, Oct. 27, semifinals; and Thursday, Nov. 1, championship game at the Fargodome.

Boys and girls Section 8AA cross country meet will be held Thursday, Oct. 25, at Brainerd.

North Sub-Section 8AAA volleyball tournament includes the quarterfinals Thursday, Oct. 25; semifinals Saturday, Oct. 27; and championship match Thursday, Nov. 1. The winner will advance to the Section 8AAA finals Saturday, Nov. 3.

Section 8A girls swimming and diving championships will be held Friday and Saturday, Nov. 9-10, at Bemidji State University.

North Sub-Section 8AA girls tennis tournaments will be played at the indoor facilities in Grand Forks, N.D. – individual matches Wednesday, Oct. 10, and team competition Thursday, Oct. 11. The Grand Forks facility will also host the Section 8AA tournament Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 16-17, with team title match set the first day, followed by the individual singles and doubles competi-

Flock to the Fun at the Goose Fest

"Flock to the Fun in 2001" is the theme for this year's three-day Goose Festival celebration in Middle River.

Event activities begin with a blood pressure clinic and pancake dinner at 11 a.m. sponsored by the Middle River Senior Citizens. The Sportsmen's Club opens its beer garden at 3 p.m. and club members plan to serve their famous pork sandwiches along with other goodies all weekend. The Legion Auxiliary will serve a Friday evening meal at the Hans Lien Legion Club.

Saturday will be hopping with non-stop activities for all ages. Be sure to find a good spot to view the parade as it makes its way through town starting at noon. Local musicians have spent hours practicing their musical instruments and march steps in preparation for the appearance of the Community Band in the parade. Many new activities have been added to this year's lineup. Minnesota Waterfowl Association will conduct a wood duck house-building seminar for children. Everyone will have fun participating in the Iron Man Obstacle Course, Bungee Run, the Joust or the Croyon Bounce while older kids can participate in the paintball games. The Wild Goose Cook-off and goose calling competitions will be held right on Main Street this year. Practice your calling or perfect that goose recipe and enter the competition.

The activities continue right through Sunday. Once again, First National Bank will host a pancake breakfast, free to all Goose Festival button holders. North Country Horsemen have planned special events for all afternoon at the arena on west County road 6. There will be a tractor pull at 1 p.m. north of the elevator and an afternoon music fest will be held at the American Legion.

Throughout the weekend, local organizations and area food vendors will serve their specialties. Lefsa, fresh off the griddle, can be purchased at the Davidson building where the craft sale/flea market runs throughout the weekend. Baked goodies can be purchased at the Spruce Valley Community Center, on Saturday and the Thief Lake Church and United Lutheran ladies will be serving food from 9 a.m, to 3 p.m. in the afternoon. The Middle River Community Theater production of The Quilters will present performances on

Northwest to end TRF air service

■ Northwest wants to continue service with federal subsidy

by David Hill
Editor

Monday, Northwest Airlines filed a notice to withdraw service at Thief River Falls Regional Airport with the United States Department of Transportation. This does not mean service from the air carrier at the airport stops automatically. A 90-day negotiation period now begins, and Northwest has indicated that it would accept a federal Extended Air Service subsidy to continue air service to the community.

During the 90-day period Thief River Falls can apply for a federal Essential Air Service subsidy. Although the process allows Northwest Airlines the right of refusal, Bob Benner, director of State and Local Affairs for Northwest Airlines, has indicated that the company would accept a federal subsidy to continue service to Thief River Falls.

"We're all apprehensive about what's going to happen," said Sen. LeRoy Stumpf who is working on the matter. "It's important not to over react. Things change."

Don Stewart, Thief River Falls community development director, explained that the city has been aware of Northwest's concerns about ridership at Thief River Falls Regional Airport for some time. Stewart said that it's important for everyone to realize that it's not over.

A meeting that involved representatives of the City of Thief River Falls, Arctic Cat, Digi-Key, and legislative representatives, was held in Thief River Falls on Friday, August 31. At that meeting a representative of Northwest told them they were "considering filing notice to withdraw service at the end of September."

Dale Wennberg, Thief River Falls City Council vice mayor, said that he was "really, really surprised at Northwest."

At the meeting in August, Wennberg said the representative at the meeting was unaware of a number of issues. Wennberg said he was under the impression that the Northwest representative was going to look into those issues and get back to Thief River Falls with their response before proceeding with plans to discontinue service.

Benner said Monday that he listened to their concerns and Round-Up grant applications due

Organizations involved in community projects and charities are encouraged to apply for funds from Operation Round Up at this time. Completed grant applications are due in the Red Lake Electric Cooperative office Friday, October 12, 2001.

Operations Round Up is a program adopted by Red Lake Electric Cooperative headquartered in Red Lake Falls. Customers choosing to "round up" their monthly electric bill payment provided funds for this effort. Over 3,400 Red Lake Electric customers are now choosing to contribute pennies each month to enhance their communities.

Funds will be donated primarily to nonprofit organizations to help fund their specific projects or programs. Since the program began in 1993, $151,348 has been granted to community organizations and charities. Money is donated for betterment of the community within the outside service area boundaries of Red Lake Electric Cooperative.

The Red Lake Electric Trust Board of Directors determines grants. Board members are Orlan Stolaas, Oklee; Joyce Johnson, Viking; and Terry Weiss, Veral Mosbeck and Ron Kennedy, all of Red Lake Falls.

To apply for Operation Round Up grants, organizations should contact the Red Lake Electric office in Red Lake Falls at 218-253-2168 or 1-800-245-6068. A short application must be completed and submitted along with a finance statement from the organization.

For more information, contact Ron Kennedy, general manager of Red Lake Electric Cooperative at 253-2168 or 1-800-245-6068.

Local man faces picture of disaster

■ "It was a nice picture, and now part of it is gone" — Glenn Espe

by Kathi Carlsan
Reporter

Had he turned his head, Glenn Espe would have witnessed part of the tragedy that turned our world upside down last Tuesday.

Instead, he was keeping his eyes of the road while attempting to maneuver the 40-foot bus he was driving through heavy morning traffic.

The retired Thief River Falls elementary school principal is fulfilling wh. he says is a childhood dream as a part-time employee of Transit Tec, Inc. of St. Cloud. The company provides a delivery service for bus manufacturers, including Motor Coach Industries (MCI) of Pembina, N.D., New Flyer of Crookston and ABC of Orlando, Fla.

In the year that Glenn has worked for Transit Tech, he says he has made about 65 trips to the east and west coasts. A trip to California takes three days while a delivery to the east coast required two-and-a-half days. Another day is added to every run for his trip home by air.

Glenn was delivering an MCI bus to Jersey City, N.J. on Tuesday, September 11, and was on a highway just across the bay, a distance of a mile to a mile-and-a-half, heading toward Jersey City when terrorists commandeered and crashed airplanes into the Twin Towers of the World Trade Center.

Glenn says that he had noticed that the first tower was burning and had he not been watching the road, would have seen the airplane hit the second tower.

The frustrating traffic situation he was in, however, required almost all of his attention. It was a three- to four-hour situation that he would find would intensify and get worse as the vehicles of emergency

Area counties agree to expand fraud prevention program

Pennington County Social Services along with the surrounding county human service agencies of Marshall, Kittson, Norman, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau have entered into a cooperative agreement to expand the Fraud Prevention Investigation (FPI) program. An investigator from the Wisconsin office of O'Brien and Associates is already in the region to help enhance the fraud control efforts that the counties presently in place.

Marshall County will act as the host administrative agency of the program. Marshall County received the grant from the Minnesota Department of Human Services to provide the program.

With the addition of these counties, a total of 56 Minnesota county human service agencies are participating in this welfare fraud prevention program.

The FPI program is an investigating process based on a team approach involving county financial workers and fraud prevention investigators. Marshall County elected to contract with a licensed private investigative agency, O'Brien and Associates, to provide the fraud prevention investigation services.

The primary focus of FPI is to quickly resolve issues of questionable eligibility in Minnesota's public assistance programs: Food Stamps, Minnesota Family Investment Program, Medical Assistance, and Child Care Assistance. Early intervention in resolving issues of questionable eligibility results in a more timely denial of applications and termination of benefits to ineligible recipients.

Since its inception as a pilot program in 1991, the FPI program has proven to be a cost effective process for disqualifying individuals who purposely violate program rules, identifying and establishing program overpayments, and reducing/terminating benefits. In calendar year 2000, investigators found discrepancies in 5,053 of the 7,456 cases investigated. As a result, benefits were reduced, denied, or terminated in 2,865 of the cases investigated. This resulted in a savings, overpayments, and disqualifications, a positive cost benefit ratio of $3.75 was realized for every dollar used to fund the effort.

All of the counties in this expansion are excited to be involved with the FPI program, according to a news release from the local office. FPI will enable the counties to quickly and cost effectively resolve reports of suspected welfare fraud. This in turn will decrease the amount of fraudulently obtained assistance.

Officials with human services are asking the public to help if they think someone is cheating, by reporting it. This can be done anonymously. To report suspected fraud, contact your local county social service agency or call the Minnesota Fraud Hotline at 1-800-627-9977.

Gary and Grant Gullekson, 52 cows, 92 percent in milk, producing an average of 59 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein; 12. Schafer Farms, 23 cows, 83 percent in milk, producing an average 59 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein; 13. E. Duane and Faith Knott, 101 cows, 92 percent in milk, producing an average of 58 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat, and 1.6 pounds of protein; 14. Goodvue Ayr Farms II, 49 cows, with 94 percent in milk, producing an average of 57 pounds of milk, 2.0 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein; 15. Wayne Nelson, 40 cows, 83 percent in milk, producing an average of 55 pounds of milk, 1.8 pounds of fat and 1.7 pounds of protein.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low, even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

Area residents participate in Inline Marathon

Several area residents participated in the Sixth Annual Northshore Inline Marathon on Saturday, September 15. While 4,200 registered for the event, about 3,270 people participated in it.

After much discussion, the marathon committee decided to go ahead with Saturday's race, despite the tragic events of Tuesday, September 11. The committee chairman stated they "took some heat" for not cancelling, but they believed people needed to begin getting on with their lives doing something positive.

The Inline Marathon consists of four categories: Pro, Advanced, Fitness and Recreational.

The winner, Pro Skater Oerek Oowning of Suwanee, Georgia, completed the course in 1 hour, 5 minutes 21.7 seconds. Oowning skates for the Verducci USA Pro Team.

Known area participants included: Chad θroadwell 1:45:17; Gordon A. Campbell 1:51:50; Jenny Hanestad 1:50.34; Troy W. Hanestad 1:37:12; Gary O. Laidley 1:42:59; Janet S. Nelson 1:58:14; Ray M. Nelson 1:43:40; and Ronald A. Stordahl 2:47:07.

Former Thief River Falls participants in the event included Stefan T. Ronchetti 1:16:45; and Tom P. Ronchetti 1:33:40.

The weather on race day was near perfect — 50 degrees at 7:30 a.m. and virtually no wind.

Participants are grouped in waves of about 300 skaters and are started at two-minute intervals. The Pro division begins first followed by Advanced, Fitness and Recreational skaters.

The race course starts at Two Harbors, and ends at the Duluth Entertainment Convention Center along the waterfront in downtown Duluth. All traffic is diverted from the course, which is swept and inspected prior to the start time Saturday morning.

Duluth Mayor Gary Doty, competing in his fifth North Shore Inline Marathon, fell 19 miles into the marathon. He was scheduled for surgery at 8 a.m. Monday to repair two torn ligaments in his right shoulder.

He stated his arm will be in a sling for about 10 weeks and that he will be going through a painful recovery.

Rx Express coming to Thief River Falls

Northwestern Minnesota seniors seeking relief from the high cost of prescription drugs will get a little respite next month when the Canadian bound Rx Express comes to Thief River Falls.

Trips to Winnipeg, Manitoba have been scheduled for Saturday, October 13, and Saturday, October 27, from the west parking lot near Heritage Community Center.

Registration forms are available at the Minnesota Senior Federation Norwest Region office which is located in the Heritage Community Center building. Registration can be also be accomplished by calling the Northwest Region office at (218) 681-4507.

Cost is $20 for Federation members and $40 for non-members or $45 and $65 respectively with meals.

Sending a Message

The Minnesota Senior Federation organized the trips in response to the rising costs of prescription drugs and what the organization feels is the state legislature's failure to pass meaningful prescription drug relief. In addition to providing seniors with a way to save 20 to 70 percent on each of their prescriptions, the Federation believes that it is also sending a strong message to Minnesota Legislature.

According to an advertisement in the September 2001 edition of Minnesota Senior News, a monthly publication of the state's Senior Federations, Americans without prescription drug coverage pay the highest prices the world for their prescription drugs.

The federation also states that, during the past five years, prices for the 50 drugs most commonly used by older Americans have increased faster than the rate of inflation, and in 1998, prices increased at four times the rate of inflation. The median net profits for the manufacturers of these drugs was 20 percent in 1998, which is four and one-half times larger than the median net profits of 4.4 percent for all Fortune 500 companies.

Based on a study of the five brand-name drugs which account for the highest dollar sales to seniors, Minnesota seniors pay 90 percent more than their Canadian consumers. Older Americans fill an average of 18 prescriptions per year, and in Minnesota, 40 percent of seniors have no prescription drug coverage. These Minnesota seniors are among the nearly half of all Medicare beneficiaries who are living on annual incomes of less than $15,000.

Making the Trip

The following commonly-asked questions and their answers help explain some of the mechanics of the trip:

- Can a spouse go in one's place? In most cases, yes. It will depend, to some degree, on the individual doctor, and it will be known prior to the trip if the doctor will accept a spouse's presence.
- Can anyone make the trip in place of anyone else? No, only those who have previously established legal authority to represent another may go in that person's place.
- Is a prescription from an American doctor necessary? Yes, your regional Federation office will need copies of your prescriptions from your physician at least seven days prior to the trip. They will be faxed to the pharmacy ahead of time, assisting the doctor in prescribing the correct medication and helping insure that the pharmacy will have all of the medications available.
- How long will prescriptions last? I most cases, the doctor will write the prescription for at least six months, and in some cases, the physician will provide refills for up to a year. Information about the length of each prescription will be available prior to the trip.
- Will mail order work? Maybe, since United States Congress passed legislation last year which theoretically removes the barriers for importing prescriptions through the mail. However, until the Federation sees the legislation in action, it says there is the possibility the medicine may be seized by the Federal Drug Administration (FDA).
- What is the preferred method of payment? While the favored method of payment is credit card, Canadian currency may also be used. People are discouraged from paying by check.
- What types of identification are required? A valid Minnesota driver's license, identification card or passport will be need to ravel across the border into Canada.
- How long will it take? Once the bus has reached its Canadian destination, it takes approximately two to two and one-half hours for a typical bus load of people to be seen by the physicians.

Anyone Can Go

The trip is open to Minnesotans of all ages who are feeling the pinch of high prescription drugs or are interested in social and economic justice issues. It is the plan of the Minnesota Senior Federation to continue the trips until legislation is adopted which will provide relief the state's elderly citizens.

For more information, call the local Senior Federation office at (218) 681-4407 or the state office toll free at 800-365-8765.

Governor asks to extend disaster declaration

Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura has requested that federal disaster declaration DR-1370 be reopened, allowing aid to eight northwestern Minnesota counties battered by severe summer storms. He sent his request and supporting documentation to President Bush via FEMA Region V Acting Regional Director Janet Odeshoo.

Three separate storms involving heavy rainfall and winds in excess of 100 mph caused extensive damage in Clearwater, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau and St. Louis counties. The storms occurred after the July 3, 2001 closing date of the period of incidence for DR-1370. Consequently, unless that declaration is re-opened, federal reimbursement for the damage will not be available to affected counties, cities and townships.

The declaration was originally requested and granted in May 2001. It included 31 Minnesota counties and two tribal governments, covering damage from flooding caused by spring snow melt and frequent rain and wind storms.

While the total estimated damage in the eight counties ($2,371,100) is relatively small, it has had a huge impact because it came on the heels of previously inflicted storm damage, and involved extensive crop damage in counties where the economies are largely dependent on agriculture. In addition, most affected counties have small populations; hence the per-capita damage is very high.

After school work or activities fill schedules

How do parents know when students are too busy?

by Kate Morberg
Reporter

Schools in session, and that means more than overflowing backpacks.

Besides homework, high schoolers' afternoon and weekend hours are filled with extra-curricular activities, hobbies, work and friends.

"The beauty of this school district is that kids can do a wide variety of things," said Bill Stock, Lincoln High School counselor. "Sometimes you wonder if some kids are overdoing it."

Stock said, every kid has his or her own limits.

"Some kids handle 13 balls in a year, others take on 2," said Stock.

He said students who "engage in extra-curricular activities tend to do better academically."

He said that students who are more involved are generally happier, healthier kids. They build positive connections with other teens and adults.

School activities don't dominate every minute. There are outside interests that drive teens to excel. Each individual has their own niche to discover.

Parents' schedules also become a bit more hectic. Mom and dad turn into car pool specialists, carefully planning the fastest route to the next away game. The new carpet that was going to be bought next month turns into musical instruments and sports equipment. Most parents would probably say that it was well spent anyway. Seeing their children involved in a positive outlet is worth the time and cost.

Involvement in school activities is important, but seeing their kids with friends and having fun is also a priority. Parents can help find this balance. They know their kids better than anyone else said Stock, and they are the best people for determining an overload.

It is important for parents to keep communication lines open with the school. Regular phone calls to teachers and the school counselor provide an in-depth look at a son's or daughter's progress.

Kids aren't always going to volunteer information, Stock said. Parents shouldn't "assume everything is fine if they don't hear something."

As a counselor, Stock welcomes calls from parents. "I deal well with what is in front of me," he said. "If you call, I'll respond."

Symptoms of possible problems are noticed in school, such as sleepiness and disengaged minds, said Stock. It's not always easy for school faculty to determine the cause of these signs.

"Teenagers are complex people," said Stock.

Any number of things could effect a student's progress. Before any type of conclusion is formed, Stock says it is necessary to gather information. This includes talking to the student and his or her parents.

Money is a powerful force that causes people to push themselves a little harder. Teenagers are no different.

"We have kids who almost work a full-time job," said Stock. "At least 30 to 40 hours a week."

If a student works more than 15 or 20 hours a week said Stock, we begin to wonder if it is affecting schoolwork.

Stock mentioned two myths regarding working teenagers. "Kids can't work and do well in school," and "If I make my kid quit, he or she will do better in school." While the first may be true for some students, others deal well with a busy schedule. Forcing a kid to quit working will not necessarily cause an improvement in grades said Stock. The effort towards schoolwork still has to be applied.

During the school year many things will take place in a teenagers life. Stock said that parents support, encouragement and involvement will help the year go smoother.

Inspirations to perform at Faith Lutheran Sunday

The Inspirations will be in concert on Sunday, September 23, at 7 p.m. at Faith Lutheran Brethren Church in Thief River Falls.

The non-denominational gospel singing group originated in Shelly in the early 1970s. Their membership includes 24 individuals from varied walks of life and many communities. It's their mutual love for gospel music and desire to share The Good News with others that connects them all together. The group has made several recordings, including "In My Father's House," "Turn Your Radio On" and its most recent recording, "That's When the Angels Rejoice."

The public is invited to enjoy the program. A freewill offering will be taken, and lunch will be served. For more information, call 681-5462.

Sunny Carlson and Ryan Wilde married June 16 in Thief River Falls

Redeemer Lutheran Church was the site of the July 16 nuptials of Sunny Leigh Carlson and Ryan Michael Wilde. Rev. Marcia Sylvester officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony.

Sunny is the daughter of Charles and Kathy Carlson of Thief River Falls, and Ryan is the son of Sheryl Wilde and Arlan Fore, both of Oklee.

Vocal music was provided by Connie Hill/Etzler, friend of the bride. Selections included "You Had Me From Hello," "One Friend," "The Wedding Song (There is Love)," "The Lord's Prayer" and an original song, "How to Live in Love," by Hill/Etzler. Joyce Halbasch, a friend of the couple, was the organist, performing "Cannon D" and "Wedding March from Lohengrin" as the processional and "The Wedding March" as the recessional.

Readers were Daryl Schumaker, friend of the groom, and Ryan Iverson, cousin of the bride.

The couple's friend, Kim Haugen of Thief River Falls, served as the maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Casey Jo Wilde of Oklee; the groom's sister-in-law, Jane Wilde of Grand Forks, N.D.; friends of the couple, Kelly Newton of Thief River Falls and April Klassen of Plymouth; and the groom's cousin, Kelli Jo Hofstad of Marshall.

The flower girl was Olivia Wilde of Detroit Lakes, cousin of the groom.

The bride's cousins, Carla Schoenberg and Cami Sorenson, served as her personal attendants.

Eric Wilde of Plymouth, brother of the groom, was the best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brothers, Troy Carlson of Detroit Lakes, Matt Carlson of Nashville, Tenn. and Todd Carlson of Thief River Falls; the groom's brother, Corey Wilde of Grand Forks, N.D.; and the couple's friend, Eric Rouland of Thief River Falls.

Colin Wilde of Grand Forks, N.D., nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer.

Ushering the guests were the couple's friends, Jamie Carriere, Quinten Nelson, Brett Bishop and Nate Lundeen, all of Oklee.

Honored guests included grandparents and godparents of the couple. Grandparents include Goldie and Howard Lamberson, Tim Breiland, Margie Prestebak, Ragna Gunderson and Fred and Erma Wilde. Godparents are Barb and Clyde Sorenson, Todd and Troy Carlson and Sharon and Roger Forsberg.

Hosting the reception were Faye and John Rouland, friends of the bride, and Rene and Ardis Hofstad, cousins of the groom. The groom's cousins, Benji and Lisa Hofstad, attended the guestbook.

The wedding cake was made by the groom's aunt, Sharon Forsberg, and served by Barb Sorenson, aunt of the bride, and Barb Swenson, friend of the groom. Norwegian cake was served by the groom's aunt, Arlene Berry.

Coffee servers were Deb Breiland, aunt of the bride, and Carol Merman, aunt of the groom. Pouring punch was Kallie Kezar, cousin of the bride, and Lisa Swenson, friend of the groom.

Waiters and waitresses included Philip Breiland, Kory Kezar and Jenna Poppenhagen, all cousins of the bride; Cody Conners, Kelsey Aune, Jessika Forsberg, Cassidy Forsberg and Brittney Forsberg, all cousins of the groom; and Tawnya Swenson, friend of the groom.

Carol Iverson, aunt of the bride, catered the reception.

Flower attendants were Peggy Kezar, cousin of the bride, and Michelle Fore, friend of the groom. Gift attendants included Tyler Anderson, cousin of the groom; Luke Swenson, friend of the groom; and Derek Sorenson, cousin of the bride. Bubble favors were distributed by Dylan Finstad and Austin Schoenberg, cousins of the bride, and Spencer Aune and Kyle Aune, cousins of the groom.

The event was captured by the groom's cousin, Keith Hofstad, taking photographs, and the bride's friend, Desirae Alberg, videographing the occasion.

Sunny and Ryan are at home at 2910 17th St. South, Apt. 201, Moorhead, MN 56560.

Sunny is a 1998 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 2000 graduate of Northland Community and Technical College. She is currently attending Minnesota State University Moorhead, pursuing a degree in elementary education. Sunny is also employed as a lifeguard, WSI, at MSUM.

Ryan is a 1997 graduate of Oklee High School and a 1999 graduate of North Dakota State College of Science. He is currently employed by RDO John Deere in Fargo, N.D.

Hardee's to hold benefit for New York firefighters

In the midst of the tragedies that have befallen our country, the Hardee's restaurant of Thief River Falls is partnering with the Thief River Falls Fire Department to collect funds for New York's firefighters.

From 5 to 11 p.m. on Thursday, September 20, the Hardee's at 225 West Third Street in Thief River Falls will donate 50 percent of sales to the Uniformed Firefighters Association of New York City.

Members of the Thief River Falls Fire department are expected to be on hand at the restaurant for a "Hat Collection" benefit for their brethren.

"There are no excuses for the crimes that have been committed," said Tammy Jones, director of marketing for 107 Hardee's restaurants. "The firefighters who responded to the senseless destruction at the World Trade Center did so at great risk to themselves. Many of them have paid the ultimate price. Since Hardee's has always been a family restaurant, we'd like to help the families these firefighters have left behind. We hope the people of Thief River Falls will help us do that."

For more information or to contribute to the Hardee's benefit fund, please contact Jerry Harmon at 701-746-7017.

Sandra Skadsem and Dennis Bevington exchange vows Aug. 19

Deer Lake near Bemidji provided the backdrop for the August 19 nuptials of Sandra Kay Skadsem and Dennis Lee Bevington. Rev. Roger Schmitz officiated at the 8 p.m. double ring ceremony which took place at the home of the bride's grandparents, Franc and Janet Daniels.

Parents of the couple are Randy and Susan Skadsem of Newfolden and Tim and Sandra Bevington of New Brighton, Pa.

Serving as the couple's attendants were Donna Rybakowski of Holt, sister of the bride, and Timothy Bevington, father of the groom.

Todd and Sara Wille, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, hosted the reception, and cake was served by the groom's mother, Sandra Kay Bevington.

Following a wedding trip to a secluded cabin on a lake near Bemidji, the couple is at home in Newfolden. The bride will graduate from Marshall County Central High School in Newfolden in the spring of 2002 and is presently attending post-secondary classes full-time at Northland Community and Technical College. She is employed by Northwest Medical Center. The groom is employed at Arctic Cat in Thief River Falls.

Friends and family will have the opportunity to celebrate the occasion with the couple at a reception at Eagles View Church, 111 4th Street East, Thief River Falls at 3 p.m. on Sunday, September 23.

Sara Ortloff and Brad Lunke plan October 13 nuptials

Sara Ortloff and Brad Lunke announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Sara is the daughter of Jodi and Doug Oisterhaupt of Thief River Falls, and Brad is the son of Jody and Don Lunke of Holt.

Sara is a 1995 graduate of Lincoln High School and is currently employed by Digi-Key Corp.

Brad is a 1997 graduate of Marshall County Central High School and is employed by Lunke Construction and also farms.

An October 13, 2001 wedding is planned at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls followed by a reception and dance at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

Kara Jenkins and Joshua Jimenez to marry September 28 in TRF

Kara Faye Jenkins and Joshua John Jimenez together with their parents, Mark and Kathi Jenkins and Juan and Marlene Rodriguez, all of Thief River Falls, announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Kara is a 1996 graduate of Lincoln High School and currently attends Century College in St. Paul. She is employed by Rainbow Foods and Gold Mark Property Management.

Joshua is a 1993 graduate of Lincoln High School and is employed by Asphalt Specialties.

A September 28, 2001 wedding is planned at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

Blue Cross Blue Shield sponsors theater production

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota will sponsor a special performance of The Children's Theatre Company's touring production, "Grimm Tales," on Saturday, September 29, at 7 p.m. at Crookston Area High School.

Tickets are free and can be picked up in advance at the Crookston Chamber of Commerce and Montague's Flower Shop.

The production of Grimm Tales is based on a recent adaptation of the work of The Brothers Grimm. It features music, merriment and a new twist on some old favorites like Ashputtel (Cinderella), The Golden Goose, Little Red Cap (Little Red Riding Hood) and The Hare and the Hedgehog. Grimm Tales are most enjoyed by children age six and up.

The Children's Theatre Company (CTC) is located in Minneapolis and is nationally and internationally acclaimed as America's flagship theatre for young people and families. CTC has toured, regionally, nationally and internationally for more than 20 years. The annual tour of the upper midwest was established in 1986 with more than 800,000 people enjoying CTC productions since that time.

Grimm Tales receives major underwriting from its lead sponsor, Cargill, and major sponsorship from 3M and the Land O'Lakes Foundation. Additional funding is provided by the Blandin Foundation.

This activity is made possible, in part, by a grant provided by the Minnesota State Arts Board through an appropriation by the Minnesota State Legislature. In addition, the project is supported by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Lincoln High School Class of 1972 will be holding a planning meeting for the 30-year reunion on Monday, Sept. 24, 2001 at 7 p.m. at the Hayloft in Thief River Falls. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Grace Lutheran Church of Grygla will be the site of the Fall Gathering of Cluster 2 Women of the ELCA.

The event will be held on Saturday, September 29, beginning with registration at 8:30 p.m. The theme will be "We love because He first loved us," I John 4:19.

Guest speaker Genora Schjeldrup of Fehon will incorporate music into her topic, "Fabric of Love."

Following registration, coffee and goodies will be served by the women of Our Savior's Lutheran Church of Grygla. The program will begin at 9 a.m. with the singing of hymns.

The gathering will conclude with a noon lunch served by the women of Grace Lutheran. The $5 registration fee will include the meal. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Good Samaritan fund established

A special fund has been set up to accept donations for the families of New York City police officers and firefighters.

Donations can be dropped off at the United Methodist Church in Thief River Falls anytime, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Checks can be made out to "Good Samaritan Fund NYC Emergency Worker Relief."

A special fund-raiser was also held on Saturday, September 15, during the 25th wedding anniversary celebration of Ken Asp and Key Teeters Asp.

Card of Thanks

We were overwhelmed by the many wonderful friends and family members who came to the benefit for Maynard last Saturday evening. Your kindness and generosity touched our hearts tremendously, and we will be forever grateful for all that you have done for us. Thanks to the Viking Covenant Church kitchen workers for the time and effort in preparing the delicious pancake supper and anyone else who had a part in making this night possible.

God bless you richly.

Family School Get Acquainted Night September 25

Parents of preschool children who are interested in earning GED's or high school diplomas are invited to attend Family School Get Acquainted Night on Tuesday, September 25, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Challenger Preschool.

Families will enjoy fall activities while finding out what Family School is all about. Activities will include painting, block play, stories, play dough and snacks, and children and their parents will have the opportunity to explore classrooms. Each child will also receive a book to take home.

Family School classes will be held on Tuesdays beginning October 2 from 11 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. at Challenger Preschool.

Parents and preschool children come to school together, and all parents who want to work toward their GED's, high school diplomas or work on basic skill development are invited. The program provides a special time for parents and children to interact in an environment of learning and discovering and parenting discussions. Then, while parents attend classes, their children are involved in educational activities with early childhood teachers.

A light lunch is provided, and transportation help will be provided if needed. Because class size is limited, parents should preregister. The program is provided through Adult Basic Education, School Readiness, Head Start and Early Childhood Family Education.

For more information or to preregister, call 681-8670.

Johnson infant baptized Sept. 2

Jeremy and Karey (Krantz) Johnson of rural Goodridge are the proud parents of Liberty Joy, born July 26. The infant weighed 7 pounds, 12 ounces and was the first granddaughter for Gordon and Cindy Johnson of Middle River and the seventh grandchild for Randy and Karen Krantz of Karlstad. Great-grandparents are Butch and Goldie Krantz of Karlstad, Ken and Marcy Dunrud of Thief River Falls and Al Johnson of Onamia.

Libby was baptized on Sunday, September 2, at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Karlstad with Father Dan Braukmann officiating. The water used for her christening was water from the Jordan River that her great-grandmother Goldie brought back from her visit to the Holy Land last fall. Libby wore the baptismal gown that her mother was baptized in. Godparents are Philip and Erica Krantz of Karlstad.

Following the baptism, a luncheon was served at the church in Liberty's honor. Sharing the special day were her parents, grandparents, Krantz and Dunrud great-grandparents and many other relatives and friends.

Elsie Conley to note 80th birthday September 22

An open house commemorating the 80th birthday of Elsie Conley will be held on Saturday, September 22, from 2 to 4 p.m. at First Lutheran Church in Warren.

Friends and relatives will find the church at 105 South 6th Street. No gifts please.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Brittany Larson, Lincoln High School

Family duets are a longstanding tradition at the annual recitals of the Marcia Knutilla Piano Studio. Parents, grandparents, and even extended family perform with their respective students in the ultimate confirmation of love and loyalty. It is impossible to deny the poignant quality, culminating in a grand finale of hugs and kisses. The wide smiles and handholding bows shout success. Years of observing this moving ritual made me long for the day that my own family would experience this same euphoria. I had no doubts that my mom and sister would be more than capable of performing – they're old pros in the recital scene. On the other hand, it was my dad who posed the problem. Half a century has passed since his last encounter with piano. Moreover, even he professes, "If you had heard me play the piano as a child, you would understand why my parents didn't encourage me to continue." He abandoned the source of his frustration – piano lessons – after less than two years.

In spite of the obvious impediment represented by Dad's feeble skills, I was unwavering in my decision that we perform as a family. You can't say Dad wasn't forewarned. At last spring's recital, even Miss K, our teacher was enlisted to mentally prepare him for the inevitable. Sooner or later, he knew it was coming. The fact that he has evaded the challenge for this long, is nothing short of miraculous. However, with the arrival of my senior year, Dad knew that pathetic excuses, desperate pleas, or deliberate avoidance could no longer be tolerated. When the proposition re-emerged this fall, he finally "agreed," or should I say, "surrendered" under great duress.

I began scouring easy duet books immediately for the perfect piece. I soon realized that within the definition of easy, there is a lot of latitude. It's a matter of perspective. What's easy to one person may be inordinately difficult for another. Tragically, I had to consider my Dad's capabilities...limited capabilities that severely limited our options. Only one flat, lots of repetition, and numerous half-notes made "Let All Things Now Living" the obvious choice. The dreaded first lesson was scheduled.

While Dad claims he's ambidextrous, Miss K wisely elected to teach him only the left hand so as not to overwhelm him. She also informed him that her prized Bosendorfer, the piano once played by Frank Sinatra, was forbidden until he had attained mastery. With this established, Dad sat down at the Kawai's bench and proceeded to learn the song, note-by-note, measure-by-measure. We wrote all the letter names of the notes down so he wouldn't have to identify them by spaces or lines. It was a painstaking process as the C keys were the only reference points he had. Therefore, much time elapsed between notes while he would murmur the alphabet to himself and count the number of keys. His face was taut with the strain of intense concentration. In his struggle, it became increasingly evident that the piano was not his forte. Dad's relief was immense when we revealed that the first eight measures repeated themselves. My relief was immense when we realized our time was up.

Dad's first recital is at the end of October. It would be much appreciated if you would keep him in your thoughts and prayers. While his playing is improving, his objectives remain questionable. He says, "My goal is to play the piano at Brittany's Senior Recital well enough so that I will not be humiliated...but not so well that I will be asked to play again." Uh, Dad, I regret to remind you – in three years, you'll have to repeat this ordeal with another senior.

Jessica Rokke and Darin Jacobson married August 4 in Newfolden

Jessica Rokke and Darin Jacobson were united in marriage on August 4 at Westaker Lutheran Church in Newfolden. Rev. Phil Rokke officiated at the 4 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Rev. Phil and Marlene Rokke of Newfolden and Del and Ingrid Jacobson of Redding, Calif.

The bride's gown of satin with a chiffon overlay was designed and sewn by her mother. The bridesmaids wore ice blue satin two-piece gowns, and the men of the wedding party were attired in black tuxedos.

Karen Danielson, friend of the bride, provided organ and piano music, and Marea Steinhauer, friend of the bride, played trumpet for the processional, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and recessional, "Trumpet Voluntary."

The pastoral meditation was given by Pastor Troy Jacobson, brother of the groom, who also sang an original song, "He Will Lead You By the Hand." Joyce Miller and Shari Rokke, cousins of the bride, sang "The Gift of Love," "Thanks Be To Thee" and "Thy Will Be Done," a variation of The Lord's Prayer.

Pam Jacobson, sister-in-law of the groom, was matron of honor, and Rachel Larson, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kristi Rokke, sister of the bride, and Kristy Rokke, sister-in-law of the bride. Kristy Danielson, friend of the bride, served as her personal attendant, and Katie Anderson, friend of the bride, was the flower girl.

Troy Jacobson, brother of the groom, served as best man with groomsmen Chris Rothwell, Ted Packwood and David Gira, all friends of the groom. Cole Rokke, nephew of the bride, and Caleb Jacobson, nephew of the groom, were ring bearers.

The guests were ushered by Todd Hietala, friend of the groom, and Josh and Ben Rokke, brothers of the bride.

Program attendant was Anne Schaffhauser, friend of the bride. Gift attendants were Corrie and Seth Spading, cousins of the bride. Ingrid Hanson, friend of the bride, served as wedding coordinator, while Angie Anderson, friend of the couple, coordinated decorating and produced the programs. Lydia Spading, cousin of the bride, together with Cole Rokke and Katie Anderson distributed the wedding favors.

Greg Miller, cousin of the bride, and Vicki Gira, friend of the groom, captured the event on video, and candid photographs were taken by Kevin Spading, uncle of the bride.

Honored guests included the bride's grandmothers, Ruby Halmaas and Iola Rokke.

Russ and Vickie Holmaas, uncle and aunt of the bride, served as host and hostess at the reception held at the Newfolden Community Center. Kevin and Wanda Spading, uncle and aunt of the bride, served cake, and Anne Schaffhauser served punch. Friends of the bride, Carla and Anna Mattson, together with cousins of the bride, Alissa Halmaas and Corrie Spading were waitresses. Karen Danielson, Kristy Danielson and Ingrid Hanson manned the cappuccino bar. Aaron Spading, cousin of the bride, provided keyboard music at the reception.

After a wedding trip to the North Shore, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls. Darin is a graduate of North Dakota State University and is employed as a design engineer at Arctic Cat. Jessica is a graduate of Northwest Technical College in Moorhead and is employed as a dental hygienist for Dr. John Seaverson.

...Fondly Remembering Past Pets
Part II

Don't wonder why I am still writing about pets instead of writing about the problems in our country. Sometimes it is too painful to write about things so soon after they have happened and what has happened in our country is one of those hard-to-write-about things. Maybe next week, when my heart stops hurting so much.

So here's the rest of last week's column about pets I have had. This one is about our dog, Honey.

My dog, on the other hand, is the color of honey, and that is her name. We did not name her Honey; she came with that name. I would never have named her Honey because I would have thought of how I would sound to passing pedestrians and motorists when she gets loose from her chain and I stand at my door yelling for her. "Honey, Honey, Honey..."

Nonetheless, her name is Honey. Her fur is coarse and some of it stands up, some of it curls, and some of it hangs straight down. My children like to tell their friends that she is a longhaired Chihuahua, but I don't think so. I think she is a Heinz 57 mixture.

Honey is about the size of a Chihuahua though, and sometimes I think her brain is the size of a pea. Her main occupation is chasing a tennis ball. She loves tennis balls. She is her happiest when she can lay in the grass surrounded by tennis balls in various degrees of decrepitude, holding one in her little mouth, just for the taste of it, you know.

When her tennis ball rolls outside of the range of her chain, she barks at it -- and barks, and barks and barks. I know just what she is thinking. She's thinking that the tennis ball is going to grow legs and walk back to her if she barks long enough.

Oddly enough, the tennis ball does come back to her when she barks at it, but this is because no one can stand to hear the continual barking and they get up from whatever they are doing and go out and kick it back to her. I have noticed that even the neighbors kick tennis balls back to Honey. Maybe I am mistaken on the size of her brain and she is much smarter than I think.

Honey is very cute. She greets everyone who comes to the door by smiling. Yes, she really smiles and I am not making this up.

Often people who come to the door think she is snarling. If it is a salesman or someone I don't want to come into the house, I let them think that she is snarling and going to bite off their leg. It works quite well, even though, if they thought about it, they should realize that she could never get her mouth around their leg. Did I mention that Honey is smaller than the cat?

Honey also sneezes to welcome family and people she especially loves. She does this while she is smiling at the people she loves. There is nothing more wonderful than a welcome home dog smile and a big dog sneeze right in the face as you bend down to pat her head.

Then too, both of my pets are getting on in years and both of them have gotten rather roly-poly since they made trips to the veterinarian a couple of years ago. Actually, "rather roly-poly" may be too mild a term for what they have gotten in the past couple of years. I should say they have gotten downright FAT.

Both animals used to be lean and trim and graceful and neither of them has adjusted to their fatter bodies yet.

The cat still tries to leap delicately to the top of chairs and onto windowsills. Every so often I hear a CLUNK and it is the cat falling off of some small space where she used to sit but cannot any longer because of her bulk. Sometimes the CLUNK is the cat trying to jump up on the chair or couch and missing it entirely.

Honey used to be able to run after tennis balls for hours and she now has to rest and pant a while after a few quick dashes. She is no longer the agile creature she once was.

Now that I think of it, maybe that old saying is true. Maybe I have come to resemble my pets (or they resemble me). It's tough it is, this getting old.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Pumpkin Tambourine

Celebrate the harvest by shaking a pumpkin tambourine. To make one, paint or color orange with markers the backs of two paper plates. When the paint is dry, secure the rims of the paper plates together with several paper clips. Then use a hole punch to punch an even number of holes through the rims. Through every pair of holes, thread a length of green yarn through both plates. Remove the paper clips. Thread a jingle bell onto the yarn. Then tie the yarn in a bow. Shake, shake, shake that tambourine!

PARENTING TIPS
Children and Time

One of the most frustrating things about being a parent is trying to get everything accomplished that needs to be accomplished. And then to make matters worse, you have a child who has no concept of time and dawdles. When you press him to cooperate better or to hurry, he becomes explosive.

How to cope? Here are several possible approaches:

- Examine your expectations. Are you expecting too much of yourself or your child? Is it possible to do all the things you did and keep house the way you did before you had children? Is it realistic to expect your young child to do things in the same time frame that you, an adult, would do them in?
- A child usually cooperates better and faster if you have given him a warning about five minutes before the activity must end. "You have a couple more minutes to play. Then you must put your toys away and put your coat on so we can go to Grandma's house."
- Tell him to say, "Goodbye" to whatever he is doing or whomever is present, and give him time to do it.
- Offer him a choice. But make sure that it is a choice of two things that fit within your limits and will accomplish what you want to have accomplished. For example, rather than "Do you want to go to bed?" say, "It is time for bed. Do you want to walk or shall I carry you?"

Each time you alert your youngster to anticipate an event, his ability to organize a time world increases. Also, the vocabulary associated with time, "pretty soon," "five minutes," will become relevant. When you give your child choices and abide by those choices, you show him respect which helps to build self-esteem.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about what will happen "first" and what will happen "next" or "after that."

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

When school cranks up in September, I sometimes feel a couple of pangs of nostalgia. For more than 20 autumns I either clambered onto the school bus or dragged my stuff back to the dorm.

It has been years since I felt the adrenaline of the first day of class. New bus route. New classmates. New teachers. Old classmates with new looks. New books. Very exciting times.

Maybe too exciting. Memories from school years are seared on my brain. Even as my 20-year class reunion approaches, I still have dreams that I miss the school bus, flunk algebra tests, forget to go to class for weeks on end, or find myself on the football field with an entire town's happiness on my shoulders and no clue where to turn.

I never played football, so I don't know where that nightmare comes from. But I did act in several school plays.

Every few nights I end up back on stage with a very small role. It is the evening of the first performance. I don't know my lines and I have lost my copy of the script. I try to wing it—My improvisation ruins the plot. The crowd leaves in disgust. The director awaits me off-stage.

Unlearned lines are a small embarrassment compared to finding one's self back in seventh grade wrapped in a skimpy afghan. All night I question: Do you think anybody will notice that I forgot to get dressed? You try to act as if nothing's wrong and so does everybody else, but you know what they're thinking.

What a relief to wake up in the morning and realize that I never have to go to school again. Never again will I have to take a test, learn lines, try to be athletic, or search my locker in vain for clothing. Never again will I miss a school bus, fall off the merry-go-round, or get picked last for dodgeball.

By comparison, the daytime rigors of adulthood are minor. Death, taxes, bankruptcy, traffic tickets, blizzards, serious illness, tragedy, loss of hair—I can handle all those things, just don't make me face my English teacher after I've skipped her class for the last two months.

Some adults tell kids to enjoy their school years. "These are the best times of your life!" they say.

Really. Have these people forgotten the Darwinian realities of elementary school, the merciless teasing, the cliques, the social anxiety, the fear of not wearing the right clothes, the pressure to be good at sports you hate? Don't these people have any nightmares which remind them of how terrifying school really was?

No, in September, I wake up every morning thankful that I can't miss the bus any more because I have my own in the garage. I can't flunk because I am not in any classes. And I can't forget my lines because I am not in the play. The nightmare is over.

Senior Federation held membership assembly Sept. 14

Valerie Solem of Senator Mark Dayton's Thief River Falls office was the presenter at the September 14 membership delegation of the Northwest Senior Federation.

William Anderson, president of the local federation, called the meeting to order. The program included information about the upcoming Rx Express trips to Vita, Manitoba on October 13 and 27. Cost of the trip is $20 for Federation members and $40 for non-members. The cost includes transportation and being seen by a Canadian physician. An additional $5 per person will cover the cost of a meal.

The buses are scheduled to leave from the Heritage Community Center at approximately 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, October 13, and from Seven Clans Hotel at 9 a.m. on Saturday, October 27. The deadlines for reservations and doctors' prescriptions are October 5 and 19 respectively.

To save half the cost of the trip, it was suggested that interested parties 50 years of age and older join the Minnesota Senior Federation. The cost of membership is $10 for an individual and $20 for a couple.

Following the program and noon meal, music by the Heritage Band was enjoyed, and lunch was served.

Robson named field coordinator for Arthritis Foundation

Diane Robson of Thief River Falls has been named field coordinator in the Red River Valley for the Arthritis Foundation North Central Chapter. This position was made possible through a three-year grant from Dakota Medical Foundation in Fargo, N.D.

As field coordinator, Robson will be responsible for providing leadership, direction and implementation of fund-raising and educational programming for the Arthritis Foundation in the Red River Valley area.

The Arthritis Foundation North Central Chapter provides exercise programs, including warm water exercises and PACE (People with Arthritis Can Exercise), a land-based program. Warm water exercise programs are available at Med Center One in Bismarck, N.D.; Fargo Moorhead Family YMCA in Fargo, N.D.; Dekko Community Center in Ada; Fergus Falls Family YMCA in Fergus Falls; Perham Area Community Center in Perham; and the Regional Fitness Center in Morris. Arthritis support and educational groups meet in Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Perham, Bismarck, N.D. and Jamestown, N.D.

Arthritis and related diseases affect one in six people, including children and young adults, in the Red River Valley area. The Arthritis Foundation is the only voluntary non-profit organization that addresses all forms of arthritis and related conditions.

For more information about the Arthritis Foundations or free brochures and literature about the many types of arthritis, medications and self-management activities, call (218) 681-1805 or 1-800-333-1380.

Dairy producers receive assistance from MDI

The Minnesota Dairy Initiative, a federation of seven dairy development and profitability enhancement teams, Minnesota Milk Producers Association, private industry, the University of Minnesota Extension Service, MnSCU, Farm Business Management and the Minnesota Department of Agriculture are ready to assist producers with any production or management issue. Many dairy producers are familiar with the old Dairy Diagnostic Program. This program is dairy diagnostics with added benefits.

The advisory teams will work with producers virtually the same way they have in the past. One of the major improvements has been the addition of an initial assessment tool, which will provide the advisory teams with a consistent farm assessment tool to use on all farms across the state.

Producers may choose to participate in any one or all of MDI's three major program areas of financial management, production systems and business planning, which includes grazing systems and organic production management.

"The farmer may have one particular issue they want to have addressed, or they may want a team to provide comprehensive advice on their entire operation. We leave it up to the farmer to decide what they want an advisory team to focus on," said Allen Gulbransen, chairman of the Minnesota Dairy Initiative Steering Committee.

MDI teams combine the skills and experience of Farm Business Management specialists, Soil and Water Conservation District personnel, Industry Professionals, Extension Educators, Dairy Producers, and others to locally manage, coordinate and deliver the on-farm advisory services.

The program is made available through a grant program titled, Dairy Development and Profitability Enhancement Program the state passed last legislative session. The state made $704,000 available to the Minnesota Department of Agriculture to grant out to qualified organizations.

"This program improves on the strengths of the old dairy diagnostic program. Minnesota Milk Producers Association is excited to be a part of this effort. MMPA worked hard to get the additional funds for this program. It's great to see that the funds will have a positive impact for our producers," said Delbert Mandelko, President of MMPA.

Interested dairy producers can call MMPA at 1-877-577-0741 for more information. MMPA will have a team coordinator contact the dairy producer to establish a team of professionals to work with the producer.

MN Literacy Council launches online database

The Minnesota Literacy Council announced the launch of an online version of its Adult Literacy Hotline at www.theMLC.org/hotline on September 10.

Users of the new online service can now access the statewide basic education resource database 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Formerly a phone-based service known as the Basic Skills Hotline, the new online Adult Literacy Hotline provides information on nearly 400 education programs statewide, including adult basic reading and math skills training, English and citizenship classes, GED preparation and testing services, workforce and other education programs.

"Hotline information includes program schedules and fees, transportation availability, childcare services, and other details as provided by each program," said Michelle Vanden Plas, Community Outreach Coordinator for the Minnesota Literacy Council. "This is the most comprehensive resource for information about adult education programs across the entire state."

The online Adult Literacy Hotline is designed for easy, confidential access by potential learners and their families, literacy volunteers, social service providers and others who want information about adult basic education services. Basic and advanced search options are included on the site and a glossary explains terms used in the adult basic education field.

The Adult Literacy Hotline can also still be reached via toll-free phone on weekdays at 800-222-1990. According to Vanden Plas, the Hotline phone service receives thousands of calls each year.

"Calls from potential learners have increased every year for the past five years. Requests for ESL (English as a Second Language) services were up more than 30 percent in the past two years," she said.

Eric Nesheim, director of the Minnesota Literacy Council, reports that demand for literacy and English programs is increasing.

"The hotline upgrade reflects the changing needs of our communities," he said. "We are pleased to offer more extensive services and easier access at all times from anywhere in the state."

For further information about the Adult Literacy Hotline, or to provide program info. to include in the database, contact Michelle Vanden Plas at 800-222-1990.

The MLC was founded in 1972 as a statewide nonprofit organization dedicated to helping individuals who need instruction or assistance in basic reading, English or other basic skills. MLC provides training for volunteer tutors and literacy trainers, a referral service for learners and volunteers, and support to a network of nearly 130 associate community- and school-based literacy programs across Minnesota.

Alie and Jack were grand champions at the Pennington County Fair.

State makes grants available for suicide prevention

Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has announced that $950,000 in grants will be awarded to community organizations and coalitions submitting successful proposals to prevent suicide in Minnesota.

Suicide is a serious public health issue. According to the Minnesota Department of Public Health:

- it is the second leading cause of death for 10- to 34-year olds;
- approximately three times the number of Minnesotans die from suicide than from homicide (approximately 500 deaths per year);
- males comprise approximately 80 percent of all suicide deaths;
- the suicide rate for American Indians is consistently higher than for other racial and ethnic groups; and
- Minnesotans 65 and older have the highest suicide rate of all age groups.

Organizations eligible to apply for the competitive grants include, but are not limited to, Minnesota-based community boards of health, non-profit health and human service organizations, units of government, tribal governments and entities, school districts, health care organizations and other interested agencies demonstrating experience and/or expertise in the areas of suicide prevention, mental health, health promotion, and/or early intervention to reduce risk factors and promote protective factors.

MDH is seeking proposals for a two-year time period (January 1, 2002 – December 31, 2003). The minimum grant award will be $50,000 and the maximum will be $100,000 per year.

MDH will fund community projects demonstrating comprehensive evidence – and population-based, multi-partner, multi-strategy suicide prevention and evaluation principles. Under a separate announcement, MDH plans to fund one project to develop, implement, and collect data resulting from an evaluation plan for all community-based demonstration projects funded under this announcement. An additional maximum grant award of $75,000 will be made for this evaluation component.

A copy of the full Request for Proposals (RFP) may be obtained at http://www.health.state.mn.us. Scroll to "Announcements" and then to "RFPs/Rule Proposals" and click on the "Request for Proposals: suicide Prevention." A copy can also be obtained by contacting Candy [illegible], Minnesota Department of Health, Division of Family Health, 85 East Seventh Place, Suite 400, P.O. Box 64882, St. Paul, MN, 55164-0882.

Northwest to end Thief River Falls air service

respects their point of view. He said Northwest will review the information they provided. He said Northwest's decision to notify Thief River Falls of its intent to discontinue service was based solely on financial reports for the past 12 months.

Thief River Falls qualifies for the federal subsidy because it has been identified as in need of air service.

Benner said Northwest will continue to serve Thief River Falls as it has for the past 90 days. Although he indicated Northwest's intent to accept the federal subsidy, he said the federal fund that provides the subsidy has been underfunded, and that in the wake of events that took place Tuesday "we are at a place we've never been before." Even before the attack on the United States the airline industry was in trouble. As a result of events on Tuesday he said Northwest is looking at substantial layoffs and a 20-percent cut in flights.

Sen. Stumpf said Northwest's reason for discontinuing service was predicated on the fact that they are losing money on service to Thief River Falls because of low ridership.

At the meeting in August it was explained to the Northwest representative that a number of years ago Thief River Falls began actively promoting the use of the airport through advertising and participating in Northwest programs. Stewart said that that effort resulted in ridership nearly trippling. Prior to when Northwest cut back on a flight to Thief River Falls, estimates indicated that enplanements would reach about 12,000 per year. The loss of that flight caused enplanements to drop significantly.

Sen. Stumpf also noted that local business representatives explained that the remaining flights to and from Thief River Falls were not "business friendly" — don't match well with International Flights, for example.

Wennberg, however, believes that if residents from the Thief River Falls community had used the service a little more, they may not be making this decision.

Wennberg said Northwest has trucked enplanements for the area and noted that there's a 55 percent leakage rate. That is, 55 percent of the people from this area using Northwest board their airplanes at different locations — Bemidji, Grand Forks, Fargo.

Stewart attributes the leakage to inconsistent fares offered by Northwest. He explained that Northwest has been operating a Saab-B or 34-passenger airplane for passengers at Thief River Falls Regional Airport. He said that although Northwest says Thief River Falls has half the seats available for passengers from Thief River Falls, it often seems otherwise. (An average of nine people board each flight out of Thief River Falls) In fact, Stewart said he has some evidence that half the seats on the plane are not available to passengers boarding at Thief River Falls. In addition, he said, some people have been under the impression that special rates being offered through the "fly local" program offered by Northwest, were available for all passenger seating, and that's not true. Rates fluctuate all over the board, Stewart said.

Sen. Stumpf said he hopes Northwest will accept an offer to negotiate with the city. During the next 90 days, he explained, the city and Northwest will have an opportunity to sit down and negotiate flights and times. Sen. Stumpf was not certain what the subsidy to Northwest would amount to.

If, Benner said, in working with the Department of Transportation, the subsidy is granted it's usually cost plus five percent.

Sen. Stumpf and Stewart said Northwest made known at the meeting in August that they were planning to discontinue service at six to eight communities. The only community in Minnesota was Thief River Falls.

These cuts are outside of the cuts that airlines all over the country may be implementing in the wake of last Tuesday's disaster. Sen. Stumpf said he has heard analysts predict they will implement cuts as high as 20 percent. That represents thousands of jobs, said Stumpf.

Sen. Stumpf said that after last Tuesday there has been considerable discussion about the federal government getting more involved in helping airlines with the cost of such things as security. He believes such assistance is certainly legitimate.

Crosswind runway

This will not affect construction of the crosswind runway. The planes Northwest has been flying into Thief River Falls are large enough not to need a crosswind runway. The crosswind runway primarily accommodates smaller planes that carry packages.

personnel tried to weave their way through the snarl of traffic.

Like the barrage of vehicles, communication was confusing, and it didn't take long before the heavy smoke from the towers drifted across the bay.

In an effort to get out of the heavy traffic, Glenn says he turned off on what they thought to be the right road. Before long, however, he discovered that he had been mistaken and his 11-foot high bus was in front of a nine-foot high underpass. Glenn found himself just sitting there wondering what he was going to do when a woman he refers to as an "angel" not only showed him a passage that would take him around the underpass but drove ahead of him, showing him the way and watching out for him.

Glenn reached his Newark destination at noon and finally found out some of what had actually taken place that morning. While he had planned to spend the night in Newark, he instead joined others who had delivered buses at a Days Inn in nearby Ledgewood. Because transportation was at a standstill, he continued to drive the bus that he was delivering.

By the time he was able to get through to his dispatcher, at 1:30 p.m. he was told that his wife had called and that she was concerned. Glenn called and assured her that he was O.K. After a harried morning, he also had the opportunity to catch up on the unbelievable events of the day.

With arrangements to return to Minnesota by air, the drivers delivered their buses Wednesday morning, and rented limos to take them to the Newark airport. While they had heard that it would be open at noon, they learned it wasn't true once they arrived. Thus, Glenn and the others spent another night in New Jersey.

Finally, on Thursday, Motor Coach Industries arranged for a Philadelphia tour bus to bring the weary bus drivers back to Minnesota. Glenn says that he and four or five others volunteered to drive and that they picked up other bus drivers along the way. Glenn arrived home early Saturday morning.

Glenn describes the experience as emotional and says that after several trips had become accustomed to the cityscape created by the Statue of Liberty and World Trade Center. "It was a nice picture," he says, "and now part of it is gone."

With MCI having 1,500 buses to deliver to Newark during the next two to three years, Glenn anticipates that it is a picture that he will see again although he hasn't heard when his next trip will be. It seems the world is moving a little slower these days as it waits and wonders.

In addition to being grateful to Motor Coach Industries for bringing him home, Glenn is thankful for his faith, believing that it was his Lord who got him through the week and sent the special guardian angel who helped him through his traffic dilemma.

While being close enough to the terrifying situation to smell the acrid smoke, being there did necessarily make it any more real for Glenn Espe. He is thankful, however, that while in the midst of the action, he, too, had the opportunity to witness humankind at its best.

Luther Newton of Northwest Joint Powers in Grygla engaged students in a discussion about deer before they played the "Deer Population Game" at Outdoor Education Day on Wednesday, September 12, at Oakland Park. Newton was assisted by Nicole Bernd of the West Polk County Soil Water Conservation District. The annual event was enjoyed by 203 sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Grygla and area home schools. Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District, sponsor of the event, extends its appreciation to Pizza Hut for providing door prizes, Northern Lights for use of its ice cream wagon, Dean foods for a discount on ice cream and Pennington Main for a discount on the pizzas served to presenters and teachers.

After learning about waste sites, students had the opportunity to enjoy "Incredible Edible Landfills" at the 4th annual Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park on Wednesday, September 12. The event is sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District. This year 201 sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge and Grygla and two home school students participated in the event. The landfill activity was led by Bill Craig, Marshall County Extension Agent, and Jenean Lovoid of the Roseau County Soil and Water Conservation District.

"Bubbleology" was a favorite station at last week's Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park. Presenters of the bubble activity were Lise Newton and Cheryl Sistad of the Marshall-Beltrami County Soil and Water Conservation District. The annual event is sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Nova Savino of the Minnesota Science Museum selected helpers from her audience as she discussed water at the 4th annual Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park on Wednesday, September 12. The event was sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District. Participants included sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Grygla and area home schools.

Governor declares Manufacturers and Technology Month

Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura has declared October 22 through November 23, as 2001 Minnesota Manufacturers and Technology Month. This is the eighth annual recognition for over 9,300 Minnesota manufacturing businesses that contribute to local economies through jobs, business and community development.

Last year, hundreds of Minnesotan manufacturers were acknowledged during luncheons, plant tours, local celebrations and other activities. Participation is likely to grow this year as local developers, companies, business and civic leaders across the state become involved in this special statewide event.

"Right now, manufacturing companies in Minnesota employ more than 430,000 people, and that number is expected to reach 472,000 by 2008," said Governor Venture. "In addition, manufacturing in our state provides the second largest total payroll of any business sector, providing about $19 billion in wages to working Minnesotans."

"Manufacturers and Technology Month provides opportunities to recognize both large and small manufacturers across Minnesota," said Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development Commissioner Rebecca Yanisch. "Fostering statewide rural economic diversity is a major initiative of this administration, and Minnesota's manufacturers have played, and will continue to play, an important role in achieving this economic development goal."

Minnesota manufacturers see better business conditions on the horizon, according to a survey conducted by DTED and the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. About 80 percent expect to see employment increase or stabilize at current levels during the second half of 2001.

Local officials or organizations that would like to recognize a business or businesses with a governor's certificate of commendation during Minnesota Manufacturers and Technology Month should call Judy Parker, DTED, at 651-296-5022 or 1-800-657-3858. If you want to plan an event honoring local manufacturers, please contact Marilyn Ruhberg at the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce, 651-292-4650; 651-292-4656 (fax).

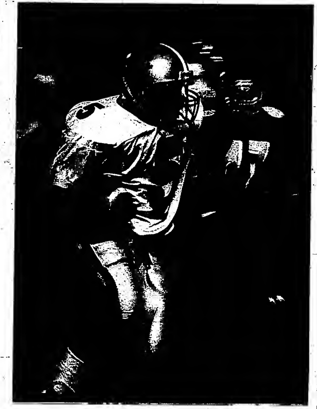
The TIMES



Trying to reach the corner of the end zone, Duluth East runningback Chris Siljendahl was caught short of the goal line by Thief River Falls defender Patrick Cox (47) on the two-point conversion attempt following the Greyhounds' first quarter touchdown in Friday's high school football game at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers won their 2001 home opener 27-18.

Duluth East is first TRF win

■ Prowlers pick up initial conference victory, 27-18

Thief River Falls head high school football coach Jeff Mumm spent months tinkering with the playbook to produce a few new wrinkles for his offense. But it took only a couple of weeks for him to realize that the old stuff worked better than the revised edition. Friday, the plays that have helped produce winning records nine of the past ten years were once again being called from the sidelines. And they worked as the Prowlers beat Duluth East 27-18 at the Multi-Events Center.

It was their first win after a pair of season-opening losses on the road, and it marked the Prowlers' first-ever victory as a member of the Super Sea Range Conference – a league they joined this fall to help alleviate yearly scheduling problems.

"This is as good a win as we've ever had," said Mumm. "It's a great feeling to be able to say you just won a conference game."

But it wasn't easy. Plagued by penalties and turnovers, the Prowlers, after leading 7-6 at halftime, found themselves trailing 12-7 through three quarters.

"It was just a lot of little things that killed us," explained Mumm. "We did some good things on offense. We moved the ball. But we couldn't finish."

In the end, it was a familiar brand of football that carried the Prowlers past the Greyhounds, who brought a 1-1 record to Thief River Falls. "We went back to what we've be doing for years," said Mumm. "We went to the T-formation with some misdirection; power football. It's something that, if we're running it the way we're suppose to run it, we do better than anybody else."

Switches in the backfield have proved beneficial, according to Mumm. Aric Berg, who played linebacker, but was not part of the offense in a 47-14 first-game loss to Albany, took over the fullback job In Week 2 when the Prowlers lost to Duluth Denfeld 20-14. Friday, he scored three touchdowns on runs of 19, 2 and 8 yards.

Trent Christensen was moved from fullback to halfback and, when teamed with Berg, gives the Prowlers two power runners inside.

"There's nothing fancy about having Aric and Trent lined up in the backfield, but it gives us two really hard runners," noted Mumm.

With Berg and Christensen drawing attention in the middle, opponents find themselves vulnerable on the outside. And that's where Jon Swanson comes into play. The 5-10, 180-pound senior, who runs hard through traffic and follows that with breakaway speed in the open, had five runs of 25 yards or more and finished with 219 yards on 14 carries.

"Jon Swanson is a premier runningback," offered Mumm. "He is one of the better runningbacks in the conference. People in the league know about him already."

A 27-yard Robby Anderson pass to Walter Forney preceded a 37-yard Swanson touchdown run 8:16 into the game. Swanson burst through the right side of the line and ran out of the arms of a would-be tackler at the 20. Stephan Hahn's conversion kick made it 7-0.

Duluth East answered with an 11-play 65-yard drive that resulted in a 7-yard touchdown run by Chris Siljendahl, who took a pitch and went around the right side untouched on a fourth-and-goal play with 1:11 to go in the first quarter. The same play was stopped, however, on the conversion attempt.

That was it for scoring until the Greyhounds opened the second half with a nearly five-minute, 12-play, 63-yard drive to go ahead 12-7 on a 23-yard pass from Erik Lillejord to Brian Rechichi.

The game turned when the Prowlers stopped a pitch-out to Siljendahl for no gain on a fourth-and-one from the Thief River Falls 26 with 2:24 left in the third quarter, and moments later Swanson stepped through the line, ran through a couple of defenders in the secondary and went 49 yards before being pulled down at the Duluth East 19.

Berg scored on the next snap – the first play of the fourth quarter – as he went through a big hole created by his blockers in the middle of the Greyhounds' defense.

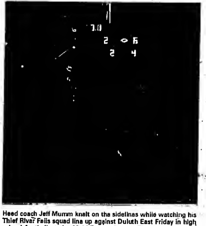
Same scenario repeated itself when Duluth East was stopped on another fourth-and-goal situation and Swanson promptly broke off a 64-yard run that was followed by a 2-yard Berg touchdown and a 21-12 scoreboard spread.

Failure to come up with a first down on a fourth-and-10 at their own 35 with 3:30 to play, the Greyhounds handed the Prowlers an insurance touchdown on another back-to-back Swanson (27 yards) and Berg (8 yards, touchdown) combination.

Duluth East made one last bid to get back into the game when a 41-yard Lillejord pass to Bryan Crain that carried to the Thief River Falls 1-yard line set up a Peter Homstad dive for a 27-18 difference with 1:11 on the clock. A two-point conversion would have produced a one-score spread and made an ensuing on-side kick a major factor. Instead, the visitors wound up 0-for-3 on the point-after chart when the Prowlers stopped a dive by Siljendahl.

Thief River Falls rushed for 344 and finished with 406 yards worth of offense. But Duluth East still had an edge there with 423 yards – thanks to a 16-for-34, 234-yard passing performance by Lillejord.

The Prowlers will be back on the road Friday for a 7:30 p.m. Super Sea Range game at Grand Rapids.



Head coach Jeff Mumm knelt on the sidelines while watching his Thief River Falls squad line up against Duluth East Friday in high school football at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers overcame a 12-7 third quarter deficit to beat the Greyhounds 27-18 for their first win in three starts this fall.

Schedule

■ Saturday, Sept. 22 - (all games 1:30 p.m.) Fergus Falls at Northland, Central Lakes at Hibbing; Minnesota West at Itasca; Ridgewater at Rainy River

Maurice Johnson rushed for 233 yards and scored three touchdowns Saturday to lead Northland past Minnesota West 27-6 in Minnesota Community College Conference football at Worthington.

Johnson, a 5-10, 195-pound runningback from Chicago, had touchdown runs of 46, 66 and 30 yards among his 23 carries.

It was the first win for new Northland football coach Guy Finstrom, whose team lost season-opening games to Rochester 46-6 and Central Lakes 47-32. "It's a relief to get that first one," he acknowledged.

After giving up 92 points to the Yellowjackets and Raiders, holding the Blue Jays to a single touchdown was the biggest cause for celebration, according to Finstrom. "The defense really picked it up," he said. "They did a great job."

Among the accomplishments on defense, pointed out Finstrom, was the Pioneers' ability to hold Mark Hickman to 97 yards rushing. He set a school record a week earlier with 303 yards in a 20-14 loss to Hibbing.

Northland also came up with a key goal line stand to end the first half. Tied at 6-6, the Blue Jays had a first-and-goal at the Pioneers' 2-yard line in the final minute, but failed to score on four running plays.

"That was a huge goal line stand," emphasized Finstrom. And when Northland opened the second half with a first-possession 66-yard Johnson scoring play, the sequence of events amounted to a two-touchdown swing on the scoreboard.

Steve Crummy added 65 yards to the Northland ground game on 19 carries. The Pioneers tacked on 99 yards through the air, but on not-so-effective 5-for-15 passing.

"We've improved offensively," said Finstrom. "We still have to be stronger - throwing the ball, but we want to concentrate on how much we've improved and give the kids credit for that."

Minnesota West gained just 97 yards on the ground and 140 through the air – a 237-yard total.

Ben Myers and Nate Sorvig, a pair of freshmen from Thief River Falls, had big days for the Pioneers' defense, according to Finstrom. Myers collected 20 points in the Pioneers' defensive scoring scheme – an impressive figure, noted Finstrom, while Sorvig ran down a Minnesota West ball carrier from behind to save a touchdown when the Pioneers were trying to protect a 12-6 lead.

Minnesota West, a 12-6 winner when the two teams last met in the MCCC state playoff semifinals last fall, fell to 0-4 with the setback.

Northland will host Fergus Falls Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. game at the Multi-Events Center that will close out the Pioneers' season-opening schedule against MCCC Southern Division schools. Their final five starts will be against Northern Division rivals Mesabi Range, Hibbing, Vermilion, Rainy River, and Itasca.

NCTC splits matches

Rainy River beat Northland a second time this year Friday night 3-2, but the Pioneers came back none-the-worse for wear the next afternoon to sweep Hibbing 3-0 for a Minnesota Community College Conference weekend volleyball split at home.

The Voyageurs got by the Pioneers 31-29, 22-30, 29-31, 30-27, 15-7.

"We probably should have won the match," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "We played well early, but fell apart at the end."

Christel Berube had 14 kills and 12 blocks for the Pioneers, while Kylie Rogalla turned in a 10-kill, 12-block effort and Mandy Caspers registered 12 kills.

"We played well at the net, but I didn't think we did all the little things we need to do to be successful," said Zachow.

Northland was able to put together a complete package against Hibbing to win 30-20, 30-20, 30-19.

"We played really well," reported Zachow. "Hibbing is not that bad of a team, but we won handily," noted Zachow. "I give our tream a lot of

Luther Newton of Northwest Joint Powers in Grygla engaged students in a discussion about deer before they played the "Deer Population Game" at Outdoor Education Day on Wednesday, September 12, at Oakland Park. Newton was assisted by Nicole Bemd of the West Polk County Soil Water Conservation District. The annual event was enjoyed by 203 sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Grygla and area home schools. Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District, sponsor of the event, extends its appreciation to Pizza Hut for providing door prizes, Northern Lights for use of its ice cream wagon, Dean foods for a discount on ice cream and Pennington Main for a discount on the pizzas served to presenters and teachers.

Nova Savino of the Minnesota Science Museum selected helpers from her audience as she discussed water at the 4th annual Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park on Wednesday, September 12. The event was sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District. Participants included sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Grygla and area home schools.

After learning about waste sites, students had the opportunity to enjoy "Incredible Edible Landfills" at the 4th annual Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park on Wednesday, September 12. The event is sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District. This year 201 sixth grade students from Thief River Falls, Goodridge and Grygla and two home school students participated in the event. The landfill activity was led by Bill Craig, Marshall County Extension Agent, and Jenaan Lovoid of the Roseau County Soil and Water Conservation District.

"Bubbleology" was a favorite station at last week's Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park. Presenters of the bubble activity were Lisa Newton and Cheryl Sistad of the Marshall-Beltrami County Soil and Water Conservation District. The annual event is sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Governor declares Manufacturers and Technology Month

Minnesota Governor Jesse Ventura has declared October 22 through November 23, as 2001 Minnesota Manufacturers and Technology Month. This is the eighth annual recognition for over 9,300 Minnesota manufacturing businesses that contribute to local economics through jobs, business and community development.

Last year, hundreds of Minnesotan manufacturers were acknowledged during luncheons, plant tours, local celebrations and other activities. Participation is likely to grow this year as local developers, companies, business and civic leaders across the state become involved in this special statewide event.

"Right now, manufacturing companies in Minnesota employ more than 430,000 people, and that number is expected to reach 472,000 by 2008," said Governor Venture. "In addition, manufacturing in our state provides the second largest total payroll of any business sector, providing about $19 billion in wages to working Minnesotans."

"Manufacturers and Technology Month provides opportunities to recognize both large and small manufacturers across Minnesota," said Minnesota Department of Trade and Economic Development Commissioner Rebecca Yanisch. "Fostering statewide rural economic diversity is a major initiative of this administration, and Minnesota's manufacturers have played, and will continue to play, an important role in achieving this economic development goal."

Minnesota manufacturers see better business conditions on the horizon, according to a survey conducted by DTED and the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis. About 80 percent expect to see employment increase or stabilize at current levels during the second half of 2001.

Local officials or organizations that would like to recognize a business or businesses with a governor's certificate of commendation during Minnesota Manufacturers and Technology Month should call Judy Parker, DTED, at 651-296-5022 or 1-800-657-3858. If you want to plan an event honoring local manufacturers, please contact Marilyn Ruhberg at the Minnesota Chamber of Commerce, 651-292-4650; 651-292-4656 (fax).

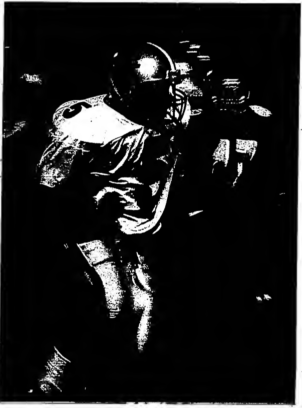
The TIMES



Trying to reach the corner of the end zone, Duluth East runningback Chris Siljendahl was caught short of the goal line by Thief River Falls defender Patrick Cox (47) on the two-point conversion attempt following the Grayhounds' first quarter touchdown in Friday's high school football game at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers won their 2001 home opener 27-18.

Duluth East is first TRF win

■ Prowlers pick up initial conference victory, 27-18

Thief River Falls head high school football coach Jeff Mumm spent months tinkering with the playbook to produce a few new wrinkles for his offense. But it took only a couple of weeks for him to realize that the old stuff worked better than the revised edition. Friday, the plays that have helped produce winning records nine of the past ten years were once again being called from the sidelines. And they worked as the Prowlers beat Duluth East 27-18 at the Multi-Events Center.

It was their first win after a pair of season-opening losses on the road, and it marked the Prowlers' first-ever victory as a member of the Super Sea Range Conference – a league they joined this fall to help alleviate yearly scheduling problems.

"This is as good a win as we've ever had," said Mumm. "It's a great feeling to be able to say you just won a conference game."

But it wasn't easy. Plagued by penalties and turnovers, the Prowlers, after leading 7-6 at halftime, found themselves trailing 12-7 through three quarters.

"It was just a lot of little things that killed us," explained Mumm. "We did some good things on offense. We moved the ball. But we couldn't finish."

In the end, it was a familiar brand of football that carried the Prowlers past the Greyhounds, who brought a 1-1 record to Thief River Falls. "We went back to what we've be doing for years," said Mumm. "We went to the T-formation with some misdirection; power football. It's something that, if we're running it the way we're suppose to run it, we do better than anybody else."

Switches in the backfield have proved beneficial, according to Mumm. Aric Berg, who played linebacker, but was not part of the offense in a 47-14 first-game loss to Albany, took over the fullback job in Week 2 when the Prowlers lost to Duluth Denfeld 20-14. Friday, he scored three touchdowns on runs of 19, 2 and 8 yards.

Trent Christensen was moved from fullback to halfback and, when teamed with Berg, gives the Prowlers two power runners inside.

"There's nothing fancy about having Aric and Trent lined up in the backfield, but it gives us two really hard runners," noted Mumm.

With Berg and Christensen drawing attention in the middle, opponents find themselves vulnerable on the outside. And that's where Jon Swanson comes into play. The 5-10, 180-pound senior, who runs hard through traffic and follows that with breakaway speed in the open, had five runs of 25 yards or more and finished with 219 yards on 14 carries.

"Jon Swanson is a premier runningback," offered Mumm. "He is one of the better runningbacks in the conference. People in the league know about him already."

A 27-yard Robby Anderson pass to Walter Forney preceded a 37-yard Swanson touchdown run 8:16 into the game. Swanson burst through the right side of the line and ran out of the arms of a would-be tackler at the 20. Stephan Hahn's conversion kick made it 7-0.

Duluth East answered with an 11-play 65-yard drive that resulted in a 7-yard touchdown run by Chris Siljendahl, who took a pitch and went around the right side untouched on a fourth-and-goal play with 1:11 to go in the first quarter. The same play was stopped, however, on the conversion attempt.

That was it for scoring until the Greyhounds opened the second half with a nearly five-minute, 12-play, 63-yard drive to go ahead 12-7 on a 23-yard pass from Erik Lillejord to Brian Rechichi.

The game turned when the Prowlers stopped a pitch-out to Siljendahl for no gain on a fourth-and-one from the Thief River Falls 26 with 2:24 left in the third quarter, and moments later Swanson stepped through the line, ran through a couple of defenders in the secondary and went 49 yards before being pulled down at the Duluth East 19.

Berg scored on the next snap – the first play of the fourth quarter – as he went through a big hole created by his blockers in the middle of the Greyhounds' defense.

Same scenario repeated itself when Duluth East was stopped on another fourth-and-goal situation and Swanson promptly broke off a 64-yard run that was followed by a 2-yard Berg touchdown and a 21-12 scoreboard spread.

Failure to come up with a first down on a fourth-and-10 at their own 35, with 3:30 to play, the Greyhounds handed the Prowlers an insurance touchdown on another back-to-back Swanson (27 yards) and Berg (8 yards, touchdown) combination.

Duluth East made one last bid to get back into the game when a 41-yard Lillejord pass to Bryan Crain that carried to the Thief River Falls 1-yard line set up a Peter Homstad dive for a 27-18 difference with 1:11 on the clock. A two-point conversion would have produced a one-score spread and made an ensuing on-side kick a major factor. Instead, the visitors wound up 0-for-3 on the point-after chart when the Prowlers stopped a dive by Siljendahl.

Thief River Falls rushed for 344 and finished with 406 yards worth of offense. But Duluth East still had an edge there with 423 yards – thanks to a 16-for-34, 234-yard passing performance by Lillejord.

The Prowlers will be back on the road Friday for a 7:30 p.m. Super Sea Range game at Grand Rapids.

Head coach Jeff Mumm knelt on the sidelines while watching his Thief River Falls squad line up against Duluth East Friday in high school football at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers overcame a 12-7 third quarter deficit to beat the Greyhounds 27-18 for their first win in three starts this fall.

Minnesota West, a 12-6 winner when the two teams last met in the MCCC state playoff semifinals last fall, fell to 0-4 with the setback.

Northland will host Fergus Falls Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. game at the Multi-Events Center that will close out the Pioneers' season-opening schedule against MCCC Southern Division schools. Their final five starts will be against Northern Division rivals Mesabi Range, Hibbing, Vermilion, Rainy River, and Itasca.

Mustangs pick up first win of season, 28-14

Adam Koralewski led the offense and Doug Melby sparked the defense Saturday as Red Lake County Central doubled Northome/Kelliher 28-14 in high school football at Oklee.

Koralewski, a 5-7, 192-pound senior, rushed for 113 yards on 13 carries and scored two touchdowns. On the other side of the ball, Melby, a 5-9, 145-pound senior, had eight tackles, three assisted stops and intercepted three passes, returning one of them for a touchdown.

It was the first win after a pair of season-opening losses for the Mustangs.

"Not too bad," was the way Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl described the Mustangs' performance, "but we had way too many penalties."

Red Lake County Central had two touchdowns called back by penalties, but they did have a 22-8 halftime lead, and clinched it on a 30-yard Melby-to-Ryan Paradis touchdown pass late in the fourth quarter.

It was Melby and the Mustangs' defense that got things going when he intercepted a pass and returned it 57 yards for a first quarter touchdown. A quarterback sack by Colton Determan had put the visitors into a third-and-long situation to force the pass.

Koralewski scored on a 6-yard run, and after a 7-yard Northome/Kelliher touchdown run by Shawn Gibbs, the Mustangs came right back with a 15-yard Carl Dugstad pass to Paradis that was promptly followed by a 42-yard Koralewski touchdown run for the 14-point halftime spread.

A 28-yard Jesse White touchdown run chopped the difference to a single touchdown in the third quarter, but Melby and Paradis hooked up on a 30-yard scoring play that put it away down the stretch.

The winners gained 223 yards on 32 running plays, and added 75 yards on 6-for-11 passing.

Melby took over the job of running the offense after starting quarterback Carl Dugstad joined the list of injured Red Lake County Central players on the sidelines.

All six completions by the Mustangs' two quarterbacks went to Paradis.

In addition to Melby's play, the Mustangs' defense featured Paradis with 9 tackles, 4 assists, an interception and two pass knockdowns; Thor Veileson with 4 tackles, 3 assists and a sack; and Wade Longtin with 3 tackles, 4 assists, and a sack.

A Red Lake County Central game at Climax/Fisher, postponed a week earlier following the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C., was rescheduled for Sept. 18 by the Knights. With Red Lake coming to Plummer Friday, the Mustangs' schedule became jammed with three games in a seven-day span.

Complicating the situation for the Mustangs is a lack of depth due to a rash of early-season absences.

The Merchants went 4-2 during the 36-team double-elimination event played Aug. 25-26 in Sauk Rapids. Brett Brandon led the team with a .714 tournament batting average. He hit three home runs and drove in 16 runs. Andy Peterson hit .653 with two home runs and seven RBI. Brenda Adamek led the women's portion of the line-up with a .368 batting average and two RBI, while Alice Dahl and Angie Anderson both hit .333 and drove in three runs. The team included, front row from left, Jon Wikstrom, Drew Lemley, Darren Jacobsen, Vinnie Miremontes, Robbie Anderson, Andy Peterson, Brett Brandon; back row, Jessica Jacobsen, Karan Wickstrom, Alice Dahl, Brenda Adamek, and Angie Anderson.

Prowlers win swim triangular

Thief River Falls out-scored Detroit Lakes and Perham to win a triangular girls high school swim meet Thursday at the Franklin Middle School pool.

It was a delayed 2001 home opener for first-year head coach Jill Buck and the Prowlers, who saw a scheduled meet at Franklin a week earlier called off at the last minute due to pool problems related to a late-afternoon storm.

The Prowlers won eight of the 12 events, including a pair of individual wins for Chelsea Haviland in the 100 butterfly and diving.

Other individual Thief River Falls first place finishes were turned in by Jenny Lindquist, 200 freestyle; Brittany Haviland, 50 freestyle; Allyson Helling, 100 freestyle; and Carli Cota, 500 freestyle.

Cami Hendrickson, Brittany Haviland, Chelsea Haviland and Helling combined on a pair of relay wins – the 200 and 400 freestyle.

Nordics out-score Blue Devils

Three weeks into the 2001 high school football season, Marshall County Central remains unbeaten and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke is still looking for its first win following the Nordics' 34-30 Friday victory over the Blue Devils at Goodridge.

"We gave up too many big plays," pointed out Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "We played okay at times, but we had some defensive breakdowns that cost us the game."

Cory Osthy had a big night for the Blue Devils, rushing for 276 yards on 40 carries. The 5-11, 170-pound senior scored on runs of 4, 11 and 3 yards.

A John Polansky conversion pass to Casey Jones followed the final Osthy touchdown, pulling the Blue Devils within 34-30 with 40 seconds to play. But when the ensuing onside kick went to the Nordics, the outcome was sealed.

Led by Osthy's running and 7-for-9 passing by Polansky for 70 yards, the Blue Devils netted 399 yards worth of offense. But they couldn't stop the Nordics, who collected 373 yards – 303 on 37 running passing and 70 more yards on a modest, but very effective, 1-for-2 passing performance by quarterback Adam Reisen.

Marshall County Central attack, led by Jake Anderson in season-opening wins over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Kittson Central, was headed by Louis Peterson this time. With the defense geared to stop Anderson, Peterson broke loose for 176 yards on only 11 carries. He was also on the receiving end of a Reisen touchdown pass. Anderson still contributed 84 yards on 16 carries.

"We made a lot of mistakes defensively and Goodridge/Grygla capitalized," reported Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "They kept pounding away at us."

Offensively, the the points and yards look impressive on paper, but Parker is still looking for more. "We're still not satisfied on offense," he said. "We're making some mistakes. We can still be more efficient."

Friday, Marshall County Central heads to Stephen-Argyle in a match-up of 3-0 Top of the State Conference teams while Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke goes on the road to play North Star.

Blue Devils' '88, '89, '91 squads will be honored

Players, coaches, managers and cheerleaders from the 1988, 1989 and 1991 Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke high school football teams will be honored during homecoming festivities Sept. 28 in Goodridge.

The Blue Devils will play East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at 7 p.m. that night. The special guests are asked to be at the field by 6:30. They will be introduced to the crowd, and are invited to attend a reception in their honor following the game.

The ceremonies recognize the program's first conference championship (1988), first sectional title (1989) and its Prep Bowl state playoff runner-up finish (1991).

Individuals who were not contacted by letter but would like to attend the recognition event are asked to call either the Goodridge (378-4133) or Grygla-Gatzke (294-6155) schools to have their names added to the introduction list.

Pre-game ceremonies prior to the start of the Thief River Falls vs. Duluth East high school football match-up Friday at the Multi-Events Center featured a moment of silence and lighting of candles by players, coaches, fans and officials in memory of the victims of the Tuesday terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. The Prowlers, who were joined by parents of the seniors for the Parent Night introductions, lined up on the field, with the Duluth players and coaches right behind them.

Prowlers are fifth at W-A-O tourney

Winless through the first nine matches, Thief River Falls finally enjoyed a taste of success Saturday with a 2-1-1 consolation trophy-winning performance at the Warren-Alvarado-Oslo Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

The Prowlers opened the day with a tie against Stephen-Argyle, winning the first game 15-5, but losing the second game by the same score.

Thief River Falls' second start in the round-robin pool play portion of the tournament produced a 15-10, 15-11 win over Tri-County.

Kittson Central, the eventual tournament champion, handled the Prowlers 15-2, 15-0 in Round 3.

That produced a consolation match-up with host Warren-Alvarado-Oslo in the trophy round, where the Prowlers beat the Pirates 15-12, 15-10.

"It was nice to come away with our first two wins," Erika Jensen, the Prowlers' co-head coach, along with Kelly Skeim. "The tie felt kind of good, too, since it was the first match, and it came against Stephen-Argyle, a team that beat us earlier this year. Overall, we played well. Kittson Central has a very tough team – they had the dominant team in the tournament – but otherwise we were very competitive."

Strong tournament performances, according to Jensen, were turned in by the Prowlers' Brenda Kopari and Melissa Skjerven. "Brenda played very well for us; she really stepped up big time," said Jensen. "Melissa played a strong front row."

The 2-10-1 Prowlers will be idle until Saturday when they host their annual Northern Lites Invitational.

"This was a big step for us," said Jensen. "Hopefully it will give us some confidence, and we can continue to improve."

Pioneers golf at Brainerd meet

■ Two-day tournamnent won by Central Lakes

Minnesota Community College Conference golf teams converged at Izaty's Resort south of Brainerd for the Sunday-Monday Central Lakes invitational played over a pair of 18-hole courses.

Central Lakes Red, led by medalist Joe Sauer, won the 12-team men's event. A 13th MCCC member, Ridgewater, was on hand for just one of the two days.

The Raiders fielded the only complete women's team, and they also had the medalist – Melanie Wilson.

"The two courses were very tough – challenging," pointed out Northland coach Rick Nikunen, whose men's team, minus two of its top players (Chad Latvala, Shane Peterson) finished seventh. "Playing shorthanded like we did, I didn't put a lot of stock in how we did as a team," he said.

Central Lakes Invitational

State has new cases of watermilfoil infestation

As the 2001 boating season winds down, the discovery of Eurasian watermilfoil in two more Minnesota lakes brings this year's total to 11. Statewide, 126 lakes and six rivers or streams are known to have milfoil.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources recently confirmed the presence of this harmful exotic plant in Norway Lake near Spicer, and Cedar Lake in Rice County near Faribault.

"The number of new infestations so far this year, while disconcerting, has stayed within the levels we have experienced in recent years," said Chip Welling, DNR Eurasian watermilfoil Program coordinator.

Last year 15 new waterbodies were found to be infested with milfoil. And while the major part of the boating season may be behind us, Welling cautions late season boaters and duck hunters about the continuing threat of spread.

"Late in the season, the plant can still root and become established in a new lake," Welling said. "Boaters need to continue their vigilance, and clean all plants from their boats and trailers before leaving the access."

Although 126 Minnesota lakes now have milfoil, this represents only one percent of all the lakes in the state.

"Users of Minnesota's lakes and rivers need to continue to work to prevent the spread of milfoil to the 99 percent of our lakes that did not have the exotic," Welling said.

DNR fills vacancies in Enforcement Division

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced the recent promotion of five conservation officers to fill existing vacancies.

Capt. Perry Bollum, 40, has been assigned as Regional Enforcement Supervisor in Rochester. Most recently, he served as Wetlands Enforcement Officer Team Leader based in the Grand Rapids area. A native of Redwood Falls, Bollum has worked for the DNR since 1976.

A graduate of the University of Minnesota, Bollum served in field stations at Fort Snelling State Park, Apple Valley and Ortonville. He worked as a Regional Training Officer for the Enforcement Division in Bemidji, and later Rochester, before moving to Grand Rapids in 1993.

Promoted to the rank of captain and named Regional Enforcement Supervisor in Bemidji is Roger Tietz, 40. He recently served as Enforcement Training Coordinator at Camp Ripley since 1997, with previous assignments in Brainerd, Fort Snelling, Lakeville, Mankato and Waseca.

Tietz, who has moved through the ranks of field officer, lieutenant and captain, has worked for the DNR since 1982. He attended Normandale Community College and Minnesota State University-Mankato. Tietz is a graduate of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute's School of Police Staff and Command, the professional program that prepares top law enforcement officers for leadership positions.

Promoted to the rank of lieutenant and named District Supervisor in Marshall is Conservation Officer Wally Augeson, 51. Augeson joined the DNR Enforcement Division in 1980 serving most of his career as a field officer in the Marshall area.

Augeson, a former Montevideo and Dawson police officer, attended Willmar Community College and the University of Arizona. He is a Vietnam era veteran having served in the U.S. Air Force.

Promoted to the rank of lieutenant and named District Supervisor in Mankato is Conservation Officer Rod Smith, 29. He joined the DNR in 1997.

Prior to the DNR Smith worked for the Minneapolis Police Department for three years. He is a graduate of St. Cloud State University and the DNR Enforcement Conservation Officer Academy at Camp Ripley. Previous field officer assignments include Long Prairie and Cass Lake.

Promoted to the rank of lieutenant and named District Supervisor in Eveleth is Conservation Officer Mike Ramstorf, 31. He is a graduate of Alexandria Technical College, Bemidji State University, and the DNR Enforcement Conservation Officer Academy at Camp Ripley.

Prior to joining the DNR in 1998, the Wadena native worked for the Park Rapids Police Department from 1989 to 1998. Previous field officer assignments include Thief River Falls, Mahnomen and Becker counties.

"Citizens of Minnesota can be extremely proud and confident in these critical appointments," said Col. Bill Bernhjelm, DNR Enforcement Division chief. "All five individuals have clearly demonstrated their leadership capabilities throughout their careers."

Bernhjelm said he believes that all of these officers will be assets to the Enforcement Division and the DNR, and that they have earned these promotions through their performance and the respect of their peers.

2nd Annual Great Minnesota River Birding Day

The first Saturday of autumn is historically a peak time for the fall migration of many bird species in Minnesota. And for the second year in a row, it's also the day hundreds of people will spread out along the Minnesota River Valley to observe and count migrating birds as part of one of Minnesota's largest citizen-science events: the Great Minnesota River Birding Day. This year the day will be held on Saturday, September 22.

The event will send 30 teams out to designated sections of the Great Minnesota River Valley Birding Trail. Those teams will be led by some of the top birding experts in the state, and will collect important information about birds spotted at the 80 proposed birding sites along the trail. At 3:00 p.m., the teams will gather at the Ney Environmental Center in Henderson for a catered event to share the day's results, tell stories about their experiences in the field and collect prizes such as a pair of Nikon binoculars, courtesy of Nikon Sports Optics.

The public is strongly encouraged to join a team and join in the fun. Interested participants can select a team according to area-covered or team leader, and register by calling Minnesota River Valley Birding Trail Committee Member Bob Williams at 612-728-2232 or e-mailing him at Bop@mr.net.

"People that live along the Minnesota River Valley are very lucky, because every autumn the fall migration brings hundreds of rare and exciting species of birds right to them: species that you ordinarily have to travel to the Arctic or Central America to see," says Betsy Danh of Audubon Minnesota. "For everyone from the knowledgeable birder to someone who just likes to be outdoors and watch wildlife, this event is a terrific opportunity to fully appreciate the splendor of the fall migration by seeing it through the eyes of a trained birding expert."

Last year, Great Minnesota River Valley Birding Day teams tallied more than 144 species of birds, including such interesting species as bald eagles, peregrine falcons, ospreys, barred owls and pileated woodpeckers, as well as many different varieties of warblers. For a complete list of birds counted at last year's event, as well as more information about the Minnesota River Valley Birding Trail, visit www.birdingtrail.org.

Warning is given to Minnesota hunters...

Be on watch for diseased deer

State wildlife and health officials are reminding deer hunters to take proper precautions when handling deer carcasses following the discovery of anthrax in dozens of cattle and two deer in northwestern Minnesota.

As of Aug. 31, approximately 70 dead cows had tested positive for anthrax at 18 sites among Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties. Also, a dead deer found in Kittson County and another in Roseau County both tested positive for anthrax. Though deer likely have contracted anthrax before, these are the first confirmed Minnesota cases of deer contracting the disease in recent history.

Minnesota's archery deer season opened Sept. 15. Although the chances of a hunter contracting anthrax from venison are slim, state wildlife officials believe that it's possible for a deer hunter to encounter a diseased deer. State health officials emphasized that routine precautions for the safe handling of deer meat should greatly reduce any small risk that exists.

One of the oldest diseases known to humans, anthrax is caused by a type of bacteria known as Bacillus anthracis. When exposed to air, anthrax bacteria produce spores that can survive for many years in soil and then grow rapidly in warm, wet conditions. Animals become infected when bacteria or spores enter the body. Outbreaks occur usually in late summer during rainy weather.

Any warm-blooded animal can contract the disease, but it is most common in cattle and sheep. Outbreaks among cattle occur occasionally in Minnesota.

Risk of anthrax infection in humans is remote. No human cases have been reported in Minnesota for at least 20 years.

When people do become infected, it is almost always because bacteria or spores have entered the body through a cut or an open sore. Most anthrax infections in humans are easily treated with antibiotics.

Because they may be handling the carcasses of infected animals, deer hunters may face a slightly higher-than-normal risk of infection - although the risk is still extremely low, say state health officials. In Minnesota, infected deer are most likely to be found in Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties.

It is highly unlikely that hunters will actually encounter a diseased deer, said Joe Mareino, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources pathologist, because any deer that do become infected will get sick and die within 24 hours. Mareino added that the bacteria don't grow in cool weather, so the likelihood of deer contracting the disease will greatly decline as the deer hunting season progresses.

"Once the temperatures drop below 59 degrees, there's no growth of Bacillus anthracis," he said.

Hunters and others spending time in the outdoors in the affected counties can reduce risk by taking the following precautions:

- People who see a dead deer should not handle the animal, but should note the animal's location and report it to the DNR by calling Joe Mareino at 651-296-3043.
- Hunters should not shoot any deer that is staggering or otherwise behaving strangely, or that has an unusual appearance.
- Hunters should not open up the carcass after shooting a deer with possible signs of illness, such as a swollen neck, open sores or lesions, or bleeding from the nose or anus. Leave the carcass and report the location to the DNR.
- Even if a killed deer seems normal, hunters should wear rubber gloves when cleaning it, to reduce risk of infected fluids getting into open cuts and sores.
- To further reduce any potential health risks, people should cook the meat thoroughly before eating it, in order to kill any disease causing organisms that may be present.

Minnesota health and wildlife officials continue to monitor the anthrax outbreak, and will advise hunters of any new developments that may affect their health and safety.

Agassiz's National Wildlife Refuge Week celebration

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will have an open house on Saturday, September 22 from 1:00 to 5:00 p.m. and up to dark.

Events for the day include a dedication for the new Headquarters Hiking Trail at 1:30 p.m. Girl Scout and Boy Scout Troops from the area aided in the completion of the trail. At 2:00 p.m., there will be a walk through the trail.

The annual "Duck Banding With the Public" starts at 5:00. Dave Bennett, assistant manager at Agassiz, said duck are baited and then a net is shot over to catch the waterfowl. The ducks are then herded into cages and metal bands are placed on their legs. They are then released. Bennett said the project helps track where ducks go, their age when recovered and general distribution. If rain or wet ground conditions prevent banding, it will be completed on Tuesday, September 25, meeting at the headquarters at 5:30 p.m.

A presentation of the American Bittern research study will be given by Socheata Lor at 2:30 and 4:00. From 3:15 to 3:45 the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service "Status of Waterfowl" survey video will be shown. The annual North American waterfowl survey video is one of the oldest and most comprehensive in the world. Waterfowl breeding population numbers, wetland habitat conditions, fall flight forecast and history of the service's waterfowl survey are all explained in the video.

The refuge's east side gravel roads will also be open to the public to view habitat and wildlife.

In recognition of National Wildlife Refuge Week poster will be distributed at the refuge office. This years poster portrays scenes of Waterfowl Production Areas and the National Wildlife Refuge System 2003 centennial. Posters are a joint project of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Audubon Society and the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. Refreshments are provided by the Agassiz Audubon Society of Warren and the VFW of Thief River Falls, and will be served by Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and refuge staff. All activities will begin at the office building at Refuge Headquarters.

National celebration

National Wildlife Refuges within the United States Fish and Wildlife Service are celebrating National Wildlife Refuge Week October 7-13, 2001. National Wildlife Refuge Week 2001 is the seventh annual celebration leading up to the system's 100th anniversary in the year 2003. A flying blue goose symbol represents the National Wildlife Refuge System. All national wildlife refuge boundary signs have the blue goose symbol placed on them.

The National Wildlife Refuge System is the only one of its kind in the world. It is specifically dedicated to wildlife and habitat conservation. Since the establishment of the first national wildlife refuge, Pelican Island in Florida, established in 1903 by President Theodore Roosevelt, the National Wildlife Refuge System has expanded to 535 refuges. Total acreage of the National Wildlife Refuge System is more than 93 million acres. Size of refuges varies from the 0.6 acre Mille Lacs NWR on Mille Lacs Lake in Minnesota to the 20 million acre Yukon Flats NWR in Alaska. Since the celebration of the 500th refuge established in West Virginia in 1994, every state in the nation has a national wildlife refuge. Mission of the refuge system is "To provide, preserve, restore, and manage a national network of lands and waters sufficient in size, diversity, and location to meet society's needs for areas where the widest possible spectrum of benefits associated with wildlife and wildlands is enhanced and made available.

Through the establishment of national wildlife refuges, a diversity of habitats have been acquired, protected, restored, and managed for the enhancement of wildlife and the continuing benefit of the American people. Most refuges are located along the four major north-south waterfowl migration flyways. Other refuges serve as sanctuaries for endangered species or for other species requiring unique habitat.

National Wildlife Refuge Week is timed to coincide with the annual fall waterfowl migration, so millions of birds are sure to fly in to most refuges in the lower 48 states on their way south. With a North American fall forecast of 80 million ducks migrating south, bird watching should be at its best. Ducks, Canada geese and sandhill cranes will be most abundant and visible from Marshall County Road 7 and township roads adjacent to the refuge boundary at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge. Black bears have also been more observable in the oats and sunflower field on the refuge.

Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is located 23 miles northeast of Thief River Falls between Holt and Grygla. If additional information is needed, please telephone 218-449-4115, extension 214 or 211 or operator. For additional information on the refuge system and basic visitor's information for every refuge, call 1-800-344-WILD or visit the Internet home page at http://refuges.fws.gov.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is the principal federal agency responsible for conserving, protecting and enhancing fish, wildlife and plants and their habitats for the continuing benefit of the American people. The service manages the 93-million-acre National Wildlife Refuge System, which encompasses 535 national wildlife refuges, thousands of small wetlands and other special management areas. It also operates 66 national fish hatcheries, 64 fishery resource offices and 78 ecological services field stations. The agency enforces federal wildlife laws, administers the Endangered Species Act, manages migratory bird populations, restores nationally significant fisheries, conserves and restores wildlife habitat such as wetlands, and helps foreign governments with their conservation efforts. It also oversees the Federal Aid Program that distributes hundreds of millions of dollars in excise taxes on fishing and hunting equipment to state fish and wildlife agencies.

Minnesota duck stamp contest winner named

A ruddy duck will be featured on the 2002 Minnesota Migratory Waterfowl Stamp. The painting by John Freiberg of Mounds View was chosen as the winning design from among 43 entries in the stamp contest sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. Freiberg finished third in last year's contest.

Sixteen entries advanced to the second stage of judging, from which six finalists were selected Aug. 30. The other finalists were Scot Storm of Sartell, second place; John House, Evansville, third; David Chapman, Minnetonka, fourth; and Tim Bjerke, Hastings and Gary Moss of Cambridge, tied for fifth.

Four Mississippi Flyway species were eligible as subjects for the 2002 Minnesota stamp, according to Roy Norrgard, the DNR waterfowl stamp contest coordinator. "We are trying to get all flyway species onto a Minnesota stamp at least once," Norrgard said, "so next year we'll include in the contest the three remaining species (oldsquaw, white-winged scoter, common merganser)."

The six-member panel of judges this year included John Cross, outdoors writer for the Mankato Free Press; Ross Hier, DNR assistant area wildlife manager, Crookston; DNR Conservation Officer Jim Konrad, Plymouth; Greg Berg of Oakdale; and Mark Pederson, Twin Cities vice-chair of Ducks Unlimited.

The $5 stamp is required of all Minnesota waterfowl hunters ages 18 through 64. Stamp sales generate between $400,000 and $600,000 per year for habitat enhancement projects in state wildlife management areas and designated waterfowl lakes.

The DNR offers no prizes for the stamp contest winner, but the winning artist retains the right to reproduce the work, which is usually done as limited edition prints. The 2002 waterfowl stamp, which will be the 26th Minnesota stamp, will be available for sale in March 2002.

Report outlines improvements in the state's child welfare programs

Minnesota's child welfare system must do a better job to ensure children's safety and well-being, according to a recent federal report. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services report also cited several positive aspects of the state's system in its "Child and Family Services Review."

"We are concerned about the problems identified in the report," said Minnesota Human services Commissioner Michael O'Keefe. "In so many measures, Minnesota's human services programs come out at or near the top nationally. To fall short on all federal outcome measures for child welfare services, even by a small amount in some cases, is an indication that we need to work harder. This report confirms what the department and counties have recognized for some time, that we need to do a better job implementing our child welfare strategies. We are firmly committed to continue and where needed, to step up our efforts with counties to improve outcomes for children and families in Minnesota."

The Minnesota Department of Human Services is addressing the issues outlined in the report to ensure it meets federal requirements on outcomes for children's safety and well-being. This build on the progress made over a number of years, according to O'Keefe. The department must submit a program improvement plan to the federal government in the next 90 days or be fined more than $800,000.

The report identified areas for improvement in:

- Children's safety; while Minnesota met the national standards for ensuring children's safety and preventing repeat abuse and neglect in family homes and foster care homes, it still needs to improve its practices to ensure children's safety.
- Permanent families for children; too many Minnesota children move in and out of foster care too frequently and experience too many moves while in care, according to the report. However, Minnesota was successful at keeping children in foster homes in their county, keeping sibling groups together, and finding relatives to care for children. The state also met the national standard for reunifying children with their families in a timely manner.
- Children's well-being; Minnesota must do a better job of assessing families' needs, involving families in decisions and matching families' needs with available services. The state and counties must also work more toward meeting children's health and educational needs.

The report gave the state and its 87 counties, which the department oversees, positive rating in seven areas related to Minnesota's ability to deliver services for children and families, including:

- Minnesota's Social Services Information System, which is a computerized case management and data collection system for foster care, out-of-home placement, children's mental health and adoption information.
- The case review system, in which child protection court hearings and administrative reviews are handled by knowledgeable experts
- The quality assurance system, which includes the state's review of county child protection systems to ensure children's safety.
- Training through the Minnesota Child Welfare Training System, in which county and tribal social workers, foster parents, supervisors, directors, managers and other child welfare professionals receive training to complete their work in the child protection system.
- The array of services, including the availability of culturally appropriate services, throughout Minnesota.
- Agencies' responsiveness to communities, which includes the work of many programs to serve families and children with child protection, children's mental health and domestic violence intervention services.
- Foster and adoptive parent licensing, recruitment and retention in which licensing standards are uniformly applied to relative and non-relative homes of children in the system.

"The report consistently recognized Minnesota's strengths in its training, variety of services, reviews of county child protection systems and alternative approaches to serving families in the child protection system," said Sullivan Sutton.

The department, with input from citizens, counties and private agencies, conducted a statewide assessment of the state's child welfare system earlier this year. That information, combined with a federal and state team's review of 49 child welfare cases in Beltrami, Hennepin and Olmsted counties, and interviews with more than 100 key stakeholders form across the state, including judges, foster parents, case workers and advocacy group representatives, formed the bases for the report.

Minnesota is the fourth of all the states that the federal agency is assessing on outcomes of child protection, foster care and adoption services for the children and families, and the systems that support them.

The weather in northwest Minnesota has been nice and sunny as we come to the autumnal equinox, when day and night are equal in time. Perhaps it's my age that makes me feel that summer went so very fast. Now days will be shortening, but right before Christmas they will begin to lengthen until spring returns. It's wonderful we can think of another time to plant gardens and all our perennial plants will come to make us happy that we have them.

There has been so much said this week about the horror of evil that has been perpetrated on our country. What bothers me most is the slogan "we" will put an end to evil. This great nation has legislated God out of governments all the way down to kindergarten. Could it be He may have removed His protection from us? Let us hope and pray for mercy and then let us stand tall in Him.

Marcy Nelson called to tell me that Ida Blaze from Stephen and her daughter, Beverly Gieseke of White Bear Lake, had visited them on Sunday afternoon. Eddy and Marcy Nelson's granddaughter, Nicole Carlson McKee of Dallas, Texas was the next flight attendant in line to leave on an American flight on Tuesday when the airport was shut down. It must have felt eerie around there, not knowing what more could have been planned. Marcy said they were so thankful that she was safe. Keven Nelson, their son who is a paraplegic, suffered a broken leg in an accident and is now confined to his bed. If anyone wishes to write to him, his address is: 902 Third Ave., N.E., Minneapolis, MN 55413. His telephone number is 612-378-5715. He also has a computer.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson had an unusual week. Tuesday morning, they left for Grand Forks to meet Betsy's sisters, Polly Stevanson of California and Florence Strom of Florida along with her daughter, Wanda Masek, also from Florida, who had spent the summer in Wisconsin. But due to what happened in New York, the girls were stranded in Minneapolis. On Wednesday, they drove to Thompson. Polly's luggage was misplaced somewhere and didn't arrive while they were here.

Thursday evening, Nelson LeDoux of Thief River Falls, was a supper guest at the Isaac Thompson's.

Friday evening, Polly, Florence, Wanda, Isaac and Betsy went to Paradise in Strathcona for supper.

Saturday morning, Isaac and Betsy Thompson accompanied by Nelson LeDoux, Polly Stevanson, Florence Strom and Wanda Masek drove to Manahga, to visit John and Anne Handrickson and Gladys Simchuck. After dinner they were joined by Bill and Mary Simchuck of Corcoran, James Simchuck and son, Billy of Eden Prairie, Rueben and Linda and son Michael of Wadena.

Polly, Florence and Wanda went on to Wisconsin and Polly and Florence would try to fly home as soon as possible. Polly hoped to find her luggage before too long. Their visit up here was cut to two days instead of seven.

Those visiting Judy Kleinvachter this week were Betty Pietruszowski, Vance Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth and June Kasprowicz.

Pearl Thompson and Karan Thompson of Thief River Falls visited Elsie Lefrooth on Saturday. Lowell Lefrooth took Grandma Elsie to see their beautiful flower garden and their home in Strandquist.

The hummingbirds were so busy drinking a couple of weeks ago that their bodies were distended as big as my thumb. And sure enough, at the same time the Canadian Geese formed their big V's and flew over and no more hummingbirds. Don't you think they could have hitched a ride south in a neat feather bed? They had their tummies full, and a good nap; wouldn't hurt them. Roy says it is time to take in their feeder and put it away until spring. He just called from Thief River Falls to say Palmer was waking up and all went OK.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA – Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000®, lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. Suggested retail price for a four week supply is just $19.99.

How should the United States respond to attack

Hurt, but not down and out. Grieving, but not helpless. Our nation has been dealt a serious blow and how we should and will react to the terrorist attack on the United States on September 11, 2001 has been open to speculation. While visiting Web sites and getting story ideas for this newspaper, I came upon a question posed to readers of the Bismarck Tribune. I thought it was a good idea to pose the same question (with a few modifications) to individuals who choose to visit our Web site.

How should the United States respond to the terrorist attacks once it's reasonably certain who is responsible?

- Retaliatory attacks
- Diplomacy
- Bring those responsible to trial in the United States
- Bring those responsible for the attack to a World Court
- Not sure

Care to Write about the terrorist attack?

A number of newspapers have been encouraging residents to write letters to the editor to express themselves on the subject of the terrorist attack. That option has always been available to readers of The Times/Northern Watch. A few have chosen to do so in this edition. More letters are always welcome.

I also want to take this opportunity to thank the many individuals. Many who have felt a need to contribute something to the rescue and recovery effort in New York, have actually taken steps that will help. Where we have known about your efforts, we have done our best to give you credit.

Archaeological finds hint at a solution for misunderstanding

Several years ago I was talked into using a week of my vacation time as a volunteer at an archaeological site, which turned out to be at the site of an abandoned fort in South Dakota. I didn't go willingly but, after digging around half-heartedly in the dirt for a while, I came upon a button. Digging in the dirt suddenly became much more fascinating. Old foundations were discovered too, along with nails, buttons, coins and other items that had been discarded or lost.

The words "discarded" and "lost" continued to take up more of my thoughts. I began to think about those two words and a meaning for this experience. In a more abstract way I wondered whether we treat history and truth the same way? I think that in some instances, yes, definitely yes, but even at a subconscious level for others. I think it's a distinct possibility. Let's face it, there are things we would rather forget, discard or bury.

The information gathered at that archaeological site was used to create an accurate description of the fort. Later, that description and the artifacts that we found, combined with historical accounts from letters and interviews, formed the centerpiece of an interpretive center, which today helps people understand their past.

These thoughts were among the thoughts that came to mind as archaeologists unearthed a bit of history near Northland Community and Technical College recently. Perhaps the archaeologists were a bit hasty in not including everyone in the loop. I suspect that has a lot to do with inexperience, a lot of enthusiasm and a lack of understanding. There are a lot of people like that.

A cooperative effort to develop an interpretative center in Thief River Falls, on the other hand, could foster greater understanding and instead of having a situation similar to that at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, a spirit of peace and understanding might prevail here.

A couple more thoughts. First, the history of Thief River far outdates the area's "pioneer history". Secondly, we must recognize the fact that our community encompasses all citizens, and the citizens who make up Thief River Falls now, come from diverse backgrounds.

Homeless in Minnesota?

Report shows state of homelessness in Minnesota

As the number of homeless people, and especially homeless families with children, continues to grow in Minnesota, a new report explores the causes, effects, and circumstances surrounding homelessness.

The Wilder Research Center report, "Homeless Adults and Children in Minnesota," draws from interviews with more than 2,000 homeless adults and also outlines major trends since the survey was first done in 1991.

The study finds strong evidence that housing affordability plays a growing role in homelessness and in the rise of the "working homeless." The report also examines the role of mental illness and substance abuse in homelessness. Third, it finds a strong correlation between being abused, institutionalized, or homeless as a child, and being homeless as an adult.

"There is no such thing as a typical homeless person, but there are some common pathways into homelessness," said Greg Owen, who has directed the statewide study since 1991. "The better we understand those pathways, the more effectively we can work to end homelessness."

The number of people in emergency shelters, battered women's shelters, and transitional housing programs has risen steadily and substantially throughout the decade, and grew 36 percent just since 1997. On the night of the most recent survey in October 2000, 7,589 people were counted in shelters, transitional housing programs, and on the streets. Children represented 43 percent of this total. The survey conducted on October 26, 2000, reported 256 homeless people in northwestern Minnesota.

"The numbers are important in order to understand the magnitude of the issue, but the heart of this study is to understand more about homelessness and the people who are experiencing it," said Owen. "In other words, what will it take to reach the day when we no longer have thousands of Minnesotans on any given day with no stable secure place to live?"

The working poor make up a growing share of Minnesota's homeless adults, according to the report. The latest survey shows that 26 percent are working full-time, compared to only 8 percent in 1991. The proportion is the same for homeless parents who have children with them; 26 percent are working full-time.

More than one-quarter of homeless adults report that their main source of income is from steady employment. In northwestern Minnesota 24 percent of homeless adults are employed and 18 percent are working full-time.

Their wages tend to be low, with 68 percent earning less than $10 an hour, and 39 percent earning less than $8 an hour. To afford an average one-bedroom apartment in the Twin Cities area, about $660 at the time of the survey, would require an hourly wage of about $12.70. Sixty-nine percent of homeless adults in northwest Minnesota cannot find housing they can afford. Twenty-one percent are able to pay $400 or more for rent.

Fifty-one percent of homeless parents report that the scarcity of apartments with more than two bedrooms is a major barrier that keeps them from regaining stable housing.

"The sheer cost of housing, compared to income, appears to be the biggest hurdle for as many as 20 percent of homeless adults," said Owen. "These are people who do not appear to have other serious barriers such as long-term unemployment, no high school diploma, serious physical or mental health problems, or substance abuse. They simply cannot find a place they can afford."

Mental illness and substance abuse appear to be growing factors in homelessness in Minnesota. The survey found that 36 percent of homeless adults have recently had serious mental health problems, up from 20 percent in 1994. In this region, 35% of homeless adults have a serious mental illness.

Alcoholism continues to be a major factor in homelessness. One-fourth of all homeless women and nearly half of homeless men report current problems with alcohol. This is much higher than the general population; the Surgeon General estimates that in any given year, about 5 percent of adult Americans have an alcohol abuse disorder. Twenty-six percent of homeless adults in northwestern Minnesota consider themselves alcoholic or chemically dependent.

The dual diagnosis of mental illness and substance abuse problems affects 14 percent of homeless adults in Minnesota.

Traumatic experiences in childhood and youth are strikingly prevalent among homeless adults. One out of three reports being physically abused as a child, and one out of four reports being sexually abused. A total of about half, 48 percent, either were abused as children, had a child before they were 18, or lived in an out-of-home placement as a youth.

The single most common reason for women seeking temporary shelter in Minnesota is to flee an abusive partner. Thirty percent of adult women are homeless at least in part because of abuse in the past year. For 17 percent, abuse was a primary reason for leaving their last housing. Twenty-three percent of homeless women in northwestern Minnesota are fleeing from abuse.

The report draws from detailed interviews with about 2,270 homeless adults throughout the state, conducted on a single day in October 2000 by more than 500 trained volunteers. The term "homeless" includes all of those who are without a permanent place to live, including those in emergency shelters, battered women's shelter, time-limited transitional housing programs, and on the streets.

The research report and detailed survey responses are found at www.wilder.org/research. Wilder expects to publish a separate report focusing on homeless youth, not with their families, within the next month.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Disappointed with hospital Association meeting

To the Editor,

I just returned from the annual meeting of Northwest Medical Center (Association). Frankly, I was appalled at the way the meeting was conducted. Dr. Langland asked for questions following his report, but questions were refused even when someone at the back of the room asked for the chance. I'm a first time member and I had questions I wanted to ask. First, about a year ago, friends talked of being members of the Hospital Association. I asked how they became members and was told they had gotten a personal letter encouraging them to join. I thought that was a bit strange. If this is supposed to be a "community" hospital, why isn't there a general membership drive so everyone is encouraged to join? Not just a select few.

Then this spring I decided to join since I had been a patient both of the last two winters. I called the hospital, during the day, and asked how I could join. All I received as an answer was "I don't know". There was no offer to find out. I had to go to Dakota Clinic to get a membership application, which I felt was rather strange. Then about two weeks later I received a letter saying, "I had been approved for membership." Does the hospital have a committee to decide who can be a member?

All I can say is "Thief River Falls had better wake up before it is too late and do whatever it takes to resolve these conflicts. We have excellent doctors and a fine hospital. Let's do what we can to keep it that way."

Sincerely,
Gladys Hallstrom

Greater than Steel

by James E. Dillon
Thief River Falls

In the wake of our attack
The world will stand and watch
Grieving for the ones we lost
Never to come back
The devastation that was done
Is greater than just steel
It corresponds to our nation
And the way we feel
The loss of life was great and dear
We will not soon forget
For those who risk their lives
For people never met
It's torn apart our country's heart
They think that they have won
I don't think they even know
That we have not begun
To fight for freedom
And what is right
For the land we love so well
And hope for peace to come

Farmers: Take safety seriously

by Gene Hugoson
MN Dept. of Agriculture

Over the next few weeks, I will join thousands of other farmers in the fields harvesting corn, soybeans and other crops in a race with Mother Nature. For farmers, harvest is the most exciting and grueling time of the year. Many of us will be working long hours deep into the night to get our crops harvested in time. It's important to get the job done on time, but it is just as important to get it done safely.

Each year, we see a peak in the number of farm injuries around harvest time. These incidents are tragic but avoidable aspects of farm life. That's why it is fitting that National Farm Safety and Health Week (September 16-22) comes just as our harvest season is heating up. It's a great reminder to all of us that there is more at stake in the fields and silos than just a profit margin.

According to John Shutske, a farm safety and health specialist with the University of Minnesota's Extension Service, there were 24 fatal accidents among people working on Minnesota farms in the 12-month period ending June 30, 2001. That's down slightly from an annual average of 25 fatalities over the previous five years, and it continues a steady downward trend that has been in place for decades. Shutske attributes much of this improvement to safer equipment and greater awareness of safety issues among farmers.

That's encouraging news, but 24 fatal accidents is still 24 too many. Our goal should be to get that number down to zero, and it's a goal we can reach if we keep some important safety tips in mind during harvest and throughout the year.

The most common farm-related cause of death in Minnesota in the last year was being pinned under or between a tractor or other piece of equipment. Other causes of death included falls, roadway accidents, being suffocated under grain and becoming entangled in power take-off.

There are a number of steps farmers can take to prevent tragedies. Prepare machines before the harvest starts. Perform routine maintenance and replace worn parts well in advance of harvest. Machinery breakdowns during harvest are likely to result in frustration or anger that can add stress and increase a farmer's chance of having an accident.

Take the time to be safe. During harvest, it is tempting to take shortcuts that save time but may compromise safety. Farmers should always block up the combine header before working underneath it, and they should make sure safety shields are in place when operating equipment.

Be cautious on the road. In Minnesota, 69 percent of all fatal motor crashes happen in rural areas. The full harvest season is a particularly dangerous time on rural roads because many farm tractors, combines and other vehicles share the road with motorists. Speed is the biggest, single factor affecting the severity of a highway crash, so drivers can help themselves and others by driving within the posted speed limit. Farmers can also help by making their slow-moving vehicles as visible as possible.

Be prepared for combine fires. Farmers should keep the combine and other equipment as clean as possible to minimize the chance of fire. They should watch for sources of combustible materials that could lead to a fire. They should make sure they have at least one 10-pound ABC dry chemical fire extinguisher on every combine.

Take breaks to stay alert. Taking several short breaks helps farmers reduce their stress and risk of injury. It's important to get down off a machine every two hours or so, even just to stretch your legs for five minutes. Eating health snacks such as fruits, vegetables and whole-grains can help keep energy levels high.

In addition to these steps, the Extension Service reminds farmers to be aware of the risks that come after harvest. As they store grain, farmers face the risk of being trapped underneath flowing grain in silos. They also face the risk of inhaling dangerous gases that can build up in the storage buildings following harvest.

School Patrol Sworn In On Tuesday

"The twelve-member Thief River Falls school patrol Tuesday afternoon was officially sworn in for the coming year in the Lincoln high school auditorium, in connection with exercises originating at the state fair and broadcast over a statewide radio network including KTRF, Thief River Falls.

"The program here was attended by the entire high school student body, which heard Lieut. Governor C. Elmer Anderson administer the oath of office. Orville Eide, commander of the local American Legion post, sponsor of the patrol here, introduced Bert Johnson, member of the Minnesota highway patrol, who urged students and the public in general to cooperate with the school patrol in promoting traffic safety."

JayCee Howdy Days Festival October 5 And 12

"Arranged for two successive Fridays, October 5 and 12, the JayCee Howdy Days will feature a Western type of entertainment and apparel, it was announced this week by Dr. R. M. Helm, general chairman of the 1951 fall festival. He added that booster buttons will be sold at 50 cents each to assist in financing the program.

"Prescribed garb for the week of the festival will be plaid shirts and waist-high denim overalls for the men, and plaid shirts and jeans or denim skirts for the ladies.

"Events scheduled for Friday, October 5, include a caravan headed by a buckboard and horses; cigarette rolling, log-cutting, pie-eating contest; music by the high school band; Prowler-Grafton football game and a dance in the municipal auditorium.

"Slated for Friday afternoon, October 12, are various types of races, including a suitcase and wheelbarrow race and gunny sack, turkey and tractor tire races, as well as a tug-of-war. At 8 p.m. is scheduled the Prowler-Crookston Pirates football game, followed at 9:30 by a gala Howdy Days variety show in the auditorium."

Electric Stop and Go Signals Now At Main Av. & Third St.

"Thief River Falls presents a citified appearance at the intersection of Main avenue and Third street where electrically operated stop-and-go signals went into operation last Thursday after being installed by the state highway department. Police Chief Kenneth Judy reported this week that, considering the novelty of the equipment here, motorists in general were heeding the signals. For the present, he said, violators are being warned, but traffic tickets will be issued later on. Cost of the installation was approximately $2,500, of which the city is to pay $625, with the remainder to be paid by the state highway department."

Civil Air Patrol Plans Open House Tuesday Evening

"The local unit of the Civil Air Patrol will hold open house next Tuesday evening, September 25, at 7:30 in CAP headquarters on the second floor of the arena, Lieut. Bob Michalsky, commander, announced today. Several speakers will be present to discuss the activities and objectives of the organization. Invited to attend are all present and prospective CAP cadets, their parents and others interested."

We are all reeling in shock over the horrendous happenings of September 11, 2001. We mourn with the many families whose lives have been senselessly shattered. America was founded as a Christian nation and it's heartening to see how people are gathering in prayer groups. Take comfort in the hymn written in the 1700s with the first line "Built on a rock the church doth stand, even when steeples are falling" which unknowingly we sang at Immanual last Sunday. We, as a nation, are down, but with God's help, we will rise again.

Carl and Joyce Magers recently returned from spending five days at the homes of Kimberly Magers and Wade, Sarah and Chase Grinde of Spring Valley, while Kimberly was recuperating from surgery. En route home, they stopped in Bloomington at the home of Elizabeth Hamilton.

Executive Board Meets

"The executive board of the Woman's club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. H. A. Brumund. The board plans on recommending the group system of study to the club members this year and following are the groups that will be suggested: Art and Craft for the Home, Garden and Nature; Modern Literature; Citizenship; Music; Sewing and Recreation. Each group will be organized with a leader and every member is urged to join at least one, and as many more of the groups as they are interested in. If this system is adopted there will be one evening meeting of each group during the month, enabling the members who cannot attend in the afternoon to come. The first meeting of the club will be held in the Commercial club rooms Monday, October 4, and a large attendance is desired by the board. The Social Welfare committee will be hostesses at a luncheon that will be served immediately after the club meeting."

Joint Rally

"A joint rally meeting of the Junior and Senior Luther Leagues of the Trinity Lutheran church will be held in the church parlors Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A reception for the teachers in the public schools will follow this at which time a short program will be given consisting of a piano solo which will be followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. T. Reep. The pastor, S. L. Tallakson, will deliver an address of welcome, which will be responded to by Mrs. M. Bye. R. J. Lund will sing a tenor solo and a paper on following Christ in social life will be read by Miss Elaine Evenson. The program will be concluded with a song by the Junior Choir."

- Dr. Craig Mickelson

Cay & DeeJay Donlin provided information on the German Exchange Program. This would be a 2-3 week exchange between LHS and the Laurentius Gymnasium in Neuendettelsau, Bavaria. The program could involve approximately 30 students. The German students would be in TRF March 23-April 6, 2002 and the TRF students would go to Bavaria in March/April of 2003. They are still working out the details of the program, so dates may change. This would be a wonderful opportunity for our students.

Harriet Worker addressed the Board regarding the junior varsity girls' hockey program. TRFAHA will sponsor the JV team for the next two years.

A motion was made by M. Barry and seconded by R. Twistol to amend the agenda to include a resolution regarding the girls' junior varsity hockey program. Motion carried unanimously.

Carol Ihle reviewed the changes in the Grad Standards Manual for the coming year. Carol also reviewed the Goals 2000 Project and presented information on the MCA results in comparison to the state scores.

Jean Larson and Carol Ihle updated the Board on Staff Development. Their most recent meeting was spent making final preparations for the Staff Development Inservice, which will take place on August 28, 2001.

Carl Clark updated the Board on negotiations. The last meeting was very productive. They have tentatively come to agreement on some of the language items and still waiting for clarification on others. They hope to soon be moving to the financial aspects of the contract.

Harry Nelson discussed the possibility of a referendum and explained different scenarios for the 2002-2003 school year.

Irv Peterson reminded the Board of the upcoming Fall Area Meeting to be held in Kalstad. He asked that the Board let him know if they are interested in attending. He told the Board of other upcoming meetings that would be of interest to them. Irv is still working on making contacts regarding the Key Club Advisor, he will report back to the Board when he has more information.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the Minutes of the August 13, 2001 Regular Board Meeting as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by B. Kalinoski and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the bills as submitted and on file in the School District Business Office. Motion carried unanimously.

Wayne Tronnes and Anna Traxler, both from Plummer, reached for handfuls of candy to throw to eager children. Tronnes drove his home-made Model T in the 30th Annual Blast to Brooks Grand Parade on Saturday, September 8. He received first place in the antique tractor and vehicle division, which had many entries. The Classic Car show following the parade, gave the public a chance to view these vehicles up close. The parade hosted 43 entries in four seperate categories; antique tractor and vehicle, businesses and community, clubs and organizations, and public service and royalty. Choosing the winners was a tough job for judges, Louie and Mae Wichterman and Angie Stone.

The Red Lake County Central Danceline took first place in the organization and club category in the Grand Parade at Blast to Brooks on Saturday, September 8. Fourteen girls participated in the float. The Danceline also marched in the Kiddie Parade, which was held prior to the Grand Parade.

The kids from St. Joseph's Church in Brooks threw candy from the churches' float as it coasted down the street. The float's theme was " We're all God's family. Let us walk in justice." It won first place in the public service and royalty category. Blast to Brooks' Grand Parade hosted 43 entries that were announced by A.J. Parenteau and Ron Paradis. The processional began shortly after 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 8. The Kiddie Parade took place at 1:45.

The Plummer American Legion headed up the Grand Parade at the 30th annual Blast to Brooks on Saturday, September 8. Before the parada begin, Brooks' Mayor, Clarence R. Gegnar gave opening remarks, thanking everyone for attending.

Andrea Larson scooted down the street, as she took her turn in the Grand Parade at the 30th annual Blast to Brooks. She represented Third Base Restaurant and Lounge in Brooks, and won first place in the business and community division.

Omdahl to speak at Northland Mission Banquet

The annual banquet for the Northlands Rescue Mission and Homeless Shelter will be held at the University of North Dakota Memorial Union Ballroom at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday, October 2. The Mission, located in Grand Forks, serves 21 counties in northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota. The theme of the 2001 banquet is "Showing God's Love in a Real Way."

General admission tickets for the event may be obtained at the Northlands Missions, 420 Division Avenue, Grand Forks, N.D. 58201 or by calling 701-772-6609.

Ice cream was used to represent the snow that falls and eventually creates glaciers during a learning activity at Outdoor Education Day at Oakland Park on Wednesday, September 12. Rod Heschka (pictured) and Kathy Walsh of Natural Resources Conservation Service facilitated the glacier activity enjoyed by sixth grade student from Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Grygla and area home schools. The glacier was built on a bed of soil/cookie crumbs and rocks/peanuts and coated chocolate candies, transforming it into a tasty lesson. This year's 4th annual Outdoor Activity Day was sponsored by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls was awarded Legislator of Distinction from the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities represented by Tim Flaherty. Flaherty said that Sen. Stumpf had stood up for rural education funding. Sen. Stumpf said he was pleased to receive the recognition and strongly believes in representing the interests of residents of northwestern Minnesota.

Paving begins on Hwy. 59

■ Business and property owners sign petition demanding satisfaction

(Editor's note: Paving on a portion of Highway 59 project in downtown Thief River Falls began Tuesday morning. To be fair, it should be stated that it isn't clear to editorial staff whether the petition had any impact on the timing of the paving.)

Last week, twenty-one business and property-owners along Highway 59 (Third Street) in Thief River Falls from Main Avenue to the Soo Line depot, demanded that the Minnesota Department of Transportation immediately pave that portion of the Highway 59 project.

Pennington County Commissioner Bob Carlson spearheaded the petition drive to get the state highway project completed. Carlson then submitted the petition along with personal comments and an editorial from The Times. Carlson said Monday that the business and property owners along this stretch of the project "can no longer take the financial hit this project has caused." Carlson said he is aware of at least one businessman who is closing shop because he cannot afford to continue to take the losses.

The attitude of downtown business owners and property owners has changed considerably since the project began. Carlson added that it didn't help that the project has experienced a number of problems, including several problems with sidewalks. Now business owners fear that the project won't be completed before winter.

Carlson sent the petition and comments to the Northwest District Engineer, Wes Gjovik. Even after Gjovik responded in a letter to Carlson and business owners, Carlson remains upset by the progress of the project.

In a letter from Gjovik (dated Sept. 21) to Carlson, which Carlson shared with The Times, Gjovik said he had investigated his concerns, and assured Carlson that the project was very close to being on schedule. "We had hoped to start paving this week, but due to several bituminous mixtures not passing the quality test, we will not be able to pave until next week. This is not an unusual circumstance in our business."

Gjovik continued: "I was sorry to learn about the dissatisfaction that some people are feeling about the duration of the project as we come close to completing it. Almost a year prior to the start of the project, we held a public information meeting inviting people to learn more about the project, anticipating how it might impact them. We've also been holding public information meetings on a weekly basis during the project so that people could come and express their concerns — most often, very few people if any showed up to express their concerns so we were unaware of what they were feeling until now.

"I believe we have been acting in good faith to complete this project on a timely basis, and yes, perhaps we could have done some

by Kathi Carlson

In light of the September 11 tragedy in New York, Lincoln High School choir director Darcy Reese is electing to keep her songbirds a little closer to the nest this year.

Reese garnered the support of board members and Superintendent Irv Peterson at the regular meeting of the board of education at the District Service Center Monday evening.

This year, Reese told the board, she is more comfortable taking her students to Chicago by bus instead of New York by air. Deposits for the New York trip, which was scheduled for April 12-17, were due the week of September 10. However, after the September 11 incident and because she is not sure of what the future will bring, Reese rethought her plan and decided instead that a Chicago performance tour May 1-7 would be a better option for her students.

The cost of the trip is also significantly less — $887 versus $1,800 — an important factor in what, Reese said, might also be uncertain financial times. Reese figured the cost per student on 58 participants and said that there could be as many as 68 participants, thus lowering the cost.

Reese said that parents would be responsible for two-thirds of the cost of the trip, and each student would be responsible for fund-raising for his or her additional share. Sensitive to the local climate, Reese said, "They community's not going on this trip," and resolved that the choir's fund-raising endeavors would be as easy on Thief River Falls businesses as possible. She also said she hoped income would be derived from the choir's compact disc that is scheduled for release on December 17.

With the nod from the board of education to begin raising money for the Chicago trip, Reese assured them that more specific information and a complete itinerary would be available at a later date.

Community members attending the United We Stand Tailgate Rally at the MEC Center Friday evening will have the opportunity to hear the Lincoln High School Choir and others perform, according to Superintendent Irv Peterson.

Superintendent Peterson is a member of the committee organizing Friday's fund-raiser for the American Red Cross. In addition to performances by the band and choir and the Lincoln High School football game, Peterson told the board that elementary and middle school students from the public and private schools were making posters for the event.

Superintendent Peterson also updated the board of education about a recent Minnesota School Board Association meeting and various other meetings that either

Tailgate rally in TRF Friday to raise funds

The "United We Stand" Tailgate Rally being planned for Friday, September 28, at the Thief River Falls Prowlers vs. Duluth Central football game will collect donations for the American Red Cross relief effort in New York and Washington, D.C.

Several activities are being planned for the tailgate party, being coordinated jointly by several Thief River Falls business, fraternal and civic organizations.

The football game begins at 7 p.m., but during the tailgate party from 5 to 7 p.m. several activities will be held, during which donations will be accepted for the American Red Cross.

Other activities during the evening include the distribution of patriotic ribbons, the sale of Blue and Gold-glow-in-the dark neck bands for $3, the sale of "United We Stand" t-shirts for $10, and the display of patriotic posters created by students in kindergarten through grade 8 in the multi-events center lobby; and, the display of patriotic posters by students in grades 9-12 in the press box and football field entrance.

The half-time ceremony will include a 15- to 20-minute ceremony honoring the Americans who lost their lives in New York and Washington D.C. A special tribute will be made to the armed forces, including the firefighters, police officers and national guard. Also included in the ceremony will be the Lincoln High School choir and Pep Band singing and playing various patriotic selections.

All proceeds will go to the American Red Cross and ear-tagged for the disaster relief fund and the families who lost their loved ones in the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington, D.C.

Local woman is proud of her New Yorkers

Living in the Midwest, it sometimes seems tragic events, such as the terrorist attack on the World Trade towers, are a world away. When the tragic consequences of those events reach places like Goodridge, we are reminded just how small the world is getting to be.

Tuesday morning Jodi Mutnansky, originally of Goodridge, went to work at the Hispanic Broadcasting Corporation in New York where she is the marketing director. Between the time she got on the elevator and got off the elevator on the third floor, the first of the trade towers had been struck. From her office about two miles from the towers, black smoke could be seen coming from the first tower, and the newsroom was going nuts, said Mutnansky. "At first we thought it was some terrible accident."

After the second tower was struck, Mutnansky said they knew it was a terrorist attack and there was chaos and mayhem. "They planned it perfectly," said Mutnansky. "Tuesday is the most productive day of the week, and by that time every day, people are at their desks," she explained.

Mutnansky, who grew up on a farm northeast of Goodridge, moved to New York 10 years ago. She said she likes New York because New Yorkers are independent and everyone is satisfied with being mostly anonymous; although, there is a world of opportunity right outside your door. Her home, which is about three miles from the World Trade Center, is one mile from work, and her office just a straight shot and two miles from the World Trade Center.

"Everything in New York is very interdependent," said Mutnansky. When the attack occurred, every New Yorker knew instantly that everything was going to shut down and it would be very difficult to go anywhere. Traffic shut down and the city closed. People were told to go home and they did, thousands of them walking shoulder to shoulder, all very quietly. "It was very different, odd and terrifying at the same time," said Mutnansky.

On her way home, Mutnansky came upon what would be the first sign to her that attitudes had changed. Mutnansky regularly donates blood at a blood bank near her home — there's that Midwest influence, she explained. But Tuesday, instead of being able to walk right in, Mutnansky said there was a long line. She estimated that there was a four to five hour wait just to complete the paperwork.

Mutnansky said people wanted to do something to help.

The next day, no one knew if it was over. She said she went to the nearby supermarket and discovered that everyone had the same idea. It

Streets signs reported missing in TRF

The street sign for James Street has been added to the list of missing signs. A total of three street signs have been reported missing from the James Street and Merriam Avenue area.

Accidents. On September 20, 4:22 p.m., police responded to a vehicle accident at First Street and Kneale Avenue. Gary Keith Lane, Thief River Falls, driving a 1998 Chevy pickup, was eastbound on First Street. Lane had stopped his vehicle on First Street, waiting for another vehicle to turn onto Kneale Avenue. Shelley Kay Brekke, Oklee, driving a 1989 Ford Tempo, was eastbound on First Street, skidded on wet road conditions and ran into the back of Lane's vehicle. Estimated damage to Lane's vehicle is $200. Damage to Brekke's vehicle is estimated at $3,000.

On September 24, 3:04 p.m., police responded to a motor vehicle accident at 100 Block Knight Avenue North. Vehicle one was Darrel Roy Flaten, Thief River Falls, driving a 1991 Chevy pickup. Vehicle two was Daniel Scott Farder, Thief River Falls, driving a 1992 Oldsmobile Cutlass. Flaten was parked south along Knight Avenue North, and preceded to pull out into traffic, colliding with Farder who was turning south on Knight Avenue North. Estimated damage to Flaten's vehicle is $2,500, and $1,500 for Farder's vehicle.

On September 22, 1:50 p.m., the sheriff's office responded to a motor vehicle accident on Dewey Avenue North. Vehicle one was Katie Jocll Waterworth, Thief River Falls, driving a 1996 Chevy Lumina. Vehicle two was Carol Ann Nieland, Thief River Falls, driving a 1995 Ford van. Waterworth was pulling out of a driveway onto to Dewey Avenue North and collided with Nieland, who was northbound. Estimated damage to Waterworth's vehicle is $1,300, and damage to Nieland's vehicle is estimated at $1,600.

Assault. On September 19, 12:16 a.m., police received a report of an alleged assault. Upon investigation, Kenneth James Goulet, 34, Thief River Falls, was cited for fifth-degree assault after allegedly assaulting a victim.

Theft. On September 18, 10:54 a.m., the Thief River Falls City Street Department reported a street sign missing from James Street. The value of the sign is $80. This is the third street sign to be reported missing. The other two are from Mussey Street and Gulf Street.

On September 18, 11:16 a.m., police received a report from Goodridge school that $50 in cash was taken from an individual. Upon investigation, charges of theft are pending against a 16-year-old male from Goodridge.

Shane Christopher Paige, 21, Fosston, was charged with offering a forged check, $1,589.41.

Violation of protection order. On September 21, 10:46 p.m., Bruce Duane Jones, 34, Goodridge, charged with violation of protection order.

Disorderly conduct. On September 17, 10:10 a.m., Laurice Santiago, 19, Thief River Falls, was charged with disorderly conduct.

DWI. On September 22, 12:04 a.m., John Dean Wilson, 36, Newfolden, was charged with DWI and refusal to test.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Airline Industry is a Vital Statewide Asset

by Senator Roger Moe

As our country prepares to counter the September 11 terrorist attacks, we are seeing unified and swift responses to the inevitable fallout. Through no fault of their own, we have seen a tremendous impact on airlines and the travel industry. A quick response was necessary.

The federal government has already taken a leading role by providing $5 billion in direct grants to the airlines, compensating them for losses suffered due to grounding after the tragic events. Another $10 billion in loan guarantees will be made available to the airlines.

At the same time, the federal government intends to spend $3 billion to upgrade security in airplanes and airports.

In an ideal situation, the federal efforts would be enough to make everything in the airline industry right. Of course, we don't have an ideal situation. Minnesota is a major hub of airline activity. We know that Northwest Airlines alone will be laying off 10,000 employees throughout its system, and other air carriers will be laying off many workers who live in Minnesota.

Much of the attention has focused on Minneapolis-St. Paul Airport and the airlines located there. However, rural communities are also feeling an impact. Mesaba Airlines has already announced the discontinuation of service to Thief River Falls and several other communities around the Midwest.

In addition, regional airports must quickly gear up their security efforts.

Minnesota Senate leaders have announced the creation of a new Senate Select Committee on Air Transportation and Economic Security. The bipartisan 12-member panel will explore state options available to assist the airlines headquartered in Minnesota and their employees. The panel will be open to all feasible options for assistance, including:

Restructuring Metropolitan Airports Commission (MAC) and state loans

Extending benefits for unemployed workers

Various tax relief proposals — property tax, sales tax and fuel tax.

No one can predict the long-term impact of the national tragedy on airlines and the entire travel industry. At the state level, we will try to respond to the immediate crisis and prepare for the various possibilities over the long run.

Unfortunately, the state could have been better prepared to deal with the negative impact on airline and travel industry employees. In the Senate we recognized strong economic signals indicating that state unemployment was likely to rise significantly, so we proposed increasing the Dislocated Worker fee by 28 percent. The House proposed lowering the fee by a similar amount, and the Governor sought to eliminate the fee for the current biennium.

Ultimately, a compromise was reached and the fee did not change. If the Legislature is called into special session, lawmakers will look closely at bolstering the Dislocated Worker Program and restoring its funding to levels similar to the past. As those of us living in our part of the state are keenly aware, government is expected to respond rapidly and effectively when a natural disaster strikes. Although Americans have never previously seen a man-made disaster of this magnitude, certainly the need for a sustained and unified effort is necessary at this time. We have already begun confronting this massive challenge.

Kris Kolar re-appointed as chief public defender

Kris Kolar, chief public defender, was recently reappointed as the chief public defender for the Ninth Judicial District. Kolar has served as chief public defender since her initial appointment by the Board of Public Defense in 1995.

The board consists of four members appointed by the Supreme Court and three members selected by the Governor. When the board chooses a chief public defender in a Judicial District, the Chief Judge of the District designates two additional members from the district to create an "Ad Hoc Selection Committee" for the purpose of selecting the chief public defender.

The Ninth Judicial District Public Defender's office provides legal representation for indigent defendants in felony, gross misdemeanor, misdemeanor and juvenile cases. The Ninth Judicial District is comprised of the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Clearwater, Beltrami, Itasca, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Pennington, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Hubbard, and Cass. In her role as Chief Public Defender, Kolar supervises the activities of 40 public defenders and staff throughout the Ninth Judicial District.

"I am honored to be reappointed as chief public defender for our district, as I have worked hard to create and maintain a quality public defense system for the people in northwestern Minnesota. I am also proud of our hard-working staff that fights every day to protect the rights of the poor. I look forward to continue working with community groups, the courts and our elected officials who have given us support in our efforts to maintain a good public defense system," said Kolar.

Eight animals held in Police animal pound

The following animals are being held in the police animal pound.

The animals are listed with a description, the date impounded and where they were found:

Each animal will be kept for a minimum of five days from the date of impoundment. Animals may be claimed by proving ownership. Pound fees, license fees and any other expenses incurred by the department will be assessed prior to release. Contact the police department at 681-6161.

The animals being held are a white pup, September 10, Greendale Manor; brown and white pup, September 3, Countryside Trailer Court; white male husky, September 15, Warren; male shepherd cross, August 15, Rocksbury Township; male shepherd cross, September 15, Dewey Avenue North; female apricot poodle, September 23 Kendall Avenue North; black and white cat, September 23, Kinney Avenue North; gray female cat, September 23, Red Lake Falls.

NWMC sets date for cancer walk and display

Northwest Medical Center will host its annual luminary display to honor and remember those who have bravely fought a battle with cancer on Thursday, October 11, from 6 to 8 p.m.

An added feature to the event this year is NWMC's first "Light Up the Night" Cancer Luminary Walk. The non-competitive two-mile walk will begin at 6 p.m. on Thursday, October 11, and end at NWMC where walkers will cross the finish line of luminaries.

Placing a luminary in the display is free, and a card that includes the name of the person honored with room for a message will be placed on it. Last year's event was a huge success, and again this year, the display will honor not only those who have had breast cancer but all types of cancer. Those who placed luminaries in honor of someone last year are welcome and encouraged to honor that same person this year, and there may be more than one luminary in honor of the same person.

Anyone wishing to reserve a luminary in honor of a loved one should call NWMC at (218) 683-4477 or stop by the front desk or at the X-ray Department to fill out a card.

Organizers of the "Light Up the Night" walk present the special event as a community-wide activity for the purpose of educating the community about cancer.

They encourage participation from individuals from all walks of life, including families, friends, coworkers, health care agencies, community clubs, corporations and local businesses, churches, school civic organizations — anywhere there are people who want to honor and remember those who have bravely fought a battle with cancer.

All cancer survivors participating in the walk will be given a special hat to be worn during the walk.

Individuals who would like to participate in the walk are asked to pre-register. Cost of registration is $3 per person or $10 per family, and those completing the "Light Up the Night" Walk will receive a certificate. Registration forms are available at the front desk at NWMC or by calling Gail Holland at (218) 683-4210.

The goal is that the luminary display and "Light Up the Night" Walk be a heartwarming tribute to honor and remember loved ones in the fight against cancer.

The event is open to the public, and everyone is encouraged to stop by and observe the display. Refreshments will be served in the hospital front lobby where there will also be cancer education materials and displays available.

For more information, contact Gail Holland, NWMC public relations coordinator, at (218) 683-4210.

TRF grad awarded UND freshman scholarship

Michelle Lamppa, from Thief River Falls, has been named as a Presidential Freshman Scholar for the 2001-2002 academic year at the University of North Dakota.

The scholarship is awarded to high school seniors who rank among the top half of one percent of entering college students in the nation, based upon high school performance and aptitude test results.

The scholarship package includes UND's top renewable academic scholarship, guaranteed housing for the freshmen year, and early registration for the fall semester. In August, recipients were honored at a ceremony with UND President Charles Kupchella.

Streets signs reported missing in TRF

The street sign for James Street has been added to the list of missing signs. A total of three street signs have been reported missing from the James Street and Merriam Avenue area.

Accidents. On September 20, 4:22 p.m., police responded to a vehicle accident at First Street and Kneale Avenue. Gary Keith Lane, Thief River Falls, driving a 1998 Chevy pickup, was eastbound on First Street. Lane had stopped his vehicle on First Street, waiting for another vehicle to turn onto Kneale Avenue. Shelley Kay Brekke, Oklee, driving a 1989 Ford Tempo, was eastbound on First Street, skidded on wet road conditions and ran into the back of Lane's vehicle. Estimated damage to Lane's vehicle is $200. Damage to Brekke's vehicle is estimated at $3,000.

On September 24, 3:04 p.m., police responded to a motor vehicle accident at 100 Block Knight Avenue North. Vehicle one was Darrel Roy Flaten, Thief River Falls, driving a 1991 Chevy pickup. Vehicle two was Daniel Scott Farder, Thief River Falls, driving a 1992 Oldsmobile Cutlass. Flaten was parked south along Knight Avenue North, and preceded to pull out into traffic, colliding with Farder who was turning south on Knight Avenue North. Estimated damage to Flaten's vehicle is $2,500, and $1,500 for Farder's vehicle.

On September 22, 1:50 p.m., the sheriff's office responded to a motor vehicle accident on Dewey Avenue North. Vehicle one was Katie Joell Waterworth, Thief River Falls, driving a 1996 Chevy Lumina. Vehicle two was Carol Ann Nieland, Thief River Falls, driving a 1995 Ford van. Waterworth was pulling out of a driveway onto Dewey Avenue North and collided with Nieland, who was northbound. Estimated damage to Waterworth's vehicle is $1,300, and damage to Nieland's vehicle is estimated at $1,000.

Assault. On September 19, 12:10 a.m., police received a report of an alleged assault. Upon investigation, Kenneth James Goulet, 31, Thief River Falls, was cited for fifth-degree assault after allegedly assaulting a victim.

Theft. On September 18, 10:54 a.m., the Thief River Falls City Street Department reported a street sign missing from James Street. The value of the sign is $80. This is the third street sign to be reported missing. The other two are from Mussey Street and Gull Street.

On September 18, 11:16 a.m., police received a report from Goodridge school that $50 in cash was taken from an individual. Upon investigation, charges of theft are pending against a 16 year old male from Goodridge.

Shane Christopher Paige, 21, Fosston, was charged with offering a forged check, $1,889.11.

Violation of protection order. On September 21, 10:46 p.m., Bruce Duane Jones, 34, Goodridge, charged with violation of protection order.

Disorderly conduct. On September 17, 10:10 a.m., Lance Santiago, 19, Thief River Falls, was charged with disorderly conduct.

DWI. On September 22, 12:04 a.m., John Dean Wilson, 36, Newfolden, was charged with DWI and refusal to test.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Airline Industry is a Vital Statewide Asset

by Senator Roger Moe

As our country prepares to counter the September 11 terrorist attacks, we are seeing unified and swift responses to the inevitable fallout. Through no fault of their own, we have seen a tremendous impact on airlines and the travel industry. A quick response was necessary.

The federal government has already taken a leading role by providing $5 billion in direct grants to the airlines, compensating them for losses suffered due to grounding after the tragic events. Another $10 billion in loan guarantees will be made available to the airlines.

At the same time, the federal government intends to spend $3 billion to upgrade security in airplanes and airports.

In an ideal situation, the federal efforts would be enough to make everything in the airline industry right. Of course, we don't have an ideal situation. Minnesota is a major hub of airline activity. We know that Northwest Airlines alone will be laying off 10,000 employees throughout its system, and other air carriers will be laying off many workers who live in Minnesota.

Much of the attention has focused on Minneapolis-St. Paul Airport and the airlines located there. However, rural communities are also feeling an impact. Mesaba Airlines has already announced the discontinuation of service to Thief River Falls and several other communities around the Midwest.

In addition, regional airports must quickly gear up their security efforts.

Minnesota Senate leaders have announced the creation of a new Senate Select Committee on Air Transportation and Economic Security. The bipartisan 12-member panel will explore state options available to assist the airlines headquartered in Minnesota and their employees. The panel will be open to all feasible options for assistance including:

Restructuring Metropolitan Airports Commission (MAC) and state loans.

Extending benefits for unemployed workers.

Various tax relief proposals — property tax, sales tax and fuel tax.

No one can predict the long-term impact of the national tragedy on airlines and the entire travel industry. At the state level, we will try to respond to the immediate crisis and prepare for the various possibilities over the long run.

Unfortunately, the state could have been better prepared to deal with the negative impact on airline and travel industry employees. In the Senate, we recognized strong economic signals indicating that state unemployment was likely to rise significantly, so we proposed increasing the Dislocated Worker fee to .28 percent. The House proposed lowering the fee by a similar amount, and the Governor sought to eliminate the fee for the current biennium.

Ultimately, a compromise was reached and the fee did not change. If the Legislature is called into special session, lawmakers will look closely at bolstering the Dislocated Worker Program and restoring its funding to levels similar to the past.

As those of us living in our part of the state are keenly aware, government is expected to respond rapidly and effectively when a natural disaster strikes. Although Americans have never previously seen a man-made disaster of this magnitude, certainly the need for a sustained and unified effort is necessary at this time. We have already begun confronting this massive challenge.

Kris Kolar re-appointed as chief public defender

Kris Kolar, chief public defender, was recently reappointed as the chief public defender for the Ninth Judicial District. Kolar has served as chief public defender since her initial appointment by the Board of Public Defense in 1995.

The board consists of four members appointed by the Supreme Court and three members selected by the Governor. When the board chooses a chief public defender in a Judicial District, the Chief Judge of the District designates two additional members from the district to create an "Ad Hoc Selection Committee" for the purpose of selecting the chief public defender.

The Ninth Judicial District Public Defender's office provides legal representation for indigent defendants in felony, gross misdemeanor, misdemeanor and juvenile cases. The Ninth Judicial District is comprised of the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Clearwater, Beltrami, Itasca, Aitkin, Crow Wing, Pennington, Koochiching, Mahnomen, Hubbard, and Cass. In her role as Chief Public Defender, Kolar supervises the activities of 40 public defenders and staff throughout the Ninth Judicial District.

"I am honored to be reappointed as chief public defender for our district, as I have worked hard to create and maintain a quality public defense system for the people in northwestern Minnesota. I am also proud of our hard-working staff that fights every day to protect the rights of the poor. I look forward to continue working with community groups, the courts and our elected officials who have given us support in our efforts to maintain a good public defense system," said Kolar.

Eight animals held in Police animal pound

The following animals are being held in the police animal pound.

The animals are listed with a description, the date impounded and where they were found.

Each animal will be kept for a minimum of five days from the date of impoundment. Animals may be claimed by proving ownership. Pound fees, license fees and any other expenses incurred by the department will be assessed prior to release. Contact the police department at 681-6161.

The animals being held are a white pup, September 10, Greendale Manor; brown and white pup, September 3, Countryside Trailer Court; white male husky, September 15, Warren; male shepherd cross, August 15, Rocksbury Township; male shepherd cross, September 18, Dewey Avenue North; female apricot poodle, September 23, Kendall Avenue North; black and white cat, September 23, Kinney Avenue South; gray female cat, September 23, Red Lake Falls.

NWMC sets date for cancer walk and display

Northwest Medical Center will host its annual luminary display to honor and remember those who have bravely fought a battle with cancer on Thursday, October 11, from 6 to 8 p.m.

An added feature to the event this year is NWMC's first "Light Up the Night" Cancer Luminary Walk. The non-competitive two-mile walk will begin at 6 p.m. on Thursday, October 11, and end at NWMC where walkers will cross the finish line of luminaries.

Placing a luminary in the display is free and a card that includes the name of the person honored with room for a message will be placed on it. Last year's event was a huge success, and again this year, the display will honor not only those who have had breast cancer but all types of cancer. Those who placed luminaries in honor of someone last year are welcome and encouraged to honor that same person this year, and there may be more than one luminary in honor of the same person.

Anyone wishing to reserve a luminary in honor of a loved one should call NWMC at (218) 683-4477 or stop by the front desk or at the X-ray Department to fill out a card.

Organizers of the "Light Up the Night" walk present the special event as a community-wide activity for the purpose of educating the community about cancer.

They encourage participation from individuals from all walks of life, including families, friends, co-workers, health care agencies, community clubs, corporations and local businesses, churches, school civic organizations — anywhere there are people who want to honor and remember those who have bravely fought a battle with cancer.

All cancer survivors participating in the walk will be given a special hat to be worn during the walk.

Individuals who would like to participate in the walk are asked to pre-register. Cost of registration is $3 per person or $10 per family, and those completing the "Light Up the Night" Walk will receive a certificate. Registration forms are available at the front desk at NWMC or by calling Gail Holland at (218) 683-4210.

"The goal is that the luminary display and "Light Up the Night" Walk be a heartwarming tribute to honor and remember loved ones in the fight against cancer.

The event is open to the public, and everyone is encouraged to stop by and observe the display. Refreshments will be served in the hospital front lobby where there will also be cancer education materials and displays available.

For more information, contact Gail Holland, NWMC public relations coordinator, at (218) 683-4210.

TRF grad awarded UND freshman scholarship

Michelle Lamppa, from Thief River Falls, has been named as a Presidential Freshman Scholar for the 2001-2002 academic year at the University of North Dakota.

The scholarship is awarded to high school seniors who rank among the top half of one percent of entering college students in the nation based upon high school performance and aptitude test results.

The scholarship package includes UND's top renewable academic scholarship, guaranteed housing for the freshmen year, and early registration for the fall semester. In August, recipients were honored at a ceremony with UND President Charles Kupchella.

Local library kicks-off month-long celebration

Coya Knutson

Kathy Ray

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

A month-long celebration commemorating a century of library services in Thief River Falls will begin with a Birthday Kick-off event on Sunday, September 30.

The event, which will be held at 3 p.m. at the Thief River Falls Public Library, will include a special tribute to author and library advocate Gretchen Beito and a dramatic presentation entitled "Coya Comes Back." The special event will be hosted by the library board and Friends of the Library.

Honoree Says She Represents Many

Gretchen Beito's many contributions to the local library go back to th time when she and her husband, Gene, moved to Thief River Falls.

However, according to library manager Heidi Hoks, Gretchen is very humble about the upcoming event and agreed to accept the 100th birthday honorary tribute not for herself but as o representative of all of the people in Thief River Falls who have worked to improve library service.

From the time she was a child, Gretchen has considered the library a special place. She says she remembers riding the bus, for what seemed to a little girl like hours, to go to the Minneapolis Public Library. There she would walk past the mummies — "Real mummies," she muses. "Can you imagine that? Many years later, I went to Egypt and saw mummies, but I first saw them at the library."

The library represented a world of enchantment for Gretchen with books holding a special place in her heart. It's no surprise that she would someday become an author nor is it surprising that she would become a strong advocate for better library service not only in Thief River Falls but throughout the state of Minnesota.

Gretchen has used the Thief River Falls Public Library in a variety of ways — for her personal enjoyment, to introduce her children and grandchildren to the joys of reading, for research, for sharing information with others and imparting her own love of reading the the written word

Part of Gretchen's book, Coya, Come Home, was researched while at the library, and she attests to the value of the inter-library loan of materials while working on her book. She also utilized the resources at the Minnesota State Historical Society and has praised its work. Her devotion to preserving the history of our community and surrounding areas was well served by the libraries in Minnesota as she researched her books on women and local history. Always, Gretchen places credit on the libraries and librarians even though she, too, has played a significant role in shaping library service.

She served on the Northwest Regional Library board from 1976 to 1982-after her husband, Gene, had preceded her on the board. Pennington and Red Lake Counties had joined forces in 1968 to form the Northwest Regional Library system, and Roseau County joined the system in 1970. During Gretchen's tenure on the regional library board, she and the other board members worked with two counties, Kittson and Marshall, that would join the region to enable integrated library service to happen for people in the northwestern corner of the state.

Gretchen also served on the state library board (OPLIC) from 1982 to 1988. During that time, OPLIC worked on automating libraries so their collections would be accessible across the country, literally preparing Minnesota libraries for the future "It was an exciting time," Gretchen says. "It was also very humbling to realized where it would all lead." That place includes statewide system that links all catalogs across the state, making the resources of the largest libraries in the state available to those in the most remote parts of the state. "Serving on the OPLIC board with Gretchen was an honor," notes Gretchen Wronka of the Hennepin County Library system. "She always kept rural Minnesota and its information needs in the forefront of our minds on the board."

In 1987, this automated library of catalogs led Gretchen on a new adventure. It was through the new electronic linkages, established while Gretchen served on the OPLIC board, that researcher Kathryn Leigh Scott discovered Gretchen's thesis on Coya Knutson was available at one of the universities. Scott had wanted to work on o project centered on Coya Knutson and was delighted to obtain a copy of Gretchen's thesis. Upon reading it, Scott knew Gretchen need to tell Coya's story herself and contracted her. Thus began the journey of Coya, Come Home.

Besides her biography on Coya, Gretchen has published numerous historical books and articles. However, her main writing emphasis these days centers on her collaborative writing efforts with her husband, Gene. The couple is recording their lives — and in turn, their love — for their grandchildren.

Through it all, Gretchen remains an avid library user, and one will find her checking out materials for her grandchildren, researching an art adventure project or any number of items.

She and Gene have also supported the library on a number of projects, including the purchase of the back issues of microfilm of all the Pennington County newspapers. Genealogists conducting research on relatives from our area have been delighted to find such a complete set available for their use. Library staff fielding questions from the public also praise the collection.

Because Gretchen is always looking to the future while preserving the past, it is fitting that she is honored during the local library's 100th birthday celebration.

"Coya Comes Back"

Fittingly, "Coya Comes Back" is the title of the dramatic presentation which, along with the tribute to Beito, will highlight the September 30 program.

The one-woman play will feature its author, Kathy Ray, co-founder of the Grant County Prairie Wind Players Community Theater in Barrett.

"Coya Comes Back" dramatizes the life and times and legislative achievements of Minnesota's first full-term congresswoman, Coya Knutson.

Inspired by a speech by Eleanor Roosevelt, Knutson ran in the 1954 primary and went on to win the election, beating not only her party's endorsed 9th District DFL candidate but three other men.

She was re-elected in 1956. However, while voting her conscience earned her a significant and successful legislative record, her maverick ways and refusal to set the part control her led to her fall from grace with party principals.

At the 1958 DFL endorsement convention in Crookston, a letter was introduced. Signed by her alcoholic husband, the letter reflected his wishes that she not file for reelection and stated, "I expect her to comply with this request."

After the Fargo Forum ran a story about the letter under the headline "Coya Come Home," the story attracted national attention.

Despite the letter and unfounded allegations that Knutson was having an affair with a young campaign aide, she ran for reelection and lost by only 1,390 votes to Odin Langen.

Since 1990, women's groups across the state have enjoyed Kathy Ray's dramatic monologue, "Women Through the Ages." Ray notes that she feels women contribute greatly to the fabric of life in Minnesota and that Coya Knutson struck her by "her courage and the significance of her contribution to our own political history."

After reading Gretchen Beito's biography of Knutson, Coya Come Home: A Congresswoman's Journey, Ray says, "I decided it would be interesting and important to create and perform a play that tells the story of the first woman in Minnesota history to be elected to the United States Congress."

Ray was also intrigued last November when Minnesota's second congresswoman, Betty McCollum, was elected to represent the 4th Congressional District.

McCollum's election turned out to be the turning point for Ray in her scriptwriting when she changed the format to the former congresswoman, Coya, offering advice to the new congresswoman, Betty.

Ray says that she has never talked to McCollum about the play but felt this venue was right. She says the story is an important one because it portrays "the power of doing what you think is right, even if it flies in the face of the majority."

Before performing "Coya Comes Back" for the first time in Detroit Lakes last month, Ray says she was anxious about audience response. While that response was overwhelmingly positive, she reports of being equally anxious about the upcoming Thief River Falls performance — but for a different reason.

Ray has not yet met Gretchen Beito. "When I received Heidi Hok's call, I thought it was a dream come true," she said. "Gretchen Beito writes with such depth and integrity that I consider it my honor to perform her work and finally meet her."

Everyone Is Welcome

Ray is sure to find Gretchen Beito as gracious as do her friends, acquaintances and others she has encouraged through kind words of encouragement and outstanding example.

Everyone is welcome to attend the September 30 Birthday Kick-off event at 3 p.m. There is no admission charge, and refreshments will be served.

Members of the Friends of the Library Executive Committee members (from left) Janice Upham, KayLynn Wold and Glenice Johnson inspect the new voice magnification unit that was purchased with money from the Friends Pioneer Garden Party in August. Books on cassette/CD are also on order from this fund-raiser. Also contributing to the purchase was the $400 in matching funds received from Lutheran Brotherhood. Earlier this year, Friends of the Library co-sponsored a writing workshop for youth, a book discussion series and contributed prizes for children enrolled in the summer reading program. Friends will be co-sponsoring the library's 100th birthday kick-off celebration on Sunday at 3 p.m.

"Friends" help public library

The local Friends of the Library organization is one whose history is both old and relatively new.

The Friends of the Library was originally organized in 1959 and officially incorporated in 1960 under Val Chommie who was, at that time, president of the library board. The goals of the original organization was to improve the library's image, increase the number of weekly patrons, be responsible for library decorations and Book Week displays and to provide assistance to the librarians and library board. Activity of the original group ceased in 1982.

Twelve years later, in 1994, the group was revitalized with goals of extending library service to others, aiding in furthering the library's goals and assisting the library staff in the provision of programming and needed equipment.

One of the biggest projects the Friends has undertaken is the Homebound project. While library staff services those residing in congregate housing, the Friends of the Library visit those homebound citizens who are living in the their own homes, bringing books and other library materials with them. In many cases, the Friend and those they visit become friends, and the personal touch becomes as important as the library materials are.

The Friends of the Library has also sponsored and co-sponsored many programs. This year, in honor of the library's 100th birthday, it chose to work on funding at least part of the library's current major project — equipment and materials for those with visual and hearing impairments.

With the money Friends has raised, it has been able to purchase a voice magnification unit and books on cassette/CD.

In addition to those with hearing impairments, others will enjoy the voice magnification unit when a computer training labs implemented later this year and those in attendance will be assured of hearing the presenter. As some presenters tend to be soft spoken, the voice magnification unit will be enjoyed by many.

Books on cassette/CD are always eagerly awaited by library patrons with visual impairments as well as being enjoyed by members of the general public who are always excited to see new titles. Many of those traveling from our area to attend meetings use the books on cassette/CD, making better use of their time on the road.

While The Friends of the Library currently has no president, a committee consisting of Jan Upham, Glenice Johnson and KayLynn Wold, has been dubbed the "executive committee" by librarian Heidi Hoks. Hoks says each of the women has unique talents and that they work well as a team. "I don't know how the Pioneer Garden Party would have been pulled off without any one of them!" a grateful Hoks says.

The old saying about never having enough friends is true of The Friends of the Library, too. Information about joining the organization can be obtained from any of its members or at the Thief River Fall Public Library.

Pederson-Novak wed June 23 at St. Bernard's

Carisa Pederson and Jeffrey Novak were united in marriage on June 23, 2001 at St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Thief River Falls. Father Dennis Wieland officiated the 2:30 p.m. ceremony.

Carisa is the daughter of Larry and Robin Langevin and Jeff and Jeanne Pederson, all of Thief River Falls. Jeffrey is the son of Carol Novak of St. Cloud, formerly of Thief River Falls, and the late Ronald Novak. Grandparents of the bride are John and Darlene Roseland of Newfolden and Dorothy Pederson of Thief River Falls

Kurt Kainz, friend of the groom, and Lisa Swanson, friend of the bride, were the vocalists. Selections included "I Will Be Here," "From This Moment On," and "When You Say Nothing At All." Jennifer Hanestad, friend of the groom, provided organ and piano music, performing "Ave Maria" and "Canon in D" for the processional and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" for the recessional. Rolland Roseland, uncle of the bride, also provided guitar music.

Jenny Nolan of Plymouth, friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Lynn Novak of St. Cloud, and Taro Nesland of Thief River Falls, Becky Mattson of South St. Paul, Robin Engen of Inver Grove Heights and Andrea Poole of Minnetonka; all friends of the bride.

The miniature bride was Miranda Langevin of Thief River Falls, sister of the bride.

Scott Novak of Rogers, brother of the groom, was the best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brother, Shane Pederson of Onamia, Dave Stengrim of Brainerd, Wade Jorde of Thief River Falls, Chad Kleinvachter of St. Cloud and Ryan Haugen of Thief River Falls, all friends of the groom.

The miniature groom was Marcus Langevin of Thief River Falls, brother of the bride. The ring bearer was Dillon Kleinow of St. Cloud, nephew of the groom.

Ushering guests were the groom's friends, John Azure and Jason Kempert, both of Thief River Falls, Hunter Boldt of Jackson, Wy. and the bride's brother, Matthew Langevin of Thief River Falls.

The bride's personal attendants were Elizabeth Valentine of St. Cloud and Stephanie Wiseth of Thief River Falls, both friends of the bride.

Honored guests include great-grandmother of the bride, Agnes Klopp, and step-grandparents of the bride, Tom and Marion Bessette and Donald and Veronica Johansen.

Rhonda Fincher, aunt of the bride, was the reader. Candles were lit by Amy Momerak, stepsister of the bride, and Darrin Momerak, stepbrother of the bride.

Stacy Hilborn, friend of the couple, and Trudy Paulson, cousin of the groom, were the flower attendants. The bride's friends, Lisa Kiedrowski and Jennifer Risk, attended the guest book. Wendy Dahl, Jainie Pemrite and Tracy Koivisto, all friends of the bride, distributed programs.

The event was captured on video by Darlene Wiseth, friend of the couple, and Randy Pederson, uncle of the bride.

Gift attendants were Raina Pederson, Caleb Roseland and Hannah Roseland, all cousins of the bride. Distributing personalized candy bar favors were Rylee Fincher, Regan Pederson and Elizabeth and Katherine Roseland, all cousins of the bride.

After the ceremony the Novak family released balloons in front of the church in loving memory of Ronald Novak.

Hosting the reception at the Eagles were Jim and DeEtta Holder, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Bob and Alice Levin, friends of the groom. The groom's aunts, Connie Jauhola and Judy Jauhola, cut the wedding cake. Punch was served by Tami Molskness, friend of the bride, and Alissa Norland, cousin of the bride. Champagne servers include Dave Jauhola and Gary Jauhola, both uncles of the groom, Joe and Nancy Novak, aunt and uncle of the groom, and Steve and Kathy Pederson, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Waitresses include Danielle and Erica Cartier, Jaime and Jessica England, Ashley Evans, Keegan Fincher, Ashley Langevin, and Roshan Pederson, all cousins of the bride. Nick Norland, cousin of the bride, served as a waiter.

Following a wedding trip to Aventuro Palace Resorts in Puerto Aventuras, Mexico, the couple is at home at 2018 Cooper Avenue North, St. Cloud, MN 56303.

Carisa is a 1996 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 2000 graduate of St. Cloud State University. She is currently working as a realtor at Re/Max Realty Source in St. Cloud

Jeffrey is a 1990 graduate of Lincoln High School and is employed by Aconite in Elk River.

Danielle Goulet and Lee Peterson plan October 20 nuptials in Fargo

Danielle Goulet and Lee Peterson are happy to announce their engagement.

Danielle is a 1997 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 1998 graduate of Aveda Institute in Minneapolis. She is self-employed at Studio 411 in Minneapolis.

Lee is a 1993 graduate of Annandale High School and a 1997 graduate of Gustavus Adolphus College. He is the instrumental music instructor at St. Francis High School in St. Francis.

An October 20 wedding is planned at First Lutheran Church in Fargo.

Parents of the couple are Linda Goulet of Thief River Falls and the late Jack Goulet and Jim and Sharon Peterson of Annandale.

Leslie Vraa and Jeffrey Brouse plan October 20 nuptials in TRF

Leslie Jo Vraa and Jeffrey Alan Brouse announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Lesley is the daughter of Donnie and Berny Vraa of Goodridge, and Jeff is the son of Sid and Donna Brouse of Thief River Falls.

An October 20, 2001 wedding is planned at St. Bernard's Church in Thief River Falls. A reception and dance for family and friends will be held at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

AAL raises Habitat goal

By the end of 2002, Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL), along with its nationwide volunteer network, will have helped build 400 homes for low-income families across the United States.

Through its "Building Hope, Building Homes" program, AAL is providing $20,000 grants to 51 families in 2001 and 52 families in 2002 through Habitat for Humanity International affiliates. The contribution totals over $2 million for these two years and and $8 million since the program began.

"AAL is committed to helping Habitat ensure that families, no matter what their economic condition, have decent places to live and raise their children," said Dale Keltner, manager of the Building Hope, Building Homes program. "AAL provides a monetary foundation while our volunteers provide the manpower to raise the roof."

In addition to providing the manpower to build each home, AAL volunteers go into each community to raise additional funds needed to build or remodel the home and convince area construction companies and other businesses to donate time, building materials, equipment and expertise. Each homes requires an average of 1,500 volunteer hours

"AAL volunteers contribute sweat equity, hope and a commitment to each family," said Keltner. "If those hours were calculated into dollars, it would equal an estimated $21,450 contribution per home."

Nearly 350 families have benefited from the AAL program with donations totaling more than $11.2 million since 1991. The company plans to help more than 50 additional families fulfill the dream of home ownership in the next year in honor of AAL's 100th anniversary in November of 2002.

AAL is a leading fraternal benefit society of 1.8 million members, organized into more than 10,000 local branches, who join together for insurance, education and volunteer opportunities. Habitat for Humanity International was founded in 1976 and is a nonprofit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry dedicated to eliminating substandard housing and homelessness worldwide.

Mike Gilbertson and Beatrice Collard married at Redeemer

Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls was the site of the June 9 nuptials of Beatrice Collard and Mike Gilbertson. Rev. Marcia Sylvester officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Caroll Heusser-Collard of Blagnac, France and the niece of Daniel De Gaurillac of Walhalla, N.D. The groom is the son of Connie Lane of St. Paul.

The bride and her mother sang, "Bind Us Together" by Bob Gillman. Other vocal selections performed by the mother of the bride included "The Gift of Love I Corinthians 13" and "Adoramus Dei." Luke Torgerson, friend of the groom, played the trumpet, and the organist was Joyce Halbasch, friend of the couple. Processional selections included "Trumpet Voluntary" by Purcell and "Wedding March" by Wagner. "Trumpet Tune" by Clarke was performed for the recessional.

The bride's best friend, Therese Hennuyer of Richland, Wash., served as her matron of honor. The bridesmaid was Audrey Mullejans of Richland, Wash., goddaughter of the bride.

Maddison Gilbertson of Thief River Falls, granddaughter of the groom, was the flower girl.

The groom's brother, Robert Lane of Bedford, N.H., served as his best man. The bride's son, Didier Collard of Thief River Falls, was the groomsman.

Ushering the guests were Kevin Shetler and Leland Sehlstrom, both friends of the groom of Thief River Falls.

Honored guests included the groom's daughters, Rochelle Gilbertson of Thief River Falls and Amber Gilbertson of Fargo, N.D. and the groom's aunts, uncles and cousins, Sid and Donna Brouse, Becky and Murray Dicken, Ronnie and Corrine Dargus and Janice Johnson, all of Thief River Falls; Nancy Jochim and Tony Brouse of Baudette; Rob and Tiffany Stock and Tom Brouse, all of Grand Forks, N.D. and June and Jim Pribula of East Grand Forks.

Kay Maidment and Karen Benitt, friends of the bride, and the groom's cousin, Jeff Brouse and fiancee Leslie Vraa, hosted the reception.

Kay Maidment served cake, and Karen Benitt poured coffee. Kayla Noreen, cousin of the groom, served punch, and Jeff Brouse poured champagne. Leslie Vraa was the flower hostess. Charlie and Donna Henderson, friends of the bride, attended the gift table.

Following a wedding trip to a resort on Woman's Lake near Brainerd, Mike and Beatrice are at home at 723 Atlantic Ave. N. in Thief River Falls.

Beatrice is a 1978 graduate of Lycee St. Sernin in Toulouse, France, a 1984 graduate of the Oregon State University, a 1990 graduate of the University of Oregon and a 1995 graduate of the University of Florida. She is employed by Arctic Cat in Thief River Falls, and Mike is employed by Central Boiler in Greenbush.

Berry graduates from academy

Air Force Tech. Sgt. Deana Marie L. Berry has graduated from the Air Force Noncommissioned Officer Academy at Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, Texas.

For almost six weeks, the student received training in professional military education that prepares noncommissioned officers for positions of increased responsibility by broadening their leadership and supervisory skills, and expanding their perspective of the military profession to be better supervisors and mentors.

Training included instruction in advanced military leadership management theories and responsibilities, and the profession of arms, oral, written, and speaking communication skills, and physical fitness training.

The noncommissioned officer performed as a supervisor to learn behavior concepts, problem solving, and counseling techniques relative to the Air Force mission and organization.

Berry is an information management supervisor assigned to the 9th Reconnaissance Wing at Beale Air Force Base, Marysville, Calif.

She is the daughter of Karen N. Fossell of Plummer. She is a 1988 graduate of Pershing High School and received an associate degree in 1999 from Yuba Community College in Yuba City, Calif.

Her husband, Brian, is the son of Joanne M. Berry of Orland, Calif.

Nominations sought for Young Leaders Program

The Minnesota Soybean Growers Association, along with the American Soybean Association and DuPont, is currently seeking nominations for the 2002 ASA/DuPont Young Leader Program.

The program is recognized throughout the soybean industry for its longstanding tradition of identifying and cultivating excellent leaders who now play an integral role in the promotion of agriculture and success of the soybean industry.

The ASA/DuPont Young Leaders Program targets soybean farmers who are innovative, assertive, "young in leadership" and looking to make their mark in agriculture. Now entering its 19th year, the program has a record of success with hundreds of program alumni assuming leadership responsibilities in state and national soybean associations, promotion boards and other national, regional and local agricultural organizations.

The 2002 class of ASA/DuPont Young Leaders and their spouses will participate in a challenging and educational leadership experience in Nashville, Tenn. February 18-22, 2002. The seminar will include leadership and issues training and provide an opportunity for participants to meet and learn from other Young Leaders from across the country. The class will also take part in the Commodity Classic, February 21-23, rounding out a full week of learning, networking and personal growth. Participants will travel to St. Louis, Mo. to complete their training November 25-28, 2002.

Nomination forms for the 2002 ASA/DuPont Young Leaders Program have been mailed to all ASA members and can also be requested by calling (800) 688-7692 or online at SoyGrowers.com. Soybean producers are encouraged to apply or nominate another producer. Nominees will be asked to complete a one-page application form, and one Young Leader will be selected from each of the ASA's state affiliates. Deadline for nominations is October 26.

The Minnesota Soybean Growers Association is a non-profit farmer-controlled membership organization established in 1962. Its goal is to assure profitable soybean farming by monitoring government policies and supporting research and market development activities.

Theresa French and Rick Donarski united in marriage

Theresa V. French and Rick Donarski were united in marriage on June 23. The 4:30 p.m. ceremony took place at Old World Wisconsin in Eagle, Wisc.

The bride is the daughter of Jerry and Christal Bindrich of Mayville, Wisc. and Bill French of Oconomowoc, Wisc. Parents of the groom are Jodi and Norm Halsa of Thief River Falls and Dwight and Janelle Donarski of Warroad.

Serving as maid of honor was Beth French of San Francisco, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Debbie Bindrich of West Allis, Wisc., sister of the bride; Amy Donarski of Thief River Falls, sister of the groom, and Kelly Schmidt of Waukesha, Wisc. and Nicole Johnsen of Dousman, Wisc., both friends of the couple.

The bride's nieces, Rachel and Emily Richter of Madison, Wisc., served as the flower girls.

Attending the groom as best man was his cousin, Sam Lane of Bemidji. Groomsmen included Steve Bindrich of Chicago, Ill., brother of the bride; Nathan Jordet of Thief River Falls, friend of the groom; and Ryan Rogalla of Thief River Falls, cousin of the groom.

Aaron Kemnitz of Grand Forks, N.D., cousin of the groom, was the ring bearer.

The guests were ushered by Carter Rogalla of Thief River Falls, cousin of the groom, and Bryan Klassy of Hubertus, Wisc., cousin of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple is at home in Whitewater, Wisc.

Theresa is a 1997 graduate of Kettle Moraine (Wisc.) High School and will graduate in December 2001 from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Rick is a 1997 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 1999 graduate of Northland Community and Technical College. He is currently employed by Frawley Oil Company.

...Too Much Sadness

I'm tired of crying during the morning news and going to work with red eyes and pretending that nothing is wrong. It isn't that I don't feel bad about the deaths of the people in the World Trade Center horror. I do. But I think it is time to find a smile somewhere, even if it is just for a little while. We need to get strong and go on, because there is more tough stuff to come.

We have honored our dead and lauded our heroes. Now we are trying to get down to business and take care of those who still (and will for a long time) mourn, and trying to clean up the mess. We can just hope that our leaders know what they are doing, that we catch the bad guys with their weapons down, that our military knows we are with them and that they stay safe, and that we can all comfort each other somehow during however long this war lasts.

After the suicide bombing of the Trade Center towers and the Pentagon and the crash of the other hijacked plane, it seems that everyone has an idea about how to prevent future airplane hijackings. Some of them are pretty inventive, although rather questionable. I've been keeping track of some of these ideas and thought that you might enjoy hearing about them. They are all real suggestions by real people.

(Never mind that an airplane hijacking might be the last thing that terrorists would use again and that most officials feel that our present danger is from biological or nuclear weapons. The people with these suggestions, along with the majority of us ordinary citizens, simply feel that we must do something worthwhile as we grieve, so we come up with suggestions like these.)

One woman thought that sleeping gas would work very well. If hijackers took over the plane, the pilots would simply click the lock on their airtight cockpit and pump the rest of the plane full of sleeping gas. This would put everyone, including the hijackers, to sleep in short order. Then the pilots could land the plane safely, get the hijackers arrested and everyone else would awaken refreshed. The down side of sleeping gas, however, is that it affects people in different ways, depending on age, state of health, size, weight, etc.

Someone also thought that pilots should be taught to fly the planes in a particularly evasive way, using dives and other movements to create a type of weightlessness to discombobulate the hijackers. No doubt it would be rather effective in disabling the hijackers, but it might disable everyone else too and it would be tough getting the poor passengers off the ceiling afterward.

Another idea to make airplanes safer is to arm the pilots. Now I happen to think this is a good idea myself. These pilots are supposed to be responsible people. Many of them were military men. Why not have firearms in the cockpits? I suppose one could argue that a mistake with a firearm could blow a hole in the side of the plane, but look at the alternative. It might give a hijacker who is armed with a cardboard cutter a second thought if he knew that the pilots of the plane were carrying bigger and better weapons than he was.

It was also mentioned that stun guns might be as good protection as regular guns, but I wonder if one doesn't have to be close to the subject with a stun gun. I don't know much about them, but I think I'd rather see the pilot holding a weapon that could fire a little distance so he doesn't have to get too close and maybe get grabbed.

Arming the attendants with mace was another idea. I think it is a good idea and would work well when there are sky marshals on the plane to subdue those who get maced before they can come out of it and jump up and get back at the one who maced them. I don't know how it acts or how long it lasts, since I haven't been maced lately.

Speaking of air marshals, another good idea was to utilize laid off or retired pilots as sky marshals. Not only would they be a visible deterrent to terrorism and other problems on airplanes, but they would be able to fly the plane if anything happened to the pilots.

Someone also came up with the idea of not only arming the pilots, but passing out arms to the passengers as they enter the plane. This might be a bit much, because, chances are, you would also be arming the hijackers. That might be a mistake.

Locking seatbelts was another idea that seemed interesting at first, but then turned out to be something of a dud. The gentleman who suggested it, said that the seatbelts could be locked at the beginning of the flight and not unlocked until the destination was reached. He said it was too bad for anyone who couldn't sit still for the three to five hours it might take to get wherever anyone was going. Right off the bat I can think of something wrong with that idea. I, for one, cannot sit that long without finding a restroom unless I haven't had a thing to drink for the past 24 hours. And can you imagine taking your one- or two-year-old on a flight like that? No, bad idea.

I really liked the one a woman suggested in which the seats at the front would be backward, facing the passengers. She said the flight attendants could then choose some of the biggest, most muscular, husky passengers to sit in them and keep an eye on things. Not only could they keep an eye on us, but we gals could keep an eye on them and they would be very enjoyable entertainment during the entire flight.

If terrorists continue to disrupt our domestic tranquility, we can look to history for examples of people who have coped with similar problems.

From September 7 to November 3 of 1940, a space of 57 days, over 200 German bombers attacked London, England every night. Daytime attacks were common as well. Thousands perished.

Winston Churchill urged the British citizens to go about their work each day, even as the bombing continued. The populace did so cheerfully.

When bombs hit a factory, as they did almost daily, the dead and wounded were taken away, the debris cleared, repairs made, and the factory began production again, often within hours.

The attack on England was an attempt by Hitler to subdue the British people. He hoped to damage Britain's economy, but most of all he hoped to destroy British morale through sheer terror.

Morale was low early on, but the pugnacious new prime minister rallied the citizens. "We will fight them on the beaches," Churchill said, although he added later to an aide: "We will have to hit them over the head with beer bottles, because that is all we have."

Churchill used every device he could muster to infuse the British with courage. British antiaircraft guns were useless at night, but Churchill ordered blanks fired in the air so the people would think something was being done.

After nightfall, Churchill often sent his servants and aides down to the shelter, grabbed a cigar and a bottle of champagne, and went up to the roof to watch what he called "the grand show." His gallant example inspired British citizens to take incredible daily risks.

The Brits developed a dark humor as they went about their work.

When the Germans spread land mines all over the England, thousands of volunteer groups formed to disarm the mines. The most famous such group consisted of the Earl of Suffolk, his chauffeur and his elderly secretary.

Most groups disarmed a dozen mines or so before they goofed and were blown up. But the Earl and his two servants were unusually skillful. The Holy Trinity, as called themselves due to their longevity, diffused an incredible 34 mines.

They finally slipped up on number 35, however. As an admiring Churchill put it in his memoirs, "Up went the Earl of Suffolk with his Holy Trinity."

Tough times, courageous people, great stories. But the tale of Churchill on the roof watching the bombs fall has taken a recent twist.

In the 1980s, it was revealed that the British knew the German codes for most of the war. Even though he could do nothing about the attacks, Churchill usually knew where the Luftwaffe planned to hit each night.

An energetic historian went to work with this new information a couple of years ago. With some good detective work, he figured out that on the nights the Germans planned to hit Churchill's neighborhood, there were no champagne and cigars on the roof. On those nights, Winston was deep in the bunker.

ON THE OTHER HAND

"Home of Good Food and Good Friends" reads the menu at Dee's Kitchen. The home-style food is good, but the relationships that develop there are what gives Dee's its charm. While I have only been a waitress at Dee's for just over a year, I have made an adequate amount of money but an abundance of friends.

The regulars, as we like to call them, often come in three or four times a day, whether they make the trip for the food or for the conversation. I always find them lined up along the counter as I make my way down the line, filling coffee cups and offering greetings.

Although the regulars have very diverse personalities I often catch myself gazing into the vast sea of denim and flannel. With their overworked, calloused hands and beat up work boots, their similarities are easily detected. Even when it rains and the fields start flooding, I can always find smiles beneath their Cenex hats.

Some of the regulars are elderly bachelors who obviously enjoy the attention of us young, perky waitresses. The men pride themselves in coming up with a new joke or story to make us laugh. At other times, they ask us about cars, boyfriends, or school while passing our prom photos down the coffee-stained counter. They have come to be like grandfathers to me.

On busy Sundays during the church rush, the regulars stay patient. They order the special and never complain about the wait. Tolerant of my mistakes, they know when to good heartedly tease me and when to just give me a sympathetic smile as I run by. And if I accidentally give them white toast instead of whole wheat, forget to bring a fork, and rush away without refilling their coffee cup, I still get the same loving smile.

I don't know exactly what the regulars think of me, or if they do at all. Maybe to them I am just a waitress at Dee's. But over the past year, I feel like I have become part of these people's lives because they have become part of mine. If I have a weekend off, my mind always seems to wander to Dee's, wondering how the regulars are doing and what is new in their lives.

Dee's is much more than a restaurant. It is a gathering place for its customers to talk and learn from each other. It draws them in, allowing people to discuss their lives with each other every morning over eggs and hash browns. Fishing, farming, sports, and politics are often the topics of conversation, and they are the basis of stories and advice that are shared. For some, Dee's is a refuge from the everyday problems of life; for others, it is a second home. But all of the regulars have one thing in common: their passion for friendship.

Wherever I work in the future, I know that its atmosphere will never compare to that of Dee's Kitchen. From working there, I have been taught not only about money and work ethic, but I've also been lucky to learn about people, friendship, and ultimately, myself.

Fall Songs and Fingerplays

The following songs and fingerplays can be used during the upcoming fall months.

The Leaves Are Falling Down

(Tune: "The Farmer in the Dell")

The leaves are falling down
The leaves are falling down
Red, orange, yellow and brown
The leaves are falling down.

Mr. Pumpkin

(Tune: "Frere Jacques")

Mr. Pumpkin,
Mr. Pumpkin,
Round and fat.
Round and fat.
Harvesttime is coming.
Harvesttime is coming.
Yum, yum, yum,
That is that!

Raking the Leaves

I rake and rake the leaves into a great big heap. (pretend to rake)
Then into the leaves I take a great big leap. (jump and squat)
I cover myself with the leaves and hide from you.
Then I jump up and say, "Peek-a-boo!"

PARENTING TIPS

Learning Good Manners

The very best place to start teaching manners is in the home. When adults are respectful to each other and to children, they are modeling good manners and setting an example much louder than words. As important as a good model is, it is not enough. Children do not automatically pick up all the nuances of civilized behavior. Example must be backed by explanation and instruction.

Children need to be told exactly what is expected of them. It is useless to expect them to act like miniature adults, but only by knowing the rules can they follow them. A fun way to learn rules is to play games, for example a pretend tea party. Act out a proper greeting (Hello, Mrs. Bear. How are you?) and proper table manners ("Would you like some cookies? Please pass the milk. Thank you very much.") A child can "teach" her doll how a good guest acts and in the pretending, reinforce her own good habits.

One instruction is not enough. Reminders are necessary over and over again. Friendly reminders work better than hostile ones. Ask pleasantly: "What do you say?"

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to your child about what you expect of him or her, but remember it must be something the child is capable of. When children do remember their manners praise them and let them know you appreciate it.

Stanley Donarski, 74

Thief River Falls - Stanley Donarski, 74, died Tuesday, September 18, 2001 at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Minneapolis.

Mass of Christian burial was held on Friday, September 21, at 2 p.m. at St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Thief River Falls with Father Tim McGee and Father John Kleinwachter presiding. Military rites will be provided by American Legion Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793. Interment was in St. Bernard's Catholic Cemetery with Green Funeral Home of Thief River Falls in charge of the arrangements.

Stanley Joseph Donarski was born on July 26, 1927 in Wright Township of Marshall County, the son of Joseph and Agnes (Adamski) Donarski. He was baptized and confirmed at Assumption Catholic Church in Florian and attended Lindstrom Country School.

On March 2, 1946, Stanley entered the United States Army. He attained the rank of PFC and attended the 8th Army Automotive Maintenance School in Fuchinobe Honshu, Japan during the Army occupation of Japan during World War II. He was honorably discharged on August 28, 1947 at Fort Lawton, Wash.

On April 19, 1955, Stanley was united in marriage to Audrey Elaine Kleinwachter in Strandquist. The couple made their home on the family farm in Smiley Township of Pennington County, raising small grain and many farm animals. Audrey died on May 15, 1997.

He was a lifetime member of Knights of Columbus and American Legion Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117. He was a member of Assumption Catholic Church of Florian until 1955 when he became a member of St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Thief River Falls.

Stanley enjoyed spending time with his family and at the lake, fishing, driving an ATV, vegetable gardening, raising strawberries and apples and watching wildlife.

Survivors include five daughters, Bernadette (Jerry) Raguse of Harwood, N.D., Cathy Beverford of Oxnard, Calif., Lucy (Lonnie) Schermerhorn of Roy, Wash. and Ann (Wayne) Swenson and Diana Donarski, both of Thief River Falls; six sons, Wendell of Thief River Falls, Joe (Cammie) of Stanwood, Wash., John (Jennifer) of Harvey, N.D., David (Camela) of Manassas, Va., Marc of Big Lake and Paul of Thief River Falls; 18 grandchildren; a great-granddaughter; six siblings, Conrad (Mary Ann) Donarski of Viking, Tess Morkassel of Ada, Mary Borowicz of Argyle, Laurie Donarski of Grand Forks, N.D., Katherine Karpen of Inver Grove Heights and Bernard (Mary Lee) Donarski of Oscela, Fla.; and numerous nieces, nephews and other relatives.

Stanley was preceded in death by his wife, parents and a brother, Raymond Donarski.

Olga Shuman, 85

Thief River Falls - Olga Shuman, 85, died Sunday, September 23, 2001 at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p.m. on Thursday, September 27, at Green Funeral Home in Thief River Falls with Rev. Terry Olson officiating. Wanda Vigness will be the organist, and Diane Johnson will be the soloist. Casketbearers will be Olga's niece, Connie Prickett, and her husband, Jerry, and grandnephews' and their wives, Christopher and Lorrie Prickett and Todd and Darla Prickett. Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls.

Visitation will be held from noon until the time of services at Green Funeral Home on Thursday.

Olga Manon Salte was born on November 11, 1915 in Hampden, N.D., the daughter of Ole and Ragna (Myhrum) Salte. She grew up and graduated from high school in Hampden.

On June 11, 1938, she was united in marriage to Donald Shuman in Devils Lake, N.D. The couple made their home in Antler, N.D. where they owned and operated Shuman's Bar until 1943 when they moved to Richmond, Calif. They resided in Richmond for three years before returning to Antler and resumed operation of their bar until retiring in 1982. In 1997, the couple moved to Thief River Falls where Olga had since resided. Donald died on September 4, 2000.

Olga was a member of Rebekah Lodge.

Her many hobbies included reading, crossword puzzles, oil painting, crocheting, playing the piano, baking and flower gardening.

Survivors include a sister, Doris (Carl) Hallquist of Thief River Falls; a brother, Maynard (Hazel) Salte of Longview, Wash.; and many nieces and nephews.

Olga was preceded in death by her husband, parents and three brothers, Orville, Clifford and Melvin.

Erma Wilde, 85

Thief River Falls - Erma Wilde, 85, died Monday, September 24, 2001 at Oakland Parking Nursing Home in Thief River Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. on Friday, September 28, at Ebenezer Lutheran Church, rural Oklee, with Rev. Robert Dahlen officiating. Burial will be in Ebenezer Cemetery in Mayfield Township of Pennington County.

Visitation will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. with a 7 p.m. prayer service on Thursday, September 27, at Green Funeral Home in Thief River Falls and for one hour prior to services at the church Friday.

Erma Viola Bakken was born on March 17, 1916 on the Bakken homestead in Star Township of Pennington County, the daughter of Carl and Sina (Brakke) Bakken. She was confirmed at Ekelund Lutheran Church on July 6, 1930. She attended Little Oak school in Hickory Township of Pennington County. Erma worked as a cook for threshing crews and met her husband while working as a caretaker for a family in Highlanding.

On March 14, 1941, she was united in marriage to Fredrick Clifford Wilde at the Lutheran parsonage in Thief River Falls.

Erma was active at Ebenezer Church and with Ladies Aid and Aid Association for Lutherans.

She enjoyed rural farm life, baking bread, canning, crocheting, sewing and sharing her many talents with her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Erma is survived by her husband, Fredrick of Thief River Falls; four daughters, Sharan (Roger) Forsberg and Diane (Douglas) Torblaa, both of Thief River Falls and Lois (Lynn) Anderson and Carol (Budd) Mermon, both of Lake Park; three sons, Ralph and Leslie (Trudy), both of Thief River Falls, and Dale (Rose) of Detroit Lakes; 27 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren; a sister, Mabel Olson of Keewatin, and a daughter-in-law, Sheryl Wilde of Oklee.

She was preceded in death by a son, Dennis; a grandson, Joshua Wilde; her parents; six sisters, Hannah Arveson, Jennie Sunsdahl, Selma Nash, Lila Martinson, Palma Strand and Esther Solseng; and a brother, Alvin Bakken.

U of M farm safety effort targets children

A farm can be a deadly place for children, especially in areas where work is going on. About one in five farmwork-related fatalities in Minnesota involves a child below age 16, according to John Shutske, farm safety and health specialist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Younger children seem to be particularly vulnerable, especially the very young who are playing or watching work that's going on. "We have had several very tragic deaths of young toddlers who were playing or exploring the farm worksite, while their parents did routine chores," says Shutske. "With both parents often working, both on and off the farm, very young children, who are not being watched at all times, are at a huge risk for death or injury on a farm."

Child safety is a main focus of U of M farm safety education. A recent study by the U of M Department of Biosystems and Agricultural Engineering shows the effort is far-reaching.

"We surveyed 83 of Minnesota's 87 counties through county Extension offices," says Stacey Madsen, farm safety and health Extension educator on the U of M campus. "We wanted to find out what types of farm safety educational programs local Extension educators were implementing."

Three-fourths of the counties surveyed were directly involved in educational initiatives for rural children concerning farm and other work-related hazards. "We found that more than 12,000 children participated in Extension-sponsored or coordinated educational events last year," says Madsen. "In addition, community members, parents and rural leaders volunteered thousands of hours working on this important issue."

In several counties, as many as one-quarter of all children under age 16 participated in farm safety and health educational programs in 2000, according to Madsen.

The U of M Farm Safety and Health Program provides materials, consultation and training demonstration ideas for other child safety efforts throughout the country. For example, the program has developed child safety materials used by "Progressive Farmer" magazine. This effort has reached more than 50,000 children nationwide.

Shutske says efforts to prevent serious injuries and fatalities among young people doing farmwork appear to be paying off. "We've been able to blanket the state with age-appropriate education for kids who are at the age when they're just beginning to do actual farmwork," he says.

The U of M Farm Safety and Health Program website includes educational resources and research information on agricultural injury prevention and health promotion. It's at www.bae.umn.edu/fs.

Sara Sundby selected to MMEA All State Orchestra

Sara Sundby

Sara Sundby, a senior at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls has been selected for membership in the Minnesota Music Educators Association All-State Orchestra for the 2001-2002 school year. This is Sara's third consecutive year as a member of the MMEA All-State Orchestra. Her director at Lincoln High School is Derek Druse.

Sundby was one of 571 students selected from over 2,350 who auditioned last spring for a position in one of the seven MMEA All-State performing groups. The students attended summer camps, which were held at St. Cloud State University (orchestra), Concordia College - Moorhead (bands and jazz ensemble), and Gustavus Adolphus College (choirs).

The students participating in MMEA All-State have the opportunity to work with some of the finest conductors and music educators in the country as well as meet other outstanding music students from all across the State of Minnesota. All camps began Monday, August 6, and concluded Saturday, August 11, with a concert. In addition, the students will gather next February in Minneapolis for rehearsals and performances with the Minnesota Music Educators Association Midwinter clinic.

The All-State program is an ongoing activity of MMEA, a 200-member professional organization representing music educators at all levels and in all areas of music. The mission of MMEA is high quality music educator for every student.

In addition to playing viola in the Lincoln High School Orchestra, Sara is a member of the Lincoln High School Chamber Orchestra, Envirothon team, Key Club, Knowledge Bowl, National Honor Society, 2001-02 co-captain of the speech team, and was a member of the pit orchestra for "Fiddler on the Roof" in 2001. Sara is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students and has maintained a 4.0 GPA her entire school career. Sara is employed at the Northwest Regional Library and at McDonald's. Sara is the daughter of Todd and Diane Sundby of Thief River Falls, and the granddaughter of Elmo and Adeline Lusignan of Thief River Falls, and Arvin Sundby of Karlstad.

FMS Yearbooks on sale the week of October 1-5

Donations possible through WellsFargo.com

The American Red Cross was the first major customer to use the newly launched Wells Fargo SecureSource payments service by making online donations possible through WellsFargo.com. The new payment option will make it easier and more convenient for anyone with Internet access to make contributions to help the relief effort for the families that were affected by last week's catastrophe.

Wells Fargo is one of only five Internet sites authorized to accept donations on behalf of the American Red Cross. It is also the only site authorized to accept e-check donations.

"The American Red Cross is working around the clock to ensure that those affected by last week's tragedies have comfort and care," said John Clizbe, vice president of Disaster Services for the American Red Cross. "We are grateful that so many Americans including those from corporate America have demonstrated a willingness to help the Red Cross provide immediate relief to everyone who has been touched by these catastrophic events."

Youth attend conservation leadership school

Kyle Safranski and Sean Sorteberg attended the Conservation Leadership School at Long Lake Conservation Center August 12-17 near Palisade in Aitkin County.

Sean is the son of Mike and Lori Sorteberg, and Kyle's parents are Ray and Shari Safranski, all of Thief River Falls.

Long Lake Conservation Center is Minnesota's original residential conservation/environmental education center. It was established in 1963 with a gift of land and a building to Aitkin County by the Kiwanis Club of Southwest Minneapolis. Long Lake Conservation Center is part of the Aitkin County Parks System.

The Conservation Leadership School is devoted to promoting awareness and understading of the complexity of the natural world. According to LLCC's Executive Director Bob Schwaderer, the goal of the CLS summer camp is to create sensitivity in youngsters toward their environment and , by extension, to make sound conservation decisions in all facets of their lives. "Not only that," Schwaderer says, "we want kids to have a great time in the outdoors."

The Conservation Leadership School supper program explores the topics of water, soils, forests, wildlife, bogs and other natural history subjects. In addition, students learn important recreational skills such as canoeing, orienteering and minimum-impact camping.

Students desiring to do so may retuned to LLCC in subsequent years for advanced sessions involving wilderness canoeing excursions or sessions in ecology.

Long Lake Conservation Center is accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. For more information on LLCC and the CLS summer camp, write LLCC, 28952 438th Lane, Palisade, MN 56469, call (218) 768-4653 or 1-800-450-LLCC, or check out its web site at www.llcc.org

Idella Samuelson notes birthday with family event

Idella Samuelson of Thief River Falls was the guest of honor at a recent birthday dinner in Edina.

The event was held at Pearson's Restaurant and was hosted by her husband, Dr. Charles Samuelson.

Attending the event were son Dovid, his wife Lisa, and children Haley, Hope and Honnah of Minneapolis; son Matthew and children Lindsey, Peter and Abigale of Waconia; and family friend Jim Dunn.

A birthday cake was served following the meal, and everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to the honored guest.

Special greetings were also extended to Matthew, Haley and Abigale, who also celebrate birthdays in September.

Library schedules special activities for 100th birthday month

- Sunday, September 30 - A 100th Birthday Kick-off event at 3 p.m. will pay tribute to Gretchen Beito and include the special presentation, "Coyo Comes Back."
- Monday, October 1 - As it honors its past, the library will look to the future with adult input sessions at noon and 7 p.m. at the library. Anyone wishing to let the library know what he or she would like to see changed or added is encouraged to attend. Those wanting to contribute ideas but unable to attend are encouraged to call the library, fill out a library survey at the circulation desk, put a suggestion in the suggestion box or email the librarian at heidi@northernlights.lib.mn.us.

A teen input session held this summer provided the library with many ideas. Teens and preteens who were unable to attend the session but who would like to offer suggestions are encouraged to so at this time. The local library board is working on its next long-range plan and considers suggestions from the public as vital.

- Also on Monday, October 1 - A winner will be drawn for a $25 gift certificate at Chapter II Bookstore as part of the 100th birthday Author of the Week activity. Each week since January, a new author has been posted with individuals checking out books by that author becoming eligible for the drawing. One participant said, "It's been an incentive for me to read books by different authors and its been fun."
- Weekly quizzes continue - The weekly 100th birthday quizzes, provided by a Friend of the Library and reprinted, with permission, from Mensagendo, will continue through the end of October. The quizzes have tested participants' power of knowledge and research, and the name of person(s) with the most correct answers each week has been placed in a drawing for a $100 gift certificate from Chapter 2 Bookstore. The drawing will be held on December 31.
- Story times - Preschool storytimes, presented by the Early Childhood Family Learning program, will be held at 9:30 a.m. every Tuesday. During the month of October a special family storytime, "Koality Time," will be presented by library staff every Wednesday from 6:30 to 7 p.m. in the children's room.
- Special Mini Training Sessions Thursday October 4, 18, 25 - Training sessions on library automated databases will be held at 7 p.m. on three October Thursdays. On October 4, the training will focus on the computerized library catalog. The new obituary index will be the focus of the October 18 session, and the training will center around online magazine indexes on October 25. Anyone who is interested in training on these or any other of the library's databases but is unable to attend the scheduled sessions is encouraged to call the library at 681-4325 so that an alternate time can be arranged.
- Teen Read Week October 14-20 - "Making Reading a Hobbit" is the them for Teen Read Week, October 14-20, and the library invites teens to enjoy the new collection of books in the Young Adult Section purchased especially for them from their requests. Teens checking out materials during this week will get to sign up for a drawing for a one-year subscription to Teen People magazine. Teens are also asked to put suggestions for teen magazines that should be in the library in the suggestion box.
- Throughout the month, enjoy excerpts from the library history book in The Times. The historical book in its entirety will be available for purchase at the Thief River Falls Public Library.

We often think about the times
That blessed your youthful years.
We had many happy dreams for you
But God had other plans.
We know not what tomorrow brings,
As we hold onto the years we shared.
Nothing is forever,
As our faith grows day by day
We will take time to pray
As it helps to bring God near,
And washes the dust of earth
From our eyes.
And, we will take time to dream;
It hitches the soul to the stars
We love you Jase,
You will always be with us
Love,
Mom and Dad

Middle River Theater plans to present "Quilters"

Middle River Community Theater will present "Quilters," a story of a pioneer woman and her six daughters, beginning September 26 through 30, at the Middle River Depot Theater.

"Quilters" blends a series of interrelated scenes into a mosaic of beauty, terror and joy, and the harsh challenge and rewards of frontier life. Stories in the play are illuminated in various patches of "blocks" with music, dance and drama. The action depicts the "lot" of women on the frontier as they experience girlhood, marriage, childbirth, spinsterhood, twisters, fire, illness, and death.

Directed by Janine Peterson, the cast is assembled from an experienced group of actresses: Lois Peterson as Mother Sarah; Janine Peterson as Jenny, Cathy Erickson as Margaret, Lois Anderson as Jody, Judy Kaml as Jane; Meridith Welton as Lisa and Candy Gram as Dana.

Janelle Duray will accompany the actresses with a rich musical score, which consists of familiar melodies and hymns.

"Quilters" will be presented on Wednesday, September 26, Thursday, September 27, and Saturday, September 29, at 7:30 p.m. It will be presented on Sunday, September 30, at 4 and 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are available at the Young Store in Middle River or may be reserved by calling the theater hotline at 222-3521.

Satellite series examines impact of media violence

Experts on media violence will examine the impact of entertainment media violence on children and families during a four-part satellite series on October 8, 22 and November 5 and 19 from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the Roseau County Courthouse.

Each segment of the series, sponsored by Iowa State University (ISU) Extension to Families and Roseau County University of Minnesota Extension Service, will feature a different expert and topics.

Topics and speakers will include: Brad Bushmann, Ph.D., on the impact of violent television and movies; Craig A. Anderson, Ph.D., on the impact of violent video games; L. Rowell Huessmann, Ph.D., on entertainment media violence and its impact on children at different ages; and Faith Rogow, Ph.D., on helping parents and children become critical viewers.

"We are really excited to be a part of this series and to have such well-known, credible experts available to share their knowledge," says Karyn Santl, Roseau County Extension educator. "As a society we are all searching for answers about the increase in violence among our children. The information provided in this series may well hold some of the clues."

Santl says the series was developed as part of ISU Extension's continuing focus on children, youth and families at risk, but the information is important for every parent and family professional.

"The information presented in this series is information every parent and family professional should know," Santl says. "In fact, everyone who cares about children should hear what the experts have to say on this subject. We want to increase awareness about this topic, debunk some of the myths and give folks some tangible, practical methods for dealing with violence in the media."

For more information about the series, contact the Roseau County Extension Office at (218) 463-1052.

Program beefs up often overlooked role of dairymen

Producing higher quality milk has always been a priority for dairymen. An educational program being implemented by the Minnesota and Pennsylvania Beef Councils focuses attention on an often-overlooked role of dairymen - as producers of high quality beef products.

Coordinated by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, the Dairy Beef Quality Assurance program is funded through the national $1-per-head beef checkoff. It is intended to focus attention on practices of dairymen that can have a positive impact on the quality of U.S. beef. According to Ron Eustice, executive director of the Minnesota Beef Council, research shows that dairy producers are key contributors to the U.S. beef supply. "Roughly half of all cows processed for beef in this country are dairy animals," Eustice says. "That's why we need to work with dairymen on issues that affect beef quality, consistency and safety."

The Dairy Beef Quality Assurance program focuses on five key issues: encouraging dairymen to give injections in the neck to eliminate blemishes to valuable beef cuts; culling early to reduce the incidence of disabled or "downer" cattle; following label recommendations with animal health products to prevent potential antibiotic resistance; feed supply management and handling cattle humanely during transportation to avoid bruises and injury.

"Dairy producers should not be fooled into believing their animals are only used for hamburger production," says Eustice. "Many of the middle meats are removed and marketed as higher-quality beef cuts." Paul Clayton, executive director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, agrees. "One-third of nonfed beef production comes from dairy cows," Clayton says. "Whether used in Philly Steak sandwiches or cooked and marketed as 'deli' items, meat from dairy animals is a key contributor to the beef supply, and can be a key contributor to a dairy farm's income."

Dairy producers who become better managers of their farms from a beef-producing perspective will enhance their profitability by improving consistency and reducing quality problems, Clayton says. Personal contact, presentations and educational materials, such as brochures and posters, will help provide producers with the information they need to improve cattle handling practices that affect the beef from their animals.

Demand-building efforts such as the Dairy Beef Quality Assurance Program are funded by the national beef checkoff, administered by the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board. This 110-member board is appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture to oversee the collection of the beef checkoff, certify state beef councils, implement the provisions of the Federal Order establishing the checkoff and evaluate the effectiveness of checkoff programs. The Minnesota and Pennsylvania Beef Councils are certified by the Beef Board to collect the mandatory $1-per-head assessment on cattle sales, and invest in promotion, research and educational programs on behalf of their state's beef and dairy producers. Fifty cents of each dollar collected is controlled by grassroots industry representatives sitting on state boards, which also recommend or appoint representatives to the Beef Board and other national organizations.

School News & Views

Irv Peterson, Superintendent
School District 564

The Thief River Falls School District will be asking the voters to accept an excess levy referendum on November 6, 2001. A couple of weeks ago, I wrote in The Times that this was being considered by the local school board. In the next few weeks, I will include several articles that will address issues relevant to the reasons for this decision.

I have received some questions regarding the referendum election, and I will use this space this week to try to answer some of these questions. If you have a service group or other organization that would like a presentation by school officials regarding the referendum during the remainder of September or October, please call the district office to make the request. We would be happy to bring you the information and answer your questions. Our telephone number is 681-8711.

- Why do we need a referendum when we already have one? The current referendum that was approved in 1997 and scheduled to go for 10 years has been eliminated by the Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning Department (CFL). That referendum and all other referendums in the state were shifted over to state aid. That revenue will now come from income taxes and sales taxes rather than property taxes. With that shift, we will receive only minimal revenue.
- Were all school referendums eliminated? Many schools had excess levy referendums in the general fund with income over $415 per pupil unit (ppu). Only the first $415 was converted to state aid. If a district had a referendum of $615, the first $415 was converted to state aid and the other $200 remains as referendum revenue for their property owners to pay. For these districts, that represents no new revenue at all. For districts that had no excess levy referendum, they receive $415 ppu of new revenue. This will help their general fund considerably.

I must point out at this time that there are two very different types of referendums. What we are speaking of here are "excess levy referendums" or "overrides." That is general fund money that pays most of the school bills, ranging from building maintenance and heating to most salaries, to transportation and classroom supplies. The other type of referendum is a bond referendum. A bond referendum is to build facilities. Our current bond referendum remains in force, and state equalization for it remains in place.

- Will this proposed referendum raise my property taxes? If the referendum passes, your taxes would be higher than if the referendum fails. However, it must be noted that, with the state taking over the majority of funding for schools and eliminating the levy for general operating expenses and referendums, your school taxes will go down considerably, even if this referendum passes. Our total school levy for next year will decrease from $4.1 million to about $.18 million. Most of what remains will be for the bond referendum to pay for the Challenger building along with some smaller amounts for community education, health and safety improvements and other small program costs. The previous levy which has now been eliminated called for a local tax impact of $247,000 for our community. That is gone. Our new proposal is for only an $81,000 local commitment. So you see, if this is passed, it will still be considerably less than the previous referendum, and the basic education levy is gone, too.
- So you want our tax rebate back? We are not talking about the tax rebate checks you received from the state. You are projected to receive a significant property tax decrease for education in addition to the rebates you received recently. We are only asking for a small portion of that property tax decrease to be once again committed to education. The vast majority of your property tax relief will still be yours.
- How much will this cost me? On the front page of last week's Times, a chart appeared that indicated the cost of referendum for particular property values. Examples would be a $60,000 value would have a tax impact of $15. A $100,000 parcel of property would have a tax impact of $24. The tax rate is .00024285, so if you take that tax rate times your property value, you would get the tax impact on your property. Farmers consider the value of their house, garage and only one acre. This is new.
- Is is true there are no property taxes on farmland anymore? It is true that farm land is not taxed for school referendum purposes anymore. A farmers will be taxed on the value of his home, garage and only one acre of land. It doesn't matter if he owns 100 acres, 200 acres, 1,000 acres or 10,000 acres. Only the value of his house, garage and one care is taxed for a school excess levy referendum. It had long been argued by many people that the former taxing formulas for farmers was not fair. This is a dramatic change in the direction of making the school taxing system more fair to all farmers.
- Why did you choose $126 ppu? The state has equalized levies for referendum purposes for about 10 years now. Our school district can receive the "best bang for the buck" so to speak by proposing the $126 ppu level. This past year the state equalized referendum levies at $415. That is why they chose the $415 to roll into the general formula. Over 90 percent of schools in the state had excess levy referendums this past year, and the state average was over $500 ppu. The state realized the basic education formula had not kept up with inflation through the past decade so they rolled $415 of referendum dollars into the general education formula. It also realized that many districts still had referendums over the $415 so it changed the equalizing levels. It actually raised the equalizing level $126 to get closed to the state average of last year's levies. Also realizing that many districts in the state still had referendums far in excess of that figure, it equalized all referendum levies all the way to the cap — the maximum level that districts can pass referendums is $837, but the equalizing factor between $126 and $837 is less which means more of that barden would be on the local property owners.
- What do you mean by state equalization? State equalization means that the state will give us aid to make up a portion of whatever level of revenue we choose to increase our total general fund revenue to ensure quality opportunities for our students. That equalizing factor is different for different school districts depending on the value of the property within their school district boundaries. That state aid is generated from income taxes and sales taxes rather than property taxes. Thus, all Minnesotans share in the education of children throughout the state. The income and sales taxes generated by Thief River Falls residents help pay the referendums in school districts all over the state. Passing this referendum means that some of the income tax and sales tax dollars generated by Thief River Falls residents will help pay the education bills in Thief River Falls, not just in Minneapolis, St. Paul and suburban districts. They will get our dollars whether we have a referendum or not.

There are many more questions. I will continue to answer your questions and share more information in the weeks ahead. We are concerned for all the people in our community — the children and youth, residents and tax payers and the business community. We need to keep our community strong and vital. Thanks for all you do to help in that process.

WIC announces October schedule

WIC clinics will be held on the following dates at Redeemer Lutheran Church on Monday, October 1; Monday, October 8; Thursday, October 18; and Friday, October 19.

Immunizations are administered by county nurses. For appointment times, call Inter-County Nursing Service at 681-5950.

Women, Infants and Children Supplemental Nutrition Education Program (WIC) is for eligible infants and children up to five years of age and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding.

Potential clients must write or call the WIC Program and complete and application. For more information, write WIC-Quin County, P.O. Box 190, Red Lake Falls, MN 56750 or call 1-800-223-1591.

BIRTHS

Northwest Medical Center reports the following births since last week's edition of The Times:

- On September 17 a baby girl was born to Randal and Ewa Stennes of St. Hilaire. She has been given the name Melissa Janina.
- On September 17 a baby girl was born to David and Mandy Lubitz of Middle River. She has been given the name Mackenzie Pearl.
- On September 20 a baby boy was born to Jeffrey and Jill Johnson of Thief River Falls. He has been given the name Cole Anthony.
- On September 21 a baby girl was born to Ryan and Alissa Bjerklie of Thief River Falls. She has been given the name Rylie Rose.

Young children on farm need adult supervision at all times

The following commentary is from Madge Alberts of the Children, Youth and Family Consortium, University of Minnesota:

One recent Sunday afternoon, I was driving in rural Minnesota past a dairy farm, and I saw a woman mowing her very large lawn on a riding mower. A common sight during the summer, right? Only this woman had not one, but TWO children on the mower with her, one perched on each knee. I thought to myself, "Now there is an accident waiting to happen. WHAT is she thinking?"

My better judgment told me I should have stopped and said something to her about how dangerous and irresponsible her actions were. But I didn't.

A few months ago, I was watching television one night, and two things occurred, one right after the other, that made me sit up and take notice. First, on the 6 p.m. news, there was report of a young boy from Wisconsin who had wandered out of his home at 3 in the morning and nearly froze to death. He apparently was watching a video (at 3 a.m.) after having been in the barn with his siblings and parents until nearly 2 a.m. while his parents milked cows. Thankfully, he has recovered.

Later that same evening, "Judging Amy," a prime-time TV show about a single mom, who's also a judge required to make decisions regularly about a variety of family issues, came on. This episode had a story line about a dairy farmer who was reported to child protection for keeping his children home from school to work on the farm. Of course, this story was fiction, but it probably made many people without knowledge of farming think critically about the roles of kids working on farms.

I'm the spouse of a dairy farmer. I'm also the mom of five children/step-children, and a family development professional. I know what life is like on farms, and I know firsthand the stresses and demands that sometimes drive people to make decisions that may not be wise. And WAY too often, those decisions are about our kids' safety. I have heard many stories in the last few months about children who have been seriously injured or killed on farms in incidents that were the result of bad judgment, and maybe even irresponsibility on the part of the parents — incidents that probably could have been prevented.

So it's time for me to speak up.

We are not always attentive enough to the safety needs of our young children. Far too often, we take chances we shouldn't take because we think it will never happen to us! But it does happen--and has happened--to many people who thought it would never happen to them.

So for what it's worth, here's my thinking on the issue, which is based on experience and the research about farm safety which we all know, but often choose to ignore.

- Children are not responsible for their own safety. It is the responsibility of the adults in their lives to fill that role.
- Young children should never--NEVER — be around a farm site or in barns unsupervised. Period. If they are outside, they should be under the direct supervision of an adult who is not preoccupied with something else--within direct eyesigh — at all times. When parents are working at their job of farming or milking cows, their attention cannot be fully focused on the safety of their children.
- Young children should not be riding on machinery of any kind. Yes, it's fun to ride on the lawnmower with mommy. And yes, it's even more fun to ride in the big tractor while daddy is cutting hay. But it's not safe. What happens if the child falls off the lawnmower and gets caught underneath it? If you think it can't happen, think again. You say the tractor has an enclosed cab? What happens if there's some emergency with the equipment and the parent has to jump out? Will he remember to shut off moving parts? What if the child tries to climb out after him? There is just too much risk involved to have children in situations like this until they are of a developmental age that they are capable of understanding the dangers of the situation and making decisions for themselves.
- Don't take for granted that young children fully understand the dangers of farm equipment and machinery. They don't. They aren't developmentally able to understand the consequences of getting caught in a PTO, even if you've told them. They don't understand that they could get stepped on by a cow if they get too close. They don't understand that sticking their hand in a conveyor to grab a handful of feed could result in their arm being ripped off. Too often we expect children to be able to utilize adult reasoning powers, and they aren't able to do so developmentally. Further, at young ages, they aren't able to transfer the danger of one situation to another similar situation--they need to be told the rules or cautioned of the dangers for every single situation.
- At least one parent needs to maintain a level of alertness to be able to adequately parent the children. When parents are so exhausted that they can't attend to the physical, emotional, and mental needs of their kids, they need to make some changes.
- The first "job" of children is to be children. Although working as a family on the family farm (large or small) can be a very healthy environment for kids, and help them develop a great work ethic, it's too easy to cross the line and expect kids to take on roles that aren't developmentally appropriate, or that take too much time away from their job of growing up and learning. Be sure those needs are respected.

A few years ago I was part of a study of dairy farm families in southern Minnesota. When we asked about safety issues, one wife told us that when she works outside, she and her husband arrange childcare for their kids. If they can't find childcare, she doesn't go out. They did not allow their young children to be outside when they were occupied working. They made some significant financial sacrifices in order to accomplish this. Unfortunately, I'm afraid their wise choice here is the exception rather than the rule.

During times of high stress or fatigue — such as planting, harvesting, chopping hay, inclement weather situations and low milk prices--our ability to make good judgments or decisions is impaired. We are much more tempted to cut corners or let things slide because we believe we don't have the time, energy and maybe the money to attend to them adequately.

I have long believed that if, as farm families, we are unable, for whatever reason, to adequately attend to the safety and developmental well-being of our children, including proper parenting, we need to re-think our priorities. Yes, working together and living together on a farm can provide a wonderful, nurturing environment for spouses and children. But it can also pose risks that must be acknowledged and attended to on a daily basis.

In a University of Minnesota Extension publication entitled "Keeping Farm Children Safe," author and farm safety expert John Shutske says, "Farm accidents to children are not random. They are very predictable. And almost all of them could be prevented." Given the alarming number of children who have been seriously injured or killed in farm accidents in the last year or so, we are apparently not giving adequate attention to children's safety. Losing even ONE child because of poor judgment or laxness in supervision is too much, and it affects all the family members for the rest of their lives.

The publication "Keeping Farm Children Safe" also contains an exceptional chart showing the developmental stages of children, what they're capable of at each stage, as well as risks, and protective measures. It is available online at: www.extension.umn.edu/distribution/youthdevelopment/DA6188.html . It's also available from county offices of the University of Minnesota Extension Service. Senate passes bill to help airline industry

Senator Mark Dayton said Friday, September 21, that the Senate has approved a $15 billion relief package for the nation's airline industry, providing desperately-needed assistance to air carriers that are struggling to stay in business in the wake of last week's terrorist attacks, as well as measures that will help protect air service in small communities in Minnesota and across the country.

Dayton said that the Air Transportation System Stabilization Act provides $5 billion in grants and up to $10 billion in loan guarantees to air carriers to compensate for losses incurred as a result of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

In addition to these measures, Dayton said that the package includes an increase in funding for the Essential Air Service (EAS) program to $120 million from the current $50 million. The EAS program helps maintain service to small airports, which are often the only source of air service for hundreds of miles, making them a vital part of the local economy. The package also directs the Secretary of Transportation to take appropriate action to ensure that all communities which received air service before September 11 continue to receive service. In a letter Friday, Dayton had pressed Congressional leaders drafting airline legislation to include these provisions in any relief package for the airline industry.

"Even before the terrorists assaulted the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, our nation's air carriers were struggling to survive financially," Dayton said. "Without this aid package, many of these companies would surely have had to shut their doors, or stop service to small communities in Minnesota and throughout the country crippling our nation's transportation and commerce. It was critical that the Federal Government step in and prevent this from happening."

Dayton Urges Senate to Provide Benefits For Laid-Off Airline Employees.

Dayton said he was disappointed that the airline relief package did not include measures providing financial assistance, job retraining, and continued health benefits for airline employees who are being laid off because of the financial strain being suffered by the industry. In a letter sent Friday to Senate Leaders Tom Daschle (D-SD) and Trent Lott (R-MS), Dayton urged them to quickly consider legislation that will provide needed assistance to those workers.

The Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act

Airline Stabilization:

- Directs the President to provide $5 billion in grants and up to $10 billion in loan guarantees to air carriers to compensate for losses incurred as a result of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.
- Establishes a new "Air Transportation - Stabilization Board" — to be chaired by the Federal Reserve Board chair or designee, with members to include the Secretary of Transportation or designee, the Secretary of the Treasury or designee, and, as a non-voting member, the Comptroller General or designee to approve or deny loan guarantee applications and define their conditions.
- Requires airlines to substantiate their losses, with audit powers to the Secretary of Transportation and the Comptroller General of the United States.
- Allows the Government to use warrants, stock options or stock to allow the Government to share in the future gains of participating corporations.
- Prevents a pay raise or "golden parachute" severance payments for highly compensated employees.

Service Commitments:

- Authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to require participating air carriers to prevent the loss of scheduled air service to small communities.
- Authorizes $120 million in funding for Essential Air Service to small communities.

Victim Compensation:

- Establishes the "September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001" to compensate any individual (or personal representative) who was physically injured or killed as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001.
- Directs the Attorney General to appoint a special master to administer the compensation program and determine each victim's economic and non-economic damages.
- Limits air carrier liability for September 11th incidents to the maximum of the carrier's liability coverage.
- Aviation Insurance (prospective liability):
- Allows Secretary of Transportation to reimburse air carriers for premium increases and to insure carriers against terrorism for a 180-day period.

Retrospective Liability:

- Provides that liability of air carriers for damages arising from the terrorist-related crashes on September 11, 2001, shall not exceed the limits of the carriers, liability coverage.

Air Transportation Safety:

- Statement of Congressional agreement with the President to spend $3 billion on airline safety and security to restore public confidence in the airline industry and statement of Congressional intent to act expeditiously on further safety measures.

'Positive Parenting' program results in less spanking, verbal abuse

Parents reduced both spanking and verbal abuse of their children after completing "Positive Parenting" classes or other activities, according to evaluation data and a new study in Goodhue County.

"That's good news since physical punishment such as spanking causes children to become more aggressive and more abusive and violent later in life," says Ron Pitzer, family sociologist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Pitzer is the coordinator of Positive Parenting, a program of the U of M Extension Service in cooperation with other agencies. The curriculum has been used throughout Minnesota, in about 30 other states and in several other countries.

"Fathers reduced their physical punishment more than mothers," Pitzer says. "This is surprising and significant. Fathers started the program doing more physical punishment than their wives. But at the end of the program they were spanking less than their wives." Fathers changed from 54 percent use of physical punishment to 18 percent use; mothers changed from 41 percent to 24 percent use.

In the study, parents who reduced physical punishment reported their children were less aggressive. There was less hitting of their siblings, other children, and adults; less property destruction and bullying of other children.

There was also a large decrease in verbal abuse by parents who completed the program. The number who said they often yelled or scolded their children decreased four-fold-from 22 percent to five percent. And those who said they never yelled at their children rose from 10 percent to 20 percent.

The study involved 1,000 parents who were interviewed at three different times over a five-year period. In addition, the project collected evaluation data from 1,100 parents statewide.

Results showed not only a significant decline in physical punishment, but also an increase in safe, effective nurturing and discipline practices. Parents reported more and better listening, more quality time spent with children, more effective use of "time-outs," more frequent "catching children being good," improvement of parent-child relationships and children minding better.

"No spanking does not mean no discipline," Pitzer emphasizes. On the contrary, the Positive Parenting program emphasizes discipline. This means setting limits, developing expectations, monitoring and enforcing guidelines.

"Unfortunately, many of today's parents don't discipline enough, and about 40 percent are 'unengaged'," Pitzer says. "Good parenting is a mix of discipline, nurturing and respect. It can be done successfully in many ways and in different cultures."

More information on the Positive Parenting program is available at www.extension.umn.edu, or at a county office of the University of the Minnesota Extension Service.

was packed with people who were stocking up on supplies. There were no arguments, no complaining. It was unreal and scary, said Mutnansky. But she said she thinks people felt it was their patriotic duty to stay calm and work together.

Mutnansky is proud of New Yorkers. She said she's never seen New Yorkers pull together like this, and she's amazed and thankful for all of the support outside of New York. That's what it will take to win this new war. She's proud and thankful to all the people who made donations. Her own station, HBC, donated $100,000, and the 50 individual stations in the corporation are making appeals for donations too

Mutnansky has a friend who is missing. She knows she's dead.

There are over 6,400 people who are presumed dead. That means, she said, there's at least that many stories, and at least that many relatives, friends and co-workers who are experiencing loss. New York is a city in mourning.

Mutnansky doesn't have any hope that there are any more survivors. She does have hope though — hope that the administration does the right thing and doesn't go after our enemies in the wrong way.

Mutnansky hasn't gone to see the what's left of the World Trade towers, and she doesn't plan to. She's devastated by the fact that 220 stories (110 stories each tower) have been reduced to rubble, and that so many people died.

As the days passed, people began going back to work and to attempt to return to the way their lives were before the attack. But, there were still more signs that things have changed in New York. Mutnansky explained that she had been planning to return to Goodridge this week for a wedding. She had purchased her plane tickets for the trip home a long time ago. Because service has been shut down she took a 36-hour train ride home. From previous experience, Penn Station was just a train hub, a crowded place filled with people in a rush, who "couldn't give a shit" about the needs and concerns of the person next to them. But at 4:30 p.m. on Sunday three firefighters entered the station. Mutnansky said she thought they were coming off duty. They were covered with dirt and were obviously very tired. Suddenly the crowd at Penn Station parted for the firefighters, stopped what they were doing and started to applaud. "They are our new heroes," said Mutnansky.

As a final thought, Mutnansky said the events on Tuesday were not just another dramatic event. "It's a war and now I'm scared for everyone."

UMC names Outstanding Alumni for 2001

The University of Minnesota, Crookston Alumni Association is pleased to announce its Outstanding Alumni Awards for the year 2001. These awards recognized alumni who have displayed exemplary commitment and service to their occupational field, community, education, place of worship and family.

This year, the UMC Alumni Association has selected two alumni who have met the criteria in an outstanding fashion. They will be recognized during UMC's homecoming game at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, September 29, and they and their families will be special guests during all of the homecoming events.

This year's honorees are Dean Carlson of Kennedy and Kari Torkelson of Grand Forks, N.D.

Dean Carlson is a 1970 graduate of UMC's agricultural program. He continued his studies at North Dakota State University, receiving a bachelor of science degree in agriculture in 1972.

Carlson farms 5,000 acres near Kennedy. In addition to raising wheat, soybeans and sugar beets, he serves as a regular columnist for The Farmer magazine. His is a former columnist for The Sugarbeet Grower and has done freelance writing for other publications including Successful Farming and the Grand Forks Herald. He has also authored two books, So This is Farming and A Farmer's View.

Carlson has also found time to memorize the Gospel of Mark and has presented it to various organizations and churches. He has served on various governing boards and was recently elected to the Minnesota Wheat Council. Curt Almlie, director of Alumni Relations, says, "Dean Carlson probably understands free trade better than most and can speak with wisdom about the farm crisis in northwestern Minnesota."

Carlson and his wife, Carol, have four children. Melissa is an NDSU graduate. Alan attended East Grand Forks Technical College, and Todd and Andrew are high school students.

Kari Torkelson, a native of Thief River Falls, attended UMC from 1989 to 1991. Her major areas of studies were in the arts and sciences.

Torkelson continued her studies in zoology at North Dakota State University from 1991 to 1993. In 1993, she entered Indiana University's School of Optometry, earning a bachelor of science degree in 1995 and completing a Doctor of Optometry degree in 1997.

Torkelson is currently an optometrist and practices her profession with Dr. Jeffrey D. Yunken and Associates in Grand Forks, N.D. She works with diagnosing, treating and managing diseases and disorders of the eye and related systematic conditions. She has authored an article, "Normal Tension Glaucoma and Central Corneal Thickness" for the August 1999 issue of Optometry and Vision Science.

Jerry Knutson, associate professor of biology at UMC, recalls that Torkelson was an outstanding student and also participated very competitively in women's athletics. He says, "Kari is an outstanding individual and has done extremely well in her chosen profession."

Torkelson maintains her membership in both the North Dakota Optometric Association and the American Optometric Association. She resides in Grand Forks.

Prowlers' offense in high gear in win at Grand Rapids

One of the questions Thief River Falls faced heading into the 2001 high school football season was how well would the Prowlers match up with the larger schools as a first-year member of the Super Sea Range Conference. The answer: very well, thank-you. After playing the three biggest schools in the eight-team league to open the conference schedule, the 2-1 Prowlers are involved in a three-way first place tie with Duluth East and Duluth Central.

Friday, Thief River Falls established itself as a serious conference title contender by registering a 39-25 road win at Grand Rapids. That followed a 20-14 loss to Denfeld and a 37-18 victory over East.

The Prowlers and Thunderhawks put on an entertaining show in front of a large Grand Rapids homecoming night crowd by combining for 10 touchdowns and 887 yards of total offense. The winners did it on the ground, where Jon Swanson had 253 yards on 11 carries and Dan Almquist gained 141 yards on eight attempts in a 472-yard assault against the Grand Rapids defense. The Thunderhawks answered with 13-for-24 passing for 236 yards.

It was Thief River Falls' first win in six meetings with Grand Rapids. The two teams met in 1980 and 1981, then had a three-year series from 1996-98.

Thief River Falls, beaten by Class AAA state power Albany 47-14 in a nonconference season-opener back on Aug. 31, is 2-2 for the year.

"We've come so far from Game 1," said Thief River Falls head coach Jeff Mumm. "In my 17 years (as head coach), I've never had a football team improve this much. They just keep getting better and better. There's no magic involved on the part of the coaching staff; the kids are working hard. It's fun to be a part of."

It took the Prowlers all of four plays and 85 seconds to get on the scoreboard. On their second snap, Swanson went 34 yards off right tackle. Two plays later Almquist went untouched around the left side on a 31-yard touchdown run.

Grand Rapids' first series ended with a blocked punt by Thief River Falls' Trent Christensen that gave the Prowlers the ball at the Thunderhawks' 29-yard line. Six plays later Swanson sliced through the middle, cut to his left and put the final defender on the ground with a straight-arm that opened the way to the zone on a 12-yard run with 3:56 left in the first quarter.

It became 20-0 when Swanson took a carry into the line, stumbled, but regained his balance and then ran out of arms of a defensive back at midfield on a 64-yard touchdown run 2:27 into the second quarter.

The Thunderhawks responded with a drive that reached the Prowlers' 10-yard line before a fourth-and-four pass fell incomplete.

Four plays later, instead of being a two-touchdown spread, it was 26-0 when Swanson again burst through the line, picked up an open-field block from Almquist that flattened the final defender, and went 88 yards for a touchdown with 2:47 left in the first half.

Grand Rapids finally got into the end zone on a 28-yard Sam Heiken pass to Derek Salsbury with 1:10 to play. The Prowlers were waiting for the third-and-nine play to be called back on what they thought was an obvious push and offensive pass interference by the receiver when the officials signalled touchdown.

The Thunderhawks appeared ready to make a game of it when a fumble recovery at the Prowlers' 20 led to a 10-yard option pitch to Abe Wolf for a touchdown that shaved the Thief River Falls lead to 26-13 with 5:34 remaining in the third quarter.

But the rally was short-lived: The Prowlers turned right around and put together an 8-play, 75-yard scoring drive that ended when Almquist broke away on a 37-yard touchdown run with 2:08 on the third quarter clock.

The offensive show continued when Heiken found Blake Herme with a 33-yard pass that set up his one-yard quarterback sneak on the first play of the fourth quarter to make it 33-19.

A 61-yard run by Almquist led to a 4-yard Dane Kjono touchdown run as the Prowlers stretched their lead to 39-19 with 4:28 to play.

Heiken and Herme promptly teamed up for a 58-yard pass play, and Heiken went to Richie Cueller on a 4-yard touchdown toss to complete the scoring with 2:20 showing.

"This is a great win," said Mumm. "The kids are so confident. After the Albany game, and the first half of the Denfeld game, they were hanging their heads. But beginning in the second half against Denfeld, we've played well. They say winners walk with a little sway: well, our kids have that bounce in their step right now."

Duluth Central will be at Multi-Events Center field Friday

Third and final Duluth school on Thief River Falls' 2001 high school football schedule will visit the Multi-Events Center Friday when Central arrives for a 7 p.m. Super Sea Range Conference game.

The Prowlers and Trojans, along with Duluth East, are 2-1 in the league standings, with Duluth Denfeld and Proctor right behind them at 1-1.

Thief River Falls will finish the conference schedule with games Oct. 5 at Proctor, Oct. 12 at home against Cloquet and Oct. 17 at Hibbing. The Cloquet contest will be the Prowlers' homecoming game.

The Super Sea Range Conference is the larger-school line-up of teams using the league moniker. The smaller-school Sea Range Conference includes Hermantown, Greenway, International Falls, Crosby-Ironton, Two Harbors, Virginia, and Eveleth-Gilbert.

Mustangs champions in TRF tournament

Red Lake County Central beat East Grand Forks, Marshall County Central, Bemidji, and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Saturday to win the annual Thief River Falls Northern Lites Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

The Mustangs handled the Green Wave 15-4, 15-4; got by the Nordics 15-6, 12-15, 15-7; and swept the Lumberjacks 15-13, 15-8 in the round-robin pool play portion of the tournament.

It was a 19-17, 15-9 Red Lake County Central victory over the Wolverines in the trophy round championship match.

"We played real well," said Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "Our defense did a nice job, and we got good net play."

Brittany Berberich had 36 tournament kills for the Mustangs. Michelle Halvorson and Maureen Munt contributed 26 and 22 kills, respectively. Munt was credited with 33 assists for the day; Halvorson had 25.

It was the second tournament title match of the fall for the Mustangs, who finished second to Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton at the Sept. 8 Ada-Borup Invitational. The only other loss during a 12-2 start was a season-opening setback at the hands of Fosston.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke reached the finals with pool play wins over Thief River Falls 15-9, 15-13; Park Rapids Area 15-2, 15-3; and Norman County West 15-13, 15-10.

NCTC vs. Mesabi Range Thursday...

Pioneers face first division opponent

Northland opens defense of its Northern Division title Thursday when the Pioneers host Mesabi Range in a 7 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference football game at the Multi-Events Center.

The Pioneers finished a season-opening four-game swing through the MCCC Southern Division Saturday by losing a rain-soaked 54-22 homecoming game to Fergus Falls. Northland led 22-20 at halftime, but was out-scored 34-0 over the final 30 minutes.

The Spartans' comeback actually started in the final three minutes of the first half when a clock-beating drive reached the end zone with just 30 seconds left.

"That touchdown right before half really hurt," acknowledged Northland coach Guy Finstrom. "We were hoping to go in with a 22-12 lead, and instead they scored. They got some momentum going, and you could see that our kids were deflated."

The turnaround continued at the start of the second half. While the Pioneers went three-and-out on their first two possessions, the Spartans scored the first two times they touched the ball to take a 33-22 lead.

"We played a good first half," said Finstrom. "They (Spartans) started running on us in the second half. They put us back on our heels."

Fergus Falls finished with a 549-315 advantage in total yards. The Spartans netted 367 yards on the ground and added 182 yards passing. The Pioneers ran for 185 yards and passed for 131. Maurice Johnson carried 22 times for 166 yards to lead the Northland attack. He scored on an 85-yard run and on a 45-yard pass from Jeremy Cost.

A 27-yard Cost throw to Brian Harris produced the third Northland touchdown of the afternoon.

While the Pioneers were far from satisfied with the single win against Southern Division teams, they can make amends in their final five starts against Northern Division rivals Mesabi Range, Hibbing, Vermilion, Rainy River, and Itasca – games that are worth two points to the Pioneers in the MCCC standings. Match-ups against schools in the other division are one-pointers.

"Our kids will bounce back," promised Finstrom. "They'll put this one (Fergus Falls) behind them and get ready for the Northern Division teams. If we win out, we'll be division champions again. If we finish 4-1, we'll be runner-up and head to the playoffs."

Top two regular season finishers in the Northern and Southern Division standings land spots in the MCCC state playoff semifinals.

Finstrom's ties with Mesabi Range prompted the first-year Northland head coach to help develop a new traveling trophy that will be awarded to the winner of the annual meeting between the two teams – the Shovel/Pick. The 'trophy' was made here with a green (Mesabi Range) ore pick on one end and a blue (Northland) shovel on the other end.

NCTC golfers wrap up regular season today; ready for state/region

Poor weather conditions prompted the cancellation Friday of a scheduled Northland Community and Technical College appearance at the Central Lakes triangular golf meet.

Itasca Invitational today (Wednesday) wraps up the 2001 regular season schedule for the Pioneers.

The combination Minnesota Community College Conference state and National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13 tournament will be played Oct. 1-2. Monday's first round will be played at the LeSueur County Club, while Tuesday's second golf shifts to the Mankato Golf Club.

Player of the Week...

Pioneers' Berube earns MCCC volleyball honor

Christel Berube, a freshman middle hitter on the Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team, was named Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division Player of the Week for matches played Sept. 3-8, it was announced recently by the Pioneers.

Berube, a former Climax/Fisher standout, had 53 kills and 19 blocks in Northland matches against Itasca, Mesabi Range and Vermilion.

She is currently second in the Northern Division in both attack percentage and blocking.

Northland, idle since losing a 3-0 match at Central Lakes a week ago, is in Fergus Falls tonight (Wednesday) The Pioneers will play at Hibbing Friday and at Rainy River Saturday.

Dane Kjono had the runner by the legs as teammates Robby Anderson (19) and Garrett Hoglo (62) came up to help out. The Prowlers won 39-25.

Wolverines feeling better; defeat Eagles 3-0 Monday

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, slowed by illness last week, showed signs of recovery Monday with a solid performance in a 15-11, 15-8, 15-7 high school volleyball win at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart.

The Wolverines were at their worst, physically, in a 15-13, 15-7, 15-13 Thursday loss at Warroad.

Saturday, they beat Thief River Falls, Park Rapids Area and Norman County West in the pool play portion of the Thief River Falls Northern Lites Invitational before running out of steam in a championship match loss at the hands of Red Lake County Central.

"We starting to feel better, and we're starting to play better," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz. "We were so sick, I should have postponed the Warroad match. We played well early at the tournament. I thought we'd do better against Red Lake County Central, but we were tired. I think the girls were just wore out."

Anna Anderson, Laura Anderson and Aashley Stavnes led the Wolverines in the Monday win over the Eagles with 7, 6 and 5 kills, respectively. Kelsey Johnsrud came up with 17 assists, while Anna Anderson, Laura Anderson and Lacey Hoffman all had service aces.

Depth, according to Schultz, helped the Wolverines get through their bought with illness. "The kids on the bench did a tremendous job," she said. "They came in and played well."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke is 8-4 for the year.

TRF JV, freshmen lose

Crookston shut out the Thief River Falls junior varsity 33-0 and Devils Lake, N.D. beat the Thief River Falls freshmen 33-12 in Thursday high school football.

TRFAHA registration is Saturday, Tuesday at new hockey office

Registration for the 2001-02 Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association program will be held Saturday, Sept. 29, and Tuesday, Oct. 2.

The sign-up sessions will take place at the new hockey office located in the basement of the city auditorium, located just off the meeting room. You are asked to use the auditorium door near the alley for entrance.

Saturday registration will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Tuesday sign-up will be from 5 to 8 p.m.

Players will be able to pick up equipment at registration time. All players who currently have TRFAHA equipment, including goalies, are asked to bring that gear to registration to help with the transition to the new system.

TRFAHA is providing all necessary equipment that players ages 6-under will need this winter, including skates. The 7-8-year-olds receive equipment, but will have to provide their own skates. The 9-10-year-old Squirts, and all traveling teams will be provided helmets, face mask, breezers, gloves and jerseys.

Bemidji shuts out Thief River Falls 6-0 in girls tennis

Bemidji posted straight-set wins across the board Friday in an 8-0 girls high school tennis victory over visiting Thief River Falls.

It was the second loss in seven dual meet outings for the Prowlers, whose only other setback to date was a 4-3 defeat at the hands of Crookston.

To complete a frustrating weekend for the Sylvie Sjoberg-coached Prowlers, a Saturday Brainerd Invitational was just barely under way when rains hit and washed out the event.

East Grand Forks, Roseau and Park Rapids Area will join the Prowlers for the Thief River Falls Quadrangular Thursday. Matches start at 10 a.m.

Host Thief River Falls had a 2-2 fourth place tournament showing. The Prowlers followed the first-match loss to Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke with pool play wins over Norman County West 15-12, 15-7 and Park Rapids Area 15-10, 13-15, 15-12. Bemidji stopped Thief River Falls 15-9, 15-12 in the third-place match.

It was the third straight Saturday tournament for the Prowlers, who were winless at the Ada-Borup Invitational and a week later went 2-1-1 to take the consolation title at Warren-Alvarado-Oslo. They started the year 0-9, but are 4-3-1 since then.

"We're moving up every tournament, as far as placing," noted Thief River Falls co-head coach Erika Jensen. "I think we played well, again. It's another step forward. We're heading in the right direction, but we shouldn't be completely satisfied. We're still making mistakes. We can still get better."

In other trophy round finals, East Grand Forks beat Norman County West 17-15, 15-5 for fifth place and Marshall County Central defeated Park Rapids Area 15-11, 15-8 for seventh.

The Nordics lost pool play matches to Bemidji, Red Lake County Central and East Grand Forks, taking both the Mustangs and Green Wave to three games.

RLCC picks up second win

Eight Red Lake County Central touchdowns came from eight different players Friday as the Mustangs beat Red Lake 59-18 in high school football at Plummer.

It was the second win in five starts for the Mustangs, who were coming off loss in similar fashion at the hands of Climax/Fisher just three days earlier, 59-16.

"I was confident we would win, but I was surprised at the margin," said Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "We were at the opposite end of the same kind of game earlier in the week. I liked this one a lot better."

The Mustangs led 38-6 at the end of the first quarter and had a 45-6 halftime cushion.

Red Lake County Central racked up 407 rushing yards on 53 plays, led by Nick Vettleson with 128 yards on 10 carries, Cole Bernier 70 yards on 11 attempts and Charlie Magnell 68 yards on 12 tries.

The Mustangs put the ball in the air just three times, completing two of them for 17 yards.

Magnell was in on six tackles (five unassisted), while Ryan Paradis, Carl Dugstad, Lucas Bjerklie, Nick Vettleson, and Tyler Holmes all had interceptions for the winners in their homecoming game victory.

The Mustangs are idle this week. They return to action with a Friday, Oct. 5, game on the road against Ulen-Hitterdal.

Blue Devils lose to North Star

A 70-yard Brett Spilde pass interception return for a touchdown in the final moments of the first half sparked North Star to a 41-12 Friday high school football win over Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

Trailing 28-12, the Blue Devils were on the move and hoping to make it a one-touchdown spread by halftime before Spilde came up with the interception and return that put him in the end zone with just two seconds remaining in the half.

Earlier in the second quarter, a Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke drive reached the North Star 5-yard line before ending with a fumble.

"Offensively, we had opportunities, but we didn't connect," said Blue Devils coach John Wilebski. "Defensively, we played well at times, but then we'd give up the big plays."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke finished with 219 yards of offense, including a 145-yard rushing effort on 30 carries by Cory Ostby. North Star finished with 311 yards, including a 16-carry, 126-yard rushing performance by Spilde.

Wilebski had high praise for the play by his defensive line, but expressed disappointment in the performance by his linebackers and defensive backs.

The 0-4 Blue Devils play East Grand Forks Sacred Heart Friday at Goodridge.

Badger/Greenbush Gators 3-2 volleyball winners over Warren Ponies

Anne Dostal had 11 kills and Katie Borgen collected 29 assists Monday to lead Badger/Greenbush-Middle River past Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 15-5, 6-15, 15-13, 16-18, 15-9 in high school volleyball.

It was just the third win in 12 decisions for the Gators.

"We finally got everything going together," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian. "We had enough offense, our passing came through, and our serving was good, again. It was a small step in the right direction."

Kierah Kimbrough and Beth Wilhelmi contributed to the Gators' attack with 9 and 7 kills, respectively. Borgen and Amanda Randall both had two aces

The Gators were coming off a 1-4 showing at the Bagley Invitational Saturday. They lost pool play decisions to Roseau, New York Mills and Clearbrook-Gonvick, beat Nashwauk-Keewatin the trophy round, but lost a rematch with Clearbrook-Gonvick in the 12-team field.

Grand Rapids runningback Richie Cueller was tripped up by Thief River Falls' Caleb Crepeau after picking up 11 yards on this first quarter carry in Friday's high school football match-up. The Prowlers' Trent Christensen (34) trailed the play. The Prowlers won the Super Sea Range Conference game 39-25.

MCC Invitational is Saturday...

Nordics lose 3-1match against Red Lake Falls

Red Lake Falls handed Marshall County Central a 3-1 setback Monday in high school volleyball at Newfolden.

The Eagles won 15-8, 12-15, 15-6, 15-9.

"We struggled mentally all night to get into the match," said Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "I thought we played better Saturday at the (Thief River Falls) tournament – we played pretty well against some good teams – but this time we just made too many mistakes; a lot of unforced errors."

Nine kills by Ashley Peters led the 3-8 Nordics.

Annual Marshall County Central Sports Boosters Invitational will be played Saturday. The Nordics will be grouped with Stephen-Argyle and Kittson County North in the round-robin pool play portion of the six-team event. The other threesome will be Warren-Alvarado-Oslo, Tri-County and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke.

RLCC volleyball teams complete sweep with a TRF Invitational JV title

It was a clean sweep for Red Lake County Central Saturday as the Mustangs added a title in the junior varsity portion of the Thief River Falls Northern Lites Invitational high school volleyball tournament to go along with the championship finish in the varsity competition by the Oklee/Plummer cooperative.

Thief River Falls went 2-1 in pool play and lost a 2-0 third place match to East Grand Forks that put the Prowlers at 6-12 for the year.

Two long-time employees fill DNR forestry positions

State Forester Mike Carroll has selected two long-time employees to fill top posts within the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Forestry Division.

Tom Baumann, currently the administrator of the DNR's Bureau of Information, Education and Licensing, was selected to head the Forestry Division's Resource Management Section. He will assume the position on Sept. 26. The section head responsibilities are many, but include the state land forest management, timber sales, resource assessment, utilization and marketing, and private forest management programs.

Baumann, who has worked for the DNR for 26 years, including 13 years as a field forester, replaces Bruce ZumBahlen who retired in August.

John Grossbach was appointed to fill the Forestry Division regional forester position at Brainerd. Grossbach, a division employee for 32 years, spent 17 of these years as assistant regional forester at Brainerd. He assumed the position of regional forester Sept. 7, replacing Darwin Anderson, who retired in July of this year.

The Forestry Division's Brainerd Region encompasses 15 counties in north-central Minnesota and concentrates primarily on state land management, timber sales, fire protection and private forest management.

Carroll said Baumann and Grossbach were selected because of their extensive experience with the DNR and their strong records of achievement.

"These two individuals possess the experience and knowledge to help expand and enhance the division's forest management and protection efforts throughout the north-central region and the state," Carroll said. "They both have a good working relationship with division and department staff and can hit the ground running as soon as they step into these key positions."

Baiting waterfowl can can result in big fines

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials are asking hunters to be safe, ethical and responsible when the state's waterfowl hunting season gets underway Saturday, Sept. 29. Those who fail to do so could face stiff fines.

In addition to state regulations, federal rules apply to the taking, possession, shipping, transporting and storing migratory game birds. Among the restrictions is taking migratory game birds by the aid of baiting, or on or over a baited area when a person knows, or reasonably should know, that the area is or has been baited.

A baited area is considered to be baited for 10 days following complete removal of any bait. Baiting includes placing, exposing, depositing, distributing or scattering salt, grain or other feed that could serve as a lure or attraction for migratory game birds to areas or over areas where hunters are attempting to take them.

To be legally hunted, agricultural areas must be prepared in accordance with official recommendations. It is a separate offense to place or direct placement of bait that causes, induces or allows another to hunt by the aid of bait or over a baited area.

"Hunters are responsible for ensuring that an area has not been baited and should verify its legality prior to hunting," said Col. Bill Bernhjelm, DNR Enforcement Division chief. The maximum penalties are $15,000/six months in jail for hunting over bait, and $100,000/one year in jail for placing bait.

"Minnesota's abundance of wildlife is no accident," Bernhjelm noted. "It is the direct product of habitat management and compliance with the law. When hunters follow the regulations, they are on the trail to a safe, rewarding and successful hunt."

Hunters urged to read, review DNR handbook

With several 2001 Minnesota hunting seasons now underway, the state's top wildlife official is urging hunters to take a close look at this year's Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook.

Included in the annual publication are new laws, details about special hunting opportunities, and important facts about public hunting lands and refuges, said Tim Bremicker, director of the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Division.

"I recommend that every hunter sit down with a cup of coffee before the season begins and read through the hunting regulations handbook," said Bremicker, a dedicated waterfowl hunter who sets his decoys on lakes throughout north-central Minnesota. "That's a great time to learn new regulations, to review old laws, and to see the wide range of hunting opportunities this state provides."

Bremicker said that he re-reads the handbook each fall. "My memory is pretty good," he said, "but there are a lot of hunting opportunities in Minnesota. Sometimes even I forget specifics about certain hunts if I haven't done them for a few years."

For example, Bremicker said, he forgot that the Youth Waterfowl Hunt on Sept. 15 ended at 4 p.m. "Fortunately, I was reading the handbook on the Thursday night before the hunt and I saw the correct ending time," he said. "Otherwise, I might have made a major mistake."

Among the new regulations this year are a change in the definition of agriculture lands to clarify that permission must be obtained before hunters enter federal Conservation Reserve Program lands; changes in criteria for obtaining disability permits to shoot from a stationary motor vehicle; and doubling of the bear limit from one to two. Another new feature: Wheelchair symbols appear throughout the publication to highlight opportunities for hunters with disabilities.

Back pages of the handbook contain lists of state refuges and scientific and natural areas open to public hunting, as well as rules for hunting on state wildlife management areas, state forests, federal waterfowl production areas and national wildlife refuges.

"The handbook is a compilation of an entire year's worth of wildlife management work by the DNR," Bremicker said. "The antlerless permit quotas, the controlled goose hunts, the WMAs that allow motorized watercraft, information on applying for an intensive harvest permit, the list of waterfowl feeding and resting areas - the list just goes on and on. All that information is what hunters are getting for their license dollar, and it's all right here in the handbook."

Each year the DNR prints 850,000 copies of the Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, available wherever hunting licenses are sold, or by calling the DNR Information Center toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

Opportunities for hunters with disabilities...

Special permits made available

"I know if I ever became physically impaired, I'd still want the ability to do what I want to do, and high on that list is hunting," said Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Conservation Officer Dan Book. "There's no reason it can't be a safe and enjoyable activity."

Eleven years have passed since the Americans With Disabilities Act made it easier for people with mental or physical disabilities to venture out with some confidence that they could go to a movie, use a store restroom, drink from a water fountain, find a job or enjoy the outdoors.

The law, which prohibits discrimination against an estimated 54 million Americans with disabilities, has opened up public places that might have been closed to them in the past. In the booming 1990s, more employers and businesses were ready to find ways to bring workers with disabilities into their offices and factories, restaurants and department stores. Likewise, more people realized their physical disabilities shouldn't keep them from enjoying the great outdoors.

The DNR offers several permits for people with physical disabilities who enjoy hunting.

Crossbows

A person may not hunt big game or small game with a crossbow, except by a special permit issued to hunters who are unable to hunt by archery because of a temporary or permanent disability.

A licensed physician or chiropractor must verify this disability in writing.

Motor Vehicles

No person may take a wild animal with a firearm or by archery from a motor vehicle except a person with a disability who has the appropriate permit.

A person with a disability and a permit to shoot from a stationary motor vehicle may take a deer of either sex without an anterless permit, except in the Zone 3A season and in those anterless permit areas where no permits are offered. Other members of the hunting party may not shoot anterless deer for the person with a disability.

Permits to shoot from a stationary motor vehicle may be issued to a person who obtains the required licenses and who has a permanent physical disability that is more substantial than discomfort from walking. The permit recipient must be unable to step from a vehicle without aid of a wheelchair, crutches, braces, or other mechanical support or prosthetic device, or be unable to walk any distance because of a permanent lung, heart or other internal disease that requires the person to use supplemental oxygen to assist breathing.

A licensed physician or chiropractor must verify the permanent disability in writing. A false application by a person or fraudulent certification by a doctor is a misdemeanor. In addition to evidence of permanent disability, the applicant must possess a valid disability parking certificate or license plates.

ATVs, Snowmobiles

A permit may be issued to shoot from a standing recreational motor vehicle to a licensed hunter who has a permanent physical disability that is more substantial than discomfort from walking.

The ATV/snowmobile permit allows the holder, as a licensed deer hunter, to operate the machine during the closed hours of operation in effect during the open deer season. Without the permit, deer hunters can only operate their machines before and after legal shooting hours (one-half hour before sunrise and one-half hour after sunset) and between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Those who believe they qualify may contact their local DNR conservation officer for a special permit application. They can contact the Minnesota State Patrol for the name and phone number of a Minnesota DNR conservation officer in their area.

A false application by a person or fraudulent certification by a doctor is a misdemeanor. Disability permit applications are available from any DNR regional office or by calling toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

All temporary and permanent disability permits to shoot from a stationary motor vehicle that were issued before Jan. 1, 2001, have expired. Persons with disabilities must apply for a new permit.

Harvest survey proves important

■ Migratory Bird Harvest Information program

Major migratory bird seasons open in September. If hunters haven't yet registered for the Migratory Bird Harvest Information Program, they are reminded to do so before hunting any migratory birds.

"Solid harvest estimates are a cornerstone for any wildlife management program," said Tim Bremicker, director of the Department of Natural Resources' Wildlife Division. "Our intent is to increase populations and hunter satisfaction. Good data helps us do that."

License agents will ask buyers of small game and sports licenses whether they intend to hunt migratory birds this year. (Minnesota migratory game birds are ducks, geese, mergansers, coots, woodcock, snipe, rails and gallinules.) If hunters intend to hunt migratory birds this year, they should answer "yes." Hunters would then be asked about last year's hunting of the birds.

A person may not legally hunt migratory birds unless they have answered "yes" to this question. Hunters who already purchased licenses but did not answer "yes," and who wish to hunt migratory birds, must go to an ELS license agent and obtain the HIP certification at no charge.

Samples of hunters will then be selected to receive hunt record forms for waterfowl, woodcock, or snipe/rails/gallinules/coots.

Anyone has a small chance of receiving one of the forms; those more active and successful last year will be sampled at higher rates. That sampling improves survey efficiency and accuracy for birds commonly hunted in Minnesota (such as ducks, geese or woodcock), and greatly improves estimates for uncommonly hunted birds like snipe.

"The good news is that hunters are getting much better at compliance to HIP requirements. We are very pleased to see that," said Bill Bernhjelm, DNR Enforcement Division director. "Through the DNR conservation officers' information and educational efforts, we have eased into enforcement of this requirement. Those who do not have proof of HIP registration in possession while hunting migratory birds are subject to enforcement action when checked by a conservation officer."

The vast majority of hunters are doing their part to ensure the future of migratory bird hunting. Last year 183,710 hunters registered for HIP. This year 120,184 had already done so by Aug. 14. For comparison, nearly 130,000 state duck stamps are sold each year and about 20,000 people hunt Minnesota woodcock.

Duck season opens Saturday

Minnesota's 2001 duck season opens at noon Saturday, Sept. 29. Daily limit will be six birds, with a possession limit of 12. The season will last 60 days, ending on Nov. 27.

According to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials, the biggest change this year is the canvasback "season-within-a-season." Hunting for canvasbacks will be allowed for only 20 days, from Oct. 13 through Nov. 1. The limit for canvasbacks is one, with two in possession. No canvasbacks may be taken Sept. 29-Oct. 12 and Nov. 2-27.

Ray Norrgard, DNR Wetland Wildlife Program leader, said that opening weekend hunters should take special care to not shoot canvasbacks. "The drakes are relatively easy to identify on the wing because they show more white than any other duck," Norrgard said. "But canvasback hens can be pretty tough to differentiate from other hens."

Canvasbacks may be found anywhere in the state. However, Norrgard said hunters in the southeast along the Mississippi River and in the state's western third will be most likely to encounter the birds.

Migration On-Line

As in the past few years, the DNR will provide a weekly migration report about waterfowl movement on its Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us. The report includes information from throughout the state. "However," cautioned Jeff Lawrence, DNR waterfowl biologist, "hunters need to remember that these are reports about where birds were the previous week, not where birds will be today or next week."

Norrgard said that by comparing current migration reports to weather forecasts, hunters can have a good sense of whether ducks are in certain areas of Minnesota.

"Cold fronts, high winds and rain tend to move ducks into, out of, or around the state," Norrgard said. "Fair weather with winds from the southwest generally mean the ducks stay where they are."

Keep Exotics From Spreading

Waterfowl hunters are reminded that they can help prevent the spread of harmful exotic species by taking a few minutes to remove aquatic plants, small aquatic animals and mud from their equipment when they are out this fall. These precautions can prevent the spread of purple loosestrife, Eurasian watermilfoil and zebra mussels that cause serious damage to habitat for fish, waterfowl and other wildlife.

According to Jay Rendall, DNR Exotic Species Program coordinator, waterfowl hunters should be aware that aquatic plants or zebra mussels cannot be legally carried in or on boats, or decoys in boats, when on public roads. However, the laws for aquatic plants include exceptions specifically for waterfowl hunting. Waterfowl hunters may continue to use emergent aquatic plants for building blinds, such as cattails and bulrushes, cut above the waterline.

"Waterfowlers should assume that any aquatic plant could be potentially harmful and should not be transported from one marsh, lake or river to another," Rendall said. "Also, zebra mussels and their tiny larvae can attach to aquatic plants, which could allow zebra mussels to be inadvertently spread to other waters."

Life Vests Are Mandatory

Another important reminder is that all boats used for duck hunting are required to carry and have readily accessible at least one U.S. Coast Guard approved wearable personal flotation device or life vest. Boat cushions do not qualify.

Due to the cold water, windy conditions, and often overloaded craft, duck hunters are particularly vulnerable to hypothermia and drowning. Hunters are advised to wear a life vest while traveling to and from a blind.

New, Heavy Shot Okay

Tungsten-iron-nickel alloy shot, commonly known as Hevishot, is legal this year along with previous nontoxic options.

Waterfowl Numbers

Minnesota wildlife officials say that duck numbers are similar to those this time last year. Total May duck populations were unchanged from 2000. The mallard breeding population in Minnesota this spring was estimated at approximately 321,000, similar to the 2000 count. Mallards have been above 300,000 since 1992, and remain 55 percent above average since the current waterfowl survey began in 1968.

Blue-winged teal numbers declined 24 percent compared with 2000, and were 39 percent below the long-term average.

Blue-winged teal numbers were high in Minnesota in the late 1980s and early 1990s, but have been below average in recent years. Bluewings do not "home" (return to the same nesting site) as readily as mallards or many other duck species do, and they tend to change breeding sites according to better habitat conditions. Continentally, recent blue-winged teal counts have been at or near record population levels.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Is there a certain amount of time during which I must tell Social Security to change my name on my Social Security Card? I was recently married.

A. Congratulations on your marriage. There are not specific time frames during which to change your name but certainly you should do so as soon as possible to avoid forgetting about it.

Changing a name is very easy, free and can be done by mail or by visiting any SSA office. One needs to complete form SS-5 (available on the agency web site, www.ssa.gov) and send it to your local office with the original or state-certified copy of your marriage certificate showing your old and new names. We cannot use a photocopy, and original documents will be returned to you.

If changing your name for reasons other than marriage, you need to show related documents such as adoption or divorce papers. Please note also that if your name changed years ago and you are just now updating your records, you will also need to present current identification in addition to the document showing the change in name.

Q. Why is it important to inform Social Security of a name change?

A. Changing your name and making your employer aware of the change will help your earnings get credited to your record correctly and also helps your taxes get processed more rapidly. If you intend to submit your federal income taxes electronically, your actual name must match SSA records. Note also that reporting a change of name is one of your reporting responsibilities if you are receiving monthly benefits of any kind from Social Security.

Q. Does it matter what SSA office I contact to change my name?

A. Any Social Security office can do this for you.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota treated our gardens to the first frost this fall on Sunday morning. We tried to cover part of the dahlias but with the rain Saturday evening, the blankets became very heavy and did more damage than good. Sunday morning we shook the ice out of them and because the garden is on the north side of the house, the plants thawed before the sun hit them. So far they didn't show any more damage than we did to them with the heavy wet blankets. Dahlias need to have a frost before we dig them in the fall and store them until spring when, if we live and have our health, we hope to replant them. We enjoy making several nice floral arrangements on Saturday evening for churches and the nursing home, especially when we see how the shut-ins enjoy having them.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday and Wally Rud was their guest. Wally has a nice garden and brought a lot of produce to sell. I wish I had been there as there are many garden products we don't have here that he had at their meeting. Delphine Bratt brought the lunch and Helen Jacobson laid out the blocks for their next project which is making a quilt with the "Trip Around the World" pattern. Next Thursday they will be cutting more pieces for it and also will play Bingo.

Judy Kleinvachter's guests this week have been Vance and Kelly Lofrooth, Marie Stellon, Kay Turnwall, June Kasprowicz, Claudia Berggren and Kali, and Joan Gehris with Laine and Austin from Inkster, N.D. Judy and I think all this trouble that has happened may make the day come when we have to tighten up our life-styles, but hope the big coffee pot will still be in use at our homes.

Tuesday, September 18, Polly Stevenson of Bellflower, Calif., and Florence Strom of Titusville, Fla., returned to their homes after visiting Isaac and Betsy Thompson. Florence's daughter, Wanda and Ron Masek went back to Birchwood, Wisc. In the day they were visiting in Sebeca. It was an uncertain week for all as were were stranded at the Minneapolis airport that tragic Tuesday morning and Polly's luggage was lost until it caught up to her on her flight home to Los Angeles.

This has been a wonderful week for the Thompson families. When Isaac and Betsy Thompson and LaRoy and Pearl Lundell went to Norway earlier this summer, some of our relatives expressed their intentions to visit us this year. But now they surprised us when they came, in spite of the New York disaster.

On Wednesday, September 19, Gunstveit from Venesla, Norway and Oddvar Gunstveit from Bygland, Norway flew from Oslo to Minneapolis where they were met and entertained by the Lundell families. They toured the Lundell Manufacturing Co. in Plymouth and LeRoy and Pearl had 16 guests, all relatives for dinner.

On Friday, Leroy and Pearl accompanied by Bjarne and Oddvar drove from Minneapolis to Isaac Thompson's home to meet 25 more relatives, and enjoy a real "Kampa Kalaas" or as some call them, potato dumplings. The guests were LeRoy and Pearl Lundell, Bjarne and Oddvar Gunstveit, Mary and Donna Renstrom, Peter and Pearl Thompson, Elsie Lofrooth, Walter Thompson, Roy and Myrtle Vagle, Isaac and Betsy Thompson, Morris and Hazel Anderson, Danny and Gloria Renstrom, Geneva Nordin, Richard and Carol Thompson, Karl Thompson of Bemidji, Robert and Cathy Thompson and Andrew Thompson, and Jim and Cindy Wetterlund of Grand Forks.

Bjarne and Oddvar Gunstveit had brought a big map of Norway and many pictures with them and it was a lot of fun visiting and looking at them. Then it was time for taking pictures and that took four cameras rolling until they were out of films. They lined our family up according to age, Mary at 95, and down to Geneva, 75, with Peter, Elsie, Walter, me, Isaac, Hazel and Gloria inbetween. Then the rest of the bunch were brought into the pictures and after that we was done, we had another time of dessert and coffee. What impressed me was what an excellent condition they homes were in. They were built in the early 1700s. It was almost impossible to imagine how straight and firm the house appeared to be. I remember when Bjarne and Oddvar's grandfather, Thomas Gunstveit came to visit us when I was a young one.

Saturday morning breakfast guests at Isaac Thompson's home were Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls, Karl Thompson of Bemidji, LeRoy and Pearl Lundell of Minnetonka, and Bjarne and Oddvar Gunstveit from Norway. Marilyn Johnson came later to meet her Norwegian relatives. Mid-afternoon, the Lundells and Gunstveits left for Minnetonka. Bjarne and Oddvar plan to go to California on Monday. They had intended to spend some time visiting Ned and Sandy Beatty in California, but they were in England now, working on a film.

Bridal Shower

A bridal shower was held on Sunday afternoon at St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Brooks honoring Catherine Rostan, daughter of Byron and Sharon Rosten of Plummer. She is the bride-to-be of J.J. Johnson of Oklee. Bridesmaids hosted the shower and were her sister Tracy, Becky Perrault, Shelly Flatgard, Joey Johnson and Sabrina Myhre. Aunts Brenda Gillund and Mary Townsend helped with the games and gifts were opened. Special guests were her mother Sharon, grandmothers Gladys Rostan and Ethel Johnson, aunts Marie Chopyk and Carol Cardinal, as well as many friends and relatives in the area.

Don and Merle Gagnor of Mentor visited on Sunday with Jean Carpenter.

Kem and Alice Tillman and granddaughter were Sunday evening guests of Lorena Westerlund.

Carole Wright and Avis Frolland were among the many who attended the bridal shower for Catherine Rosten on Sunday.

Rudy and Inez Kallialnon of Ridge, N.H. arrived on Friday at her brother Albert and Evelyn Torvo's home. They had traveled by car and visited relatives in Michigan. The four of them went to New York Mills for church on Sunday, visiting with many friends there. Coming back to Plummer, they visited with Art and Avis Frolland and then left on Monday morning for Willmar where her sister Edna Carey lives.

Burnel and Effie Byer drove to Harris on Saturday to attend the wedding reception for grandson Tim Vigstol, who had married Janel Wester on August 6 at Taylor Falls. The reception was held at their new home near Fish Lake. Tim is the son of Dan and Janel Vigstol of Cedar. Other relatives in attendance were grandmother Crystal Martel, Tim's sisters Jennie and Eric Griebe, Monica and Blake and Lindsay Vigstol, aunts of Red Lake Falls, Theresa Ayelsgaard of Crookston, Joyce Christens and Donna Bosserud and son Jared of the Twin Cities; Tony Martell and family of Becker, Danielle and Becky of Woodbury; uncles Ray and Shirley Vigstol of Thief River Falls, Neil Vigstol and friend Margit Paulson of Omaha and Council Bluffs, Dick and Valorie Vigstol of Oak Grove, David and Sue Vigstol of Burnsville, cousins Jodi and Kevin Heuschild of Mankato, Mike and Mary Vigstol a family of Mora, Patty and Tim O'Brien and family of Anoka, as well as many friends in the vicinity, and Janel's family. On the way down, we were noon luncheon guests of John and Delilah Nieme of Barnum, friends from Texas winters. We were overnight guests of Dick and Val Vigstol and drove home on Sunday afternoon. We were a bit too early for the fall colors but had a very nice trip through wooded area of our state.

Edna Hyde and son Dennis spent the weekend at home here in Plummer, returning to Fargo on Tuesday for a week or so while she continues to recuperate from her heart surgery.

Howard and Margaret Groenwald took Lorena Westerlund along to Thief River Falls on Sunday where they visited with Frances Schielert at C&NC and later at the Harold and Marian Vallhauer home of Thief River Falls on Friday evening, after the wedding rehearsal at Immanuel. Marci and Steve's wedding party, family, aunts and uncles, were invited to a supper held at Marland and Roberta Kloety's home in Thief River Falls.

Cathy and Brady Samuelson of Sarles, N.D. left on Sunday for their home, having come on Thursday to attend the wedding of her niece Marci DuChamp to Steve Kloete on Saturday. They stayed with her mother Bunny DuChamp.

Inga Linder returned on Sunday from a visit in South Dakota. She had accompanied her niece Lila Rice on Tuesday to Huron, S.D. Lyla's home on Tuesday. Her sister Gladys Magnell joined her there coming from Spearfish and they visited a sister-in-law Leah Johnson. On Sunday Inga met Jane and Sonia Kolstoe in Sisseton, S.D. and they brought her home.

Candy and Dan Stanley, Danica and Jesse of Bradenton, Fla. left on Monday after spending about a week with her mother Bunny DuChamp and attending Marci and Steve Kloety's wedding on Saturday.

Let's not abandon our hope for the future or our beliefs

If you even appear to be from the Middle East, you're under suspicion.

America was shaken to its foundation recently by terrible acts. We are understandably angry.

Unfortunately, while we wait patiently for a measured, and hopefully appropriate response, a few Americans have started—hurling insults, blood, and bullets at Americans who happen to appear to be of Middle Eastern descent or who are Islamic.

We're better than that. We don't need to stoop to the level of the terrorists who killed and injured so many.

Citizens of America include people of many ethnic backgrounds and religious beliefs. Remember that many of our ancestors emigrated to the United States to avoid religious and ethnic persecution. We should embrace and celebrate our differences, just as we embrace and celebrate our freedom.

Don't persecute those who follow Islam. If religious, I would assert that the individuals who committed these horrible acts were not good Muslims. The Islamic faith does not condone murder.

We the People. . .

The terrorists thought they were destroying buildings and monuments to a way of life they despised. To Americans they were killing families — mothers, fathers, children, brothers, sisters, aunts, uncles and grandparents.

They don't understand. America is not about buildings and monuments.

Remember this? "We hold these truths to be self-evident. . ." Sound familiar? It should. It's from the Declaration of Independence. What follows is essential to the current state of affairs: ". . .that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

While America encompasses an ideal — freedom, and justice — it survives and flourishes because it is based on individual rights, not bricks and mortar.

Our nation is also founded on hope — a hope for a better future. Let's hope that in our anger, we do not abandon that hope, or the ideals and essence of what it means to be an American.

Polling Web visitors provides interesting differences of opinion

When the polling question on our Web site changes I usually include the results before announcing the new question. Last week, demands on space prevented that from happening. The pace of our work has changed slightly since last week and so too have demands on space in the newspaper.

A few weeks ago we polled readers asking whether they thought the Highway 59 project was taking too long to complete. One could argue that the outcome of that poll was never really in doubt. Some people did vote no. There were 94 votes cast. A total of 88.30 percent thought the project was taking too long to complete. A total of 11.7 percent did not think it was taking too long.

Twenty-one business and property owners recently signed a petition, prepared by Pennington County Commissioner Bob Carlson, demanding that Third Street from Main Avenue to the Railroad tracks be paved immediately. That petition was submitted to the Northwest District Engineer, who responded that the project is proceeding on a timely basis, that they are looking for ways to streamline their process statewide. He also wished Carlson to convey his apologies to the constituents for the inconveniences. (There is a story about the petition and response in this edition.)

The number of people logging on to our Web site to cast a vote since the last question was introduced is increasing daily. The new poll asks visitors what the reaction of the United States should be to the attack by terrorists on the World Trade Center. If you would like to cast your vote, please visit our Web site at www.trftimes.com.

As of Wednesday, you'll also find another question. I was checking Web sites of other newspapers Monday and came upon an interesting question in the Sioux Falls Argus Leader Web site, and decided to add that question to our Web site as well. The question, which might be of interest to local merchants, is: Has the terrorist attack caused you to limit your household spending?

POLICIES

Letters To The Editor: The staff of The Times encourages written responses to editorial comment or letters with original thoughts or ideas of general interest. Letters should be intended for publication in The Times exclusively; letters sent to multiple publications will generally not be accepted. Right is reserved to edit letters for length and clarity and to reject letters deemed to be promotional in nature or in poor taste.

Letters Must Be Signed: All letters must be signed and contain an address or phone number of the writer so authenticity can be verified.

Signatures must appear on letters published. The staff believes that there is greater credibility in letters signed in print and will not withhold names of writers from publication.

Responses Invited: Letters critical of individuals or other entities may be shown to those individuals or representatives of those entities in advance of publication with an invitation by newspaper staff for response in the same issue as the original letter.

Corrections: If an error is made in news or advertising publication, the staff encourages readers to call it to our immediate attention by calling 681-4450. We will attempt to correct the error or clarify the misunderstanding in the next issue.

Dayton: threat must unite us, not divide us

by Sen. Mark Dayton

During the last two weeks, I have seen unimaginable sights. I watched an American F-16 fighter plane streaking low over our nation's Capital. On a Senate trip to the World Trade Center site, in New York City, our ferry was led down the Hudson River by U.S. Coast Guard gunboats. At the New York docking pier, army troops were manning machine guns behind sandbag bunkers.

Ground zero at the World Trade Center is a holocaust. Two, 110-story towers were reduced to two enormous piles of grotesquely twisted metal and huge mountains of rubble. Buried inside are over 6,600 remains. Only 241 bodies have yet been found; the rest are still "missing," although their fates are known. Most of them were incinerated in fires so intense that steel melted and other materials vaporized.

The Pentagon withstood its terrible blow far better than the World Trade Towers. Constructed during World War II, the Pentagon was better prepared by its builders for an Armageddon. Its powerful structure absorbed the hijacked airplane's fierce impact and contained its lethal explosion, so that the damage, although severe, was limited. Touring the Pentagon, I imagined that much of its 60-year-old steel structure was forged from Minnesota iron ore. Those miners of two generations ago would be proud of their results.

The mood in Washington is somber and grim. None of us knows what lies ahead. Yet, our determination and resolve are extremely high. And our sense of united purpose is absolute.

From the night of the attack, when almost 200 members of Congress joined together on the Capitol steps and spontaneously sang "God Bless America," we have truly been working together. There has been very little maneuvering for partisan advantage, because most of all, we want to make the right decisions together.

And no one can doubt that they are momentous decisions: a resolution authorizing the use of military force against our terroristic enemies and accomplices; $40 billion for emergency aid and military buildup; new anti-terrorism authority. None of us could have imagined these actions just two weeks ago. Even now, it seems at times unreal, like a very bad dream.

But it is real. The attacks and their terrible devastations are real. The continuing threats to our nation are real. Our responsibilities to shoulder these burdens and to endure these dangers are real. Obviously, we did not choose them; they have been horribly forced upon us. Yet, we must rise up to meet them.

These terroristic threats must unite us, not divide us. Last Sunday, I visited an Islamic school in Fridley. I looked into the faces of very frightened children who have been the victims of harassments and threats. We must not allow this kind of emotional terrorism to happen in Minnesota. Our state is now an international community. Every day in Minnesota, we encounter people from all over the world, who are now our fellow citizens. We are all in this together. We are all Americans. Our unity is essential to our success.

Together, we will succeed.

Federal refund: Whose money was it?

by Jock Faris
president of NFIB

To hear some people tell the story, you'd think that the $300 refund you got from the government recently was taken straight from your mother's Social Security check. The noise being made over the budget, tax cuts, the surplus and the economy is so loud in Washington right now, it's hard to separate the facts from the fiction (or from the heavily implied).

So, on behalf of the small-business owners in this country who needed that refund and are using it to keep their businesses running, I'd like to straighten out one or two points.

First, if we as a country do not have a gigantic surplus this year, that's okay. Please remember that having a surplus at all is a strange occurrence that does not mean the government somehow magically won the lottery — it means the government charged too much for the services it provided to us.

Not having a surplus, or having a very small one, simply means that the federal government won't be able to get fatter this year. And I don't know about you, but that's just fine with me. In the small-business community, we think that less is more when it comes to government.

Opponents to President Bush's tax cut are doing their best to make people feel that the cuts and the refund checks were mistakes, and that we need a great big surplus more than we need some money back on our taxes — now and in the future. But the reality is that a bigger surplus means that the government decides how our money gets spent — and isn't that something you and I should decide for ourselves?

Yes, our economy is slowing down. No one is happy about it, but we will survive it. Yes, we may all have to tighten our belts for a little while. My small-business owner friends are looking carefully at their inventories, expansion plans and sales projections. They are working extra hard to keep their employees safe and happy because tough times require loyal staff.

And if Main Street needs to proceed with caution to make it through an economic downshift, then our federal government should, too. American families have to do this every year, every month, every week and every day. American families are never guaranteed that they will receive a raise in the coming year — but the government operates as if its budget is entitled to big raises all the time.

One final thing that must be clarified: it is critical that Congress make President Bush's tax cuts permanent. Because the government is not what improves the economy; private enterprise is. Private citizens are. Our economy improves when you spend your money wisely. So do what small-business owners are doing: take your tax refund and invest it however you see fit. And tell your members of Congress that you think the tax cuts ought to stick. Because it's your money, after all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

TRF Chamber supports nation, community

The Thief River Falls community joins all Americans in mourning the victims of the horrific acts of war committed against all of us. We call upon all business, associations and their employees to contribute to agencies undertaking relief and humanitarian efforts. We applaud those employees who are members of the National Guard and Reserve that have been activated to assist in rescue efforts and give them our support.

The American economy was as much a target of the terrorists, as the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. We stand behind President Bush and our government to pursue and bring the perpetrators of these attacks to justice. We will serve in any capacity to ensure economic disruptions are minimal.

The backbone of this great nation, from Wall Street to Main Street in towns across this country, remains unbowed. The Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce stands ready to do what we do best, respond to this challenge with our entrepreneurial spirit. We, along with our employees and customers, will always remember the tragedy of lives lost, the pain of families disrupted, and friends that will be missed forever.

CLARIFICATION

A letter from Gladys Hallstrom that was edited to eliminate confusion and animosity, succeeded in generating more confusion. The edited portion of the letter should have read: Following his report, Dr. Langlund asked for and answered questions. After reports from members of the board, however, questions from the audience were not invited or answered when offered. The Times apologies for the confusion.

Stumpf:
We will prevail

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

September 11, 2001 will long be remembered as one of the darkest days in American history. More than 5,000 innocent Americans were killed by terrorists intent on accomplishing little more than scaring the people of our country, and letting the world know how much they hate us.

As grim and depressing as the news was on that day, the reaction of our country to this attack has been an inspiration.

So many brave New York City firefighters gave their lives while trying to save others. The number of citizens and volunteers willing to serve in their place is a tribute to their memory. The Congress and the President are united in a way we have not seen in a long time. Partisan bickering has been set aside as our country recovers from the attack, prepares its defenses and considers military options to eliminate terrorists, wherever they may hide.

The people of our country and state have rallied around our nation's flag. The CD that includes country singer Lee Greenwood's hit song, "God Bless the USA," has become a best seller once again. Patriotic demonstrations are everywhere you look, from people's front porches — again flying the flag — to Major League baseball and football.

I attended a rally of 35,000 Minnesotans on the State Capitol lawn this past Sunday. The crowd heard elected officials defend the virtues of liberty and freedom, honored the fallen brave in New York, Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania, and witnessed fly-overs by Army National Guard helicopters and Air National Guard fighter jets. Religious leaders of Christian, Jewish and Islamic faiths spoke of the horror of these attacks, reminded us that in each of their faiths, God does not condone murder in his name, and pledged to cooperate to bring peace and understanding to the world.

But it is increasingly clear that peace must be won. In the days, weeks and months to come, America's attention will shift from recovery and protection of sites within our borders. We will focus on hunting down and "bringing to justice" the twisted individuals who commit crimes of terror. The war we are about to embark upon will be like no other fought in history.

There will be no battle lines. We won't be able to determine if we're winning by looking at a map and seeing how much territory is controlled by our armies. The enemy will likely deny involvement in the war, while plotting and committing cowardly attacks against civilian targets. It will likely take many years to beat back terrorism, and there will be few overwhelming victories along the way to make us feel like we are making progress.

But I think our country is determined and will be persistent. We know that there is too much at stake. After all, what good is the freedom and liberty we cherish if we must always be afraid? As I see it, we can either withdraw from the world and cower within our own borders, or aggressively seek out and eliminate the enemies of peace. Too much has been given by too many in the last 225 years of our country's existence to surrender our liberty to hostile extremists.

And just as our state has contributed to the defense of our nation in every war since our state has been founded, Minnesotans will join the best and bravest from every state in this fight as well. Minnesota's Civil War generation helped preserve the Union and returned to build our state's Capitol. The World War II generation saved democracy and returned to build our country to economic prominence. I think this generation will represent us well, and return to help make the principles of individual liberty and freedom mean more than ever before.

Terrorists around the world, know this: perhaps you can bring concrete, steel and glass crashing down; perhaps you may break the bodies and take the lives of innocent people. But you will never defeat the fundamental belief in freedom and liberty that beats in the hearts of all our countrymen. We will fight for our way of life. And we will prevail.

Lulu Belle And Scotty To Come October 12 For Howdy Daye

"Lulu Belle and Scotty, famed performers on the WLS Barn Dance show in Chicago, will come to Thief River Falls as the headline act in the variety show to be held in the municipal auditorium Friday evening, October 12, as a concluding feature of the JayCee Howdy Days festival. A group of additional acts are being arranged, as well as an audience participation show similar to Dr. IQ, it was announced.

"Preceding their joining the WLS Barn Dance troupe, Lulu Belle and Scotty were associated for 12 years with the Alka-Seltzer Barn Dance. Scotty has composed many popular folk songs, and he and Lulu Belle have appeared in numerous Hollywood films."

State Guard Men Plan Contest To Recruit Members

"Captain Steve Austin, commanding officer of the Thief River Falls company of the State Guard, headed a delegation from the local unit that attended a battalion conference, proceeded by a dinner last Wednesday evening in Crookston.

"Others present from this city were Lieut. Richard Nelson, Sgt. Harry Hendrickson, Sgt. Carl Carlson, and Cpl. Donald Kvema. Announced at the conference were details of a state guard recruiting contest, in which present and prospective enlisted men will compete for valuable prizes including $100 and $75 watches and rods and reels.

"Instructions were given the officers at the meeting concerning the state guard problems. Ammunition, targets and guidons were issued to each company, and plans set up for a series of rifle matches to be held this winter. Captain Austin stated that members of the local unit shortly will start rifle practice in preparation for the coming matches."

'52 Car Plates To Be Sold By Berge Starting October 1

"Motor vehicle license plates for 1952 will go on sale next Monday, October 1, at the office of A. F. Berge, deputy registrar in Thief River Falls. Motorists may purchase the plates any time before November 15 without payment of a penalty. The 1952 passenger car plates will add a touch of brightness to cars, being painted with blue numerals on an orange background."

Work Started On Northrop School

"With reinforcing steel now on hand for the foundation of the new Northrop school addition, and with allocations of structural steel having been made by the Federal Production agency, pouring of the foundation is now under way after a lengthy delay while waiting for priorities. Erickson, Solheim and Ness are executing the contract."

Redeemer Ladies Aid met at the church on Tuesday afternoon. Pastor Brockopp led the lesson with Doris Malwitz in charge of business, in the absence of Fern Hesse. Harriet Norman was the hostess and served lunch.

Immanuel quilters met on Monday to begin the fall session, tying 15 quilts for Lutheran World Relief for a starter. We will be meeting quilts regularly through September and October and welcome anyone to join us who is able to tie a knot. We always have a good social time with coffee in the mid-morning and then go home at noon.

Visiting with Bernice Polarson the past week were cousins, Luverne Grimm and Doris Nelson.

Jean Carpenter spent the weekend in Hawley with son, Kim, Minette and Nick. On Sunday, they attended a Viking's game.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Connie and Don Hagen and family in the death of Connie's father, Willard Englert, 78, of Rosemount. The Hagen family attended his funeral on Monday at St. John's church and he was buried at Fort Snelling. He is survived by his wife, Vivian, and several children and grandchildren.

The Mary Circle met at Immanuel on Wednesday afternoon with Lucille Kvasager as hostess. Hazel Oitte led the Bible study, starting a new series on prayer. Six members and a guest, Ruth Wilkens, were present.

The Naomi Circle was hosted by Jean Carpenter in her home on Wednesday afternoon. The Bible study was led by Effie Byer on prayer. Clara Hesse presided over the business which included plans for the church supper on October 6. Jean served a nice lunch to the nine ladies in attendance.

From all reports, Edna Hyde is doing well and is recuperating at the home of Luan Schuman of Fargo, N.D. She is walking every day and is looking forward to coming home soon.

Seniors' Reception For Teachers

"The seniors' reception for the teachers, an annual affair, took place in the high school gymnasium last Friday evening. The gym was beautifully decorated with blue and gray, the senior class colors, and music was furnished throughout the evening by the Midnight Melodians. An address of welcome was given by the president of the senior class, Edward Kiland, to which Morris Bye gave a response. This was followed by a piano duet by Irene Hanson and Dorothy Shirley and an address by Mr. Hand. A reading by Rita Fiterman was the last number of the program. The remainder of the time was spent playing games, a grand march and refreshments concluding the evening's entertainment."

St. Bernard's Guild

"The St. Bernard's Guild will have their next regular meeting Thursday afternoon, September 30, with the following hostesses: Mesdames Hubert Holzknecht, Martin Strum, Arthur Belland and George Charboneau. Lunch will be served from 4:30 until 6:00, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Menu:
Scalloped Potatoes and Meatballs
Vegetable Salad
Light and Dark Sandwiches
Pickles
Devils Food Cake
Coffee
Price 15 cents."

From St. Hilaire:
Radio Party

"Miss Alice Fricker entertained the members of the faculty at a radio party at her parental home Thursday evening. At the close of the evening, luncheon was served to the guests. Those present were: Nora Lindquist, Vera Johnson, Lillian Eklof, Benedikka Hagen, Reuben Peterson and Edwin Retersgard."

St. John's Lutheran Church

"Sunday evening at 7:45, Pastor Martin Buenger of Warren will occupy the pulpit of St. John's Lutheran church, preaching an English sermon on the theme: 'David's Joy in the House of the Lord.' The public is most cordially invited."

Lutheran Free Church

"E. L. Tungseth, Pastor.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given, that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Secretary of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District at 453 North McKinley Street in Warren, Minnesota until 1:00 p.m., October 18, 2001, for the Construction of Farmstead Ring Dikes, in Marshall and Polk counties, Minnesota.

Said work involves quantities estimated as follows:

Earth Fill	41,830 CY
F&I CSP	480 LF
Seeding	7.8 Acres
Road Gravel	210 CY
F&I Waterman Gates	4 Units

The total Engineer's estimate is $92,230. No bids will be entertained in which the aggregate exceeds the estimated cost by more than 30 percent.

Bids may be submitted for this work in two alternative methods. The items and quantities listed are for the total of the work involved in the construction of the Three Ring Dikes. Bidders may either bid the complete job or any combination of the Three Ring Dikes.

Bids must be submitted in a sealed envelope and be on forms furnished by the Middle River Snake River Watershed District. Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond payable to the Middle River Snake River Watershed District for not less than ten percent of the amount bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if successful, will enter into a contract for the work as described in the proposal. The certified check or bid bond must be submitted in a sealed envelope separate from the bid. The certified checks or bid bonds of the three lowest responsible bidders will be retained until a contract has been entered into but no longer than 90 calendar days from the date of the opening of the bids.

It is the intent of the District to award the contract for the work described to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders who will be required to furnish a performance bond and a payment bond to the District in the amount of 100% of the contract price and certificates of insurance for worker's compensation and liability insurance.

Copies of plans and specifications may be obtained from the office of the Secretary of the Middle River Snake River Watershed District, at 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota 56762 upon payment of $30.00.

The right to adjourn the letting of the contract to a time and place other than noted herein, or to reject any and all bids, is reserved.

Dated this 11th day of September, 2001.

New Arrival!

Russell and Ruth Vigstol of Harlingen, Texas, are proud to announce the arrival of their first grandchild on September 12, 2001, which is also Russell's birthday. Little Charles Edward is the son of daughter Tina and Chuck Maffingly of nearby Rancho Viejo. He weighed 8 lbs., 3 oz., and measured 21-1/2" long. Great-grandparents are Effie and Burnel Byer and Bea Bangert of Aston, Iowa. Many of my readers will remember Russell, who grew up here at Plummer and went by the nickname of Tubby, long forgotten now.

Recent visitors last week of Frances Schiefert at CHC have been Joanne Deroster, Monica and Chuck Stephan of Red Lake Falls, Markie Schindler and Lorraine Olson of Crookston.

On Wednesday, Florence Welker, Harriet Violette, Mary Etta, Johanek, Phyllis Dusek and Phyllis Schmitz, all of Red Lake Falls, came for the afternoon. Harriet brought lunch and all enjoyed a game of canasta.

Wedding

Jennie Wilde, daughter of Lee and Trudy Wilde of rural Oklee, was married on September 8 to Paul L'Heureux, son of Jock and April L'Heureux at the White House of Kragnes. Attending from our area were her parents, grandmother Gladys Roston, Byron, Sharon and Catherine Roston of Plummer, Aaron and Tracy Roston of Grand Forks, N.D.; Helen and Loren LaFayette, Burton, and Joyce Carlson, Shar and Don Fox, Ray and Irene Roston, Sandra and Darrell Tougas. The bride's cousins Catherine and Tracy Roston were in the wedding party and distributed the programs. Alice Hofstad of rural Oklee was the photographer.

Birthday for Idalla

Ruth Wilkens, Margie Praslobek, Cathy Carlson and Sherrie Wilkens treated Della Rewertz to breakfast on September 12th in honor of her birthday. Happy birthday from the rest of us!

Hannah Vidlund, 4-year-old daughter of Bonnie and Bob Vidlund of Maplewood, is spending some time with her grandparents, Joe and Helen Fisher.

2001 STREET AND UTILITIES IMPROVEMENTS
NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED ASSESSMENT

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls, Minn., will meet on Monday, October 15, 2001, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at 405 Third Street East, to consider, and possibly adopt, the proposed assessments for 2001 Street and Utilities Improvements Project, No. 2672001.00. The properties proposed to be assessed are as follows:

Section 35, Township 154 North, Range 43 West
Governmental Lots 8 - 12 (Parcel No. 25.01.088.54)

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Administrator's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $414,000. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. No appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Administrator prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners, as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjourned hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.
2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.
3. The objector may be represented by counsel.
4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied; however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.
5. The entire proceeding will be tape-recorded.
6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.
7. The Council may adopt the proposed assessment at the hearing.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Administrator of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within 10 days after service upon the Mayor or Administrator.

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Administrator's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $52,000. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. No appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Administrator prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners, as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjourned hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.
2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.
3. The objector may be represented by counsel.
4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied, however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.
5. The entire proceedings will be tape-recorded.
6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.
7. The Council may adopt the proposed assessment at the hearing.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Administrator of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within 10 days after service upon the Mayor or Administrator.

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Board Room in Thief River Falls, MN, Thursday, July 26, 2001 at 1:00 p.m. Members present: Charles Naplin, Donald Jensen, Arden "Bud" Comstock, Bob Carlson, and Oliver "Skip" Swanson. There were no members absent at this time.

County Engineer Delton Schulz and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell met with the County Board to review the bids for S.A.P. #57-624-05 (C.S.A.H. #24) and S.A.P. #57-598-36 and #57-599-19 (Bridge replacements). The County Engineer recommended that the low bidder be awarded the bid for each of the projects.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to award the bid for S.A.P. #57-624-05 to Davidson Construction, Newfolden, MN for $1,923,505.71 as the best and lowest bid received. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to award the bid for bridge projects S.A.P. #57-598-36 and S.A.P. #57-599-19 to Lian Construction, Warroad, MN for $148,778.00 as the best and lowest bid received. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Engineer noted that Garden Valley Telephone is requesting payment for moving telephone lines along C.S.A.H. #24. The Highway Committee will meet with Garden Valley regarding this.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Naplin, seconded by Commissioner Jensen and upon vote was unanimously carried:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Northern Counties Land Use Coordinating Board has recommended the Joint Powers Agreement be amended to accurately reflect the mission of the Board.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that in accordance with the Northern Counties Land Use Coordinating Board Agreement, Pennington County hereby agrees to amend the Joint Powers Agreement.

FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution authorized Commissioner Comstock to sign the Joint Powers Agreement on behalf of the Pennington County Board.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to adjourn to August 14, 2001. Motion unanimously carried.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD
OF COMMISSIONERS
AUGUST 14, 2001
10:00 AM

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Board Room in Thief River Falls, MN, Tuesday, August 14, 2001 at 10:00 a.m. Members present: Donald Jensen, Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, and Arden "Bud" Comstock. Members absent: Oliver "Skip" Swanson.

County Engineer Delton Schulz and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell appeared before the County Board with the sealed bids for C.P. #57-01-05 Bituminous patching as advertised. The following bids were opened and read aloud:

Northern Paving, Inc Crookston, MN	$113,878.00
Central Specialties Alexandria, MN	$102,132.40
Thorson, Inc., Bemidji, MN	$164,351.26

The County Highway Department will review the foregoing bids to see if all numbers are correct and return at 1:30 p.m. today with the results.

Dave Berman, Julie Olson, and Linda Kingery met with the County Board regarding canoeing on the Red Lake River. Linda Kingery, Executive Director of the Northwest Partnership discussed the purpose of this organization and the work that has been done to promote canoeing on the Red Lake River including the plan for Maplewood City Park in Crookston. Julie Olson stated that the Thief River Falls Convention and Business Bureau had funds to market canoeing on the Red Lake River in Pennington County. The request to the County Board was for the County to make improvements to the canoe landing at Oakland Park and to allow for overnight parking at the park.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to have the Highway Committee to look at improvement to the Oakland Park canoe landing. Motion unanimously carried.

Heidi Holte presented the Thief River Falls Library Budget and request for 2002. The total amount requested from the county for 2002 was $60,684.00. The County Board referred this to the budget committee.

Dale Nelson, Red Lake Watershed Board, presented the 2000 Annual Report and the 2002 general fund budget.

County Sheriff Mike Hruby requested approval for hiring personnel to fill the vacancies in the Department. Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to approve the employment of the following persons: Jesse L. Haugen and Angela K. Johnson as permanent part-time corrections officers, Travis Black and Judy Wiseth as full-time correction officers and Adam Hortech as part-time dispatcher/jailer. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Auditor brought up the request of the Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing & Redevelopment Authority for authorization to levy a special benefit tax levy under M.S. 469.033 subd 6.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to deny the request for approval of special benefit tax levy from the Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing and Redevelopment Authority as authorized under M.S. 469.033 subd 6. Motion unanimously carried.

At 1:30 p.m. County Engineer Delton Schulz, Assistant County Engineer George Broadwell and Maintenance Foreman Godfred Svir met with the Board concerning highway department matters. Delton Schulz noted that the highway department had checked the bids on C.P. #57-01-05 and recommended the low bid of Central Specialties for the amount of $102,132.40 as the lowest and best bid received. Motion unanimously carried.

David Vraa, Larry Smaky and others presented a petition to clean Judicial Ditch #13 from Trunk highway #219 easterly to the Pennington, Beltrami, Marshall County lines. Those in attendance also requested that a culvert in the ditch system be checked for correct sizing, as it seems to slow the water flow. Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to accept the petition and to order cleaning of this area of Judicial Ditch #13 along with a request to the Red Lake Watershed District to size the culvert in question. Motion unanimously carried.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Carlson and upon vote was unanimously carried:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, it appears to the County Board of the County of Pennington that the road hereinafter described as a Local Street in the City of Goodridge under the provisions of Minnesota Laws.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the County Board of the County of Pennington that the streets described as follows to wit: Osmund Avenue, starting at the intersection of Osmund Avenue and Pennington Street, thence Northerly to the intersection of Osmund Avenue and Carl Street, thence Easterly on Carl Street to the intersection with Guinan Avenue, thence on Guinan Avenue, Southerly to the intersection with Pennington Street, a total distance of 900 feet or 0.17 miles. The Functional Classification of the Streets shall be Local, and the County State Aid Highway Designation shall be #29. The foregoing is subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Transportation of the State of Minnesota.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the County Auditor is hereby authorized and directed to forward two (2) certified copies of this resolution to the Commissioner of Transportation for his consideration.

Commissioner Jensen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners supports the formation of a Grygla-Gully-10-Ton-Corridor Coalition, and

WHEREAS, the Pennington County Highway Department designated this corridor as a priority project deliverable within eighteen months of notification of funding availability and

WHEREAS, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners will participate in the funding of this corridor with the required twenty percent local match, and

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners elects to become a member of the Grygla-Gully-10-Ton-Corridor Coalition and pledges to provide ongoing financial and public support for the development of this 10-ton, north-south shipping corridor for Northwest Minnesota.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners elects the County Engineer to represent Pennington County within the coalition.

Commissioner Carlson seconded the motion and the same being put to vote was duly carried.

Delton then presented two quotes for a Rhino mower:

Anderson Power and Equipment	$ 9,707.50
Doyle Equipment, Inc.	$10,500.00

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to approve the purchase of a Rhino mower from Anderson Power and Equipment for $9,707.50. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to authorize the County Engineer and County Auditor to advertise for construction of County Road #78 contingent on receiving approval from the MNDOT State Aid Office for use of Fund #29 funds for bridge construction associated with the project. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to extend the deadline for a Highway Technician III employee to August 31, 2001. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to approve the delivery of the new 140 D Motor Grader and New Holland Tractor and approve payment for both. Motion unanimously carried.

Howard Person submitted a damage assessment report and stated that the Pennington County Emergency Board has met and asked the County Board to request an Ag Disaster Declaration.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Naplin and upon vote was unanimously carried:

RESOLUTION REQUESTING AN AGRICULTURE DECLARATION

WHEREAS, the County of Pennington, subdivision of the State of Minnesota has sustained heavy losses as a result of storms with excessive precipitation and wind throughout the growing season (7-31-01 to 8-8-01) and continuing;

WHEREAS, an estimated 400 farmers in Pennington County have been affected with losses sustained by the following

CROP	LOSS
Wheat	48%
Soybeans	42%

WHEREAS, the Pennington County USDA Emergency Board has filed their damage assessment report which supports the need for emergency loans to farmers.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Board of Commissioners for, and on behalf of the citizens of Pennington County, request that the Governor of the State of Minnesota petition the Secretary of Agriculture to declare Pennington County a disaster area.

At this time Dave Bergeron and Greg Dreeslin presented the contractors bid number to do a number of improvements to lighting and heating to the County buildings. The County Board indicated that they would hold on their decision on going ahead with any of the improvements until the budget committee has a chance to review the budget and levy requests.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to approve paying the Commissioner warrants as presented. Motion unanimously carried.

Community Club meets Plummer Community Club met on Monday evening at the town hall with president Fern Whitney presiding. She read a letter she'd found on the Internet addressed to the terrorists of last week, which was very timely. Lucille Kvasager read the secretary and treasurer's report. A scholarship thank-you from Emily Hagen was read and the August picnic had been held as planned. A committee is being formed of the various service organizations in town to plan for the Centennial celebration in 2004. Howard Greenwald volunteered to represent the Club but one more is needed. Announcement was made of the RLC trip to Maple Lake to view fall colors on September 25. Sign up early. Ray Hanonen and Howard LaFayette will be serving lunch at the October meeting. Door prizes for the evening went to Art Hanson ($10) and Lorraine Loranson ($5). Coffee and goodies were served by Ruth Wilkens and Lucille Kvasager.

Marian Pearson of Kennewick, Wash., who has been visiting her Hesse relatives here, left for her home on Wednesday morning.

The Ruth-Anna and Elizabeth circles met jointly on Wednesday evening at the church. Carole Wright and Gerda Koskela led the lesson. After their separate business sessions, lunch was served by Cathy Zimpel and Sheila Gerardy.

Congratulations to Kyle Walter and Kelsey Rewertz who were chosen King and Queen of PHS Homecoming activities! Senior attendants were Kelley Zimpel, Jennifer McMullen, Jesse Hodgson, John Jacobson, Anna Witek and Gary Tvedt. Chosen from the first grade were Harlee Hesse and Kevin Bray.

AUGUST 28, 2001
5:00 P.M.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Pennington County Board Room in Thief River Falls, MN, Tuesday, August 28, 2001 at 5:00 p.m. Members present: Charles Naplin, Donald Jensen, Arden "Bud" Comstock, Bob Carlson, and Oliver "Skip" Swanson. Also present was County Attorney David Olin and County Auditor Kenneth Olson. There were no members absent at this time.

Meeting with the County Board were the following: Barb Molskness, Maggie Leach, Brian Malone, Ray Gison, and Danny Johnson representing the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District. Barb Molskness reviewed the 2002 budget and presented their request for a $74,879 appropriation for 2002. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to refer this request to the Budget Committee. Motion unanimously carried.

County Engineer Delton Schulz and Assistant Engineer George Broadwell then met with the County Board about several Highway Department items. Delton discussed the need to repair J.D. #30 at the intersection of C.S.A.H. #18 and J.D. #30 for 200 feet downstream and 300 feet upstream. A quote had been obtained for $50,000 to $55,000 to do the repair. The County Board decided to hold this repair and to view the site at the next Road, Bridge and Culvert Committee meeting.

The County Engineer discussed the letter received from the DNR requesting a plug be placed in the easterly road ditch along C.S.A.H. #18 in section 13 River Falls Township to restore the ditch to its original drainage capacity. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to place a plug in the easterly ditch along C.S.A.H. #18 in section 13 River Falls Township as described in the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources letter. Motion carried with Commissioner Jensen voting against.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, and upon vote unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

Final on Regraveling Contract.

WHEREAS, Contract #01003 has in all things been completed and the County Board being fully advised in the premises,

NOW THEN BE IT RESOLVED, that we do hereby accept said completed project for and on behalf of the County of Pennington and authorize final payment as specified herein.

Delton then reported that Davidson Construction would be starting on C.S.A.H. #24 project on September 4, 2001.

Delton informed the County Board that "Fund 29" Funds are available for replacement of the bridge on County Road #78 and asked the Board to advertise for bids on this project on October 23, 2001. The County Board approved the request. The County Attorney, County Assessor and the Highway Department will handle right-of-way acquisition.

County Engineer Delton Schulz asked the County Board to approve final payment of $3,000.00 to the Richland Group for the County Highway Office and Shop. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to approve the final payment of $3,000.00 to the Richland Group for the construction of the County Highway Office and Shop building contingent on proper paperwork being received. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to authorize George Broadwell to be Acting County Engineer and to authorize Godfred Svir in the absence of the Acting Engineer to approve and sign payroll time sheets and bills to be paid. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to authorize the Chairman to sign the agreement with Robert Kraemer for cleaning the road ditch along the southerly side of the road in the NE1/4 section 7, Smiley Township. Motion unanimously carried.

At this time the County Board thanked Delton Schulz for his many years of service as County Engineer and wished him many happy years of retirement.

Dale Wenberg, Jerry Wigness, Don Stewart, Dave Strong, and Mark Borsheim met with the County Board to give the Job's, Inc. Annual Report. Don Stewart discussed some of the activities the Job's, Inc. Board has worked on this past year including the Crosswind Runway, Post Office and Northwest Beverage. Jerry Wigness-President of Job's, Inc. reported on who was now on the Job's, Inc. Board. Dave Strong then discussed the County's contribution and since some major expenditures have been made, Job's, Inc. requests the County to appropriate $30,000.00 in 2002. Mark Borsheim and Dale Wenberg added that they would like to see the County appropriate $30,000.00 in 2002 and maybe earmark an additional $15,000.00 for a specific project such as the crosswind runway.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to refer the request for an appropriation in 2002 to the budget committee. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, that the Highway Committee will interview the two applicants for County Engineer. Motion carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to approve the minutes of July 24, July 26, and August 14, 2001 as written. Motion carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to inform Johnson Controls that the building improvement projects they have identified do not fit into the budget and will not be done at this time. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to repair the #1 boiler in the County Courthouse per quote of McCarty's Heating & Welding Service. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to approve the following Commissioner Warrants for payment. Motion unanimously carried.

Triple O Construction Grand Forks, ND	$189,564.00
Landwehr, St. Cloud	$197,480.50

The foregoing bids will be reviewed by the County Engineers office and brought to the County Board July 26, 2001 at 1:00 p.m. for action.

The County Engineer discussed the Mike Hemmestvedt approach across County Ditch #39 section 14 Kratka Township. An estimate of $8,200 was received for this repair. The County Board held any action on this approach to give Lou Tasa time to investigate any possible cost participation.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to purchase three personal computers for the County Highway Department for $3,500 plus sales tax and to allow the payment of 50% by County Auditor's warrant. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to authorize Widseth, Smith, and Nolte to survey C.S.A.H. #27 and #28 for 18.5 miles at a cost of $24,500.00. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Engineer then reviewed culverts in need of replacement or repair.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to replace a culvert in Sanders Township. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to approve replacement of a culvert located in section 13 and 14 Deer Park Township with a 18" X 10' spiral rolled CMP with the County providing 30' and the individual paying for 10' and installation charges. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to approve providing a 30' of 36' spiral rolled CMP to replace the culvert in the SW1/4 section 8 Deer Park Township. As per culvert policy anything over 30' will be paid for by the landowner. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to approve providing a 30' by 18" spiral rolled CMP to replace the culvert off County Road #97 in the NW1/4 section 9 Star Township. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to approve providing a 24" x 30' culvert to replace the culvert on the north side of section 7/8 Bray Township of CR #61 with the individual to do the installation. Motion unanimously carried.

At this time, Lou Tasa reviewed the amount of construction and maintenance that has been accomplished while County Engineer Delton Schulz has been with the County and extended his congratulations to Delton Schulz for his accomplishment and wished him well in his retirement.

County Sheriff Michael Hruby then met with the County Board to review the Community and Juvenile Restitution Grant for $7,154.00 per year and the Operation Night Cap Grant for $1,200.00.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Swanson and upon vote was unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board approves the State of Minnesota Department of Corrections Community and Juvenile Service Grant Agreement for fiscal year 2002 and 2003 in the amount of $7,125.00 per year.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Chairman and Sheriff be authorized to sign the agreement on behalf of Pennington County.

The following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Jensen, seconded by Commissioner Swanson and upon vote was unanimously carried.

RESOLUTION

BE IT RESOLVED that the Pennington County Board authorizes the County Sheriff's Office to enter into the Operation Night Cap Grant Agreement with the State of Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety for the period of 7-1-2001 to 9-30-2001.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to authorize the County Sheriff to advertise for 2 full-time corrections officer, 2 part-time corrections officers and one part-time dispatcher. Motion unanimously carried.

The Sheriff then discussed purchasing a fence for the Minimum Security Facility with the Sentence to Serve crew doing the installation. Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to authorize the Law Enforcement Committee to review specification and quotes for the fencing material and to authorize the purchase of a fence to be installed by Sentence to Serve. Motion unanimously carried.

County Attorney David Olin presented the Crime Victim Grant Agreement. Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to approve the Crime Victim Grant Agreement and authorize the Chairman to sign the agreement on behalf of Pennington County.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson to set the Tobacco Ordinance license fee at $25.00 per year and to authorize the County Auditor to issue the license annually. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Auditor then presented the resolutions and agreements that need approval for the issuance of the Transportation Revolving Fund Bonds.

Commissioner Jensen introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

RESOLUTION NO. 2001-70
RESOLUTION ACCEPTING THE OFFER OF THE MINNESOTA PUBLIC FACILITIES AUTHORITY TO PURCHASE A $2,000,000.00 GENERAL OBLIGATION HIGHWAY STATE AID NOTE OF 2001 PROVIDING FOR ITS ISSUANCE, AND AUTHORIZING EXECUTION OF A PROJECT LOAN AGREEMENT

The motion for the adoption of the foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Swanson and after full discussion thereof and upon a vote being taken thereon, the following voted in favor thereof: Donald Jensen, Arden Comstock, Charles Naplin, Bob Carlson, Oliver Swanson and the following voted against the same: none where upon said resolution was declared duly passed and adopted.

copy filed in the County Auditor's Office

Commissioner Jensen who moved its adoption presented the following resolution:

RESOLUTION NO. 2001-71
RESOLUTION RELATING TO FUNDING OF PENNINGTON COUNTY $2,000,000.00 GENERAL OBLIGATION HIGHWAY STATE-AID NOTE OF 2001

The motion for the adoption of the foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Board member Swanson, and upon vote being taken thereon, the following voted in favor thereof: Donald Jensen, Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, Arden Comstock, Oliver Swanson and the following voted against the same: none where upon said resolution was declared duly passed and adopted.

 copy filed in the County Auditor's Office

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen to approve the Public Facilities Authority Project Loan and General Obligation Bond Purchase Agreement and authorize the Chairman and Auditor to sign the agreement on behalf of Pennington County. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson, to request Howard Person to draft a letter in support of additional Farm Wrap Funding from the Bremer Foundation. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Jensen moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin, to authorize the County Auditor to pay Credit Card bills by Auditor warrant to prevent late payment charges. The Chairman will review and approve the Auditor warrant list. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to accept the annual Ag Inspectors Report for 2000 and authorize the Chairman to sign the report on behalf of Pennington County. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Jensen, to approve the minutes of July 19, 2001 as written. Motion carried.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Swanson, to approve the following Commissioner Warrants. Motion unanimously carried.

City prepares response to plan to cut air service

by David Hill
Editor

"It's in the mail." At least, that's what Thief River Falls has been told regarding official notice that Northwest Airlines intends to terminate service to Thief River Falls Regional Airport.

Thief River Falls still has not received official notice that service will be terminated, as required by statute. That poses some difficult questions, which Thief River Falls officials began to address Monday during a special meeting at city offices.

A representative of Senator Mark Dayton's office and the Thief River Falls City Administrator were told by representatives of Northwest that the notice was sent to the City by First Class mail on September 17. This caused a number of city officials to either chuckle or shake their heads because officials are also struggling with mail service-related issues to the city.

Regardless of the location of the notice, city representatives were advised that they should draft their response to the termination request by October 8 as if it had received notice, and then request an extension and right to supplement their response with additional information.

The city plans to base its request for an extension based on the fact that the city has not received notice, that the events of September 11 caused a great deal of uncertain-

(The notice to terminate service does not mean service terminates immediately. According to statute, Thief River Falls has 20 days to draft and submit a response to the request for termination of service, and it will be at least 90 days before service is terminated. It is also important for the public to understand that the termination of service was in process of being prepared before the Sept. 11 attack.)

Tail-gate party rallies support

▶ According to organizers, over $13,000 was raised for victims of the terrorist attack on Sept. 11

▶ Over 1,800 t-shirts were sold, over 1,000 meals served, and fans packed the stands

Honor guards of American Legion Post 117, VFW No. 2793, and Minnesota National Guard, Company B 2nd Battalion 136th infantry, Thief River Falls, participated in the "United We Stand Tailgate Rally" at the Prowler vs. Duluth Central football game held in Thief River Falls Friday evening. The event included dinner, performances by the Lincoln High School Choir and band, and a half-time ceremony. Organizers estimated that they will raise approximately $13,000 for the American Red Cross relief effort.

State employees go on Strike

by David Hill
Editor

Over 60 Thief River Falls members of two unions joined fellow union members across the state on the picket line Monday morning.

Members of two unions, Minnesota Association of Professional Employees (MAPE) and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Council 6, went on strike Monday morning after rejecting the state's latest offer.

"It's a situation no one wanted to see, especially now," said Heather Hauschild, media representative for striking state employees in Thief River Falls. "We had hoped that the union and state would reach an agreement over the weekend, and I, personally, was very surprised that they did not reach an agreement," said Hauschild.

Hauschild said the primary issue separating the unions and the state is health insurance.

According to a negotiator's report on the AFSCME Council 6 Web site (www.afscmecouncil6.org), during the three days of intense negotiations, "The State made only minor movements on its 'Advantage' health plan. They continue to propose unacceptable levels of cost shifting to employees and families who actually need the health insurance."

◀ Members of MAPE and AFSCME in Thief River Falls went on strike Monday morning. Members of the unions who are employees at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls were on the picket line Monday morning. There are about 60 members of the unions at the college, and about seven members of the union who are employed at the WorkForce Center, which is also located at the College.

What separates the state and unions?

- The primary issue separating the unions and the state is insurance. The overall difference is about 4 percent of premium.
- Pay is another issue. The state offered a 4 percent increase with a one-time bonus. The unions are asking for 4.5 percent the first year and 4.2 percent the second year.

Plight of children inspires Walk of Hope

■ Founder to visit TRF Thurs. while on 8,250-mile walk

by David Hill
Editor

"The tragedy of children dying unnecessarily is what I call a status quo tragedy," said Norman Ball.

Ball, a 58-year-old grandfather with arthritis and a bad back, and founder of a project called "Walk of Hope," will be in Thief River Falls on Thursday. When he arrives in Thief River Falls he'll be about 4,000 miles into a 8,250-mile walk, to raise awareness about the plight of millions of children around the world, and to raise funds for programs that support efforts to aid children.

On Thursday, Ball will walk from about seven miles north of Thief River Falls on Highway 59 to Thief River Falls' city hall. People who would like to meet Ball and hear him address his concerns are welcome to do so. He will arrive in Thief River Falls at about 11:30 a.m.

While Ball's "Walk of Hope" began near Phoenix, Ariz., about nine months ago, it actually began when an acquaintance from Romania told him the story of throw-away children. Ball explained that throw-away children are children who have been abandoned by their parents, and left in orphanages or on the streets to fend for themselves. But while this may seem to be about the children, Ball finds it more tragic in light of society's tacit acceptance of allowing children to be thrown away and left to fend for themselves. It is also about society's tacit acceptance of child abuse and neglect.

"Children, the age of my grandchildren, are living in the streets, garbage dumps and sewers in most of the major cities of the world."

"Walk of Hope" founder Norman Ball will travel to Thief River Falls on Thursday. He anticipates arriving at the city hall at 11:30 a.m.

Many hope airline won't take flight

■ Plans to pull out of TRF has many concerned about future

by David Hill
Editor

After Northwest Airlines' announcement that it had filed a request with the Department of Transportation to withdraw service from Thief River Falls, Bergan Travel received numerous calls from nervous travelers. Al Walseth, owner of Bergan Travel said it's not a done deal and he has more hope now that service will continue.

Following notification of intent to terminate service, Northwest must continue to provide service for 90 days. Thief River Falls is a community that qualifies for federal subsidies because it has been identified as an essential air carrier community. Sometime during the 90-days, negotiations that will involve determination of the amount of federal subsidy, and if Northwest accepts the subsidy, times and type of service provided, will be conducted.

A representative of Northwest Airlines indicated previously that Northwest would accept a federal subsidy to continue service.

Walseth says air service to Thief River Falls is not a luxury or just a convenience. Several local businesses as well as many in the region depend on the service, said Walseth.

Local businesses such as Arctic Cat and Digi-Key are very loyal customers, said Walseth. He said they would rather fly out of Thief River Falls all the time, but timing of some of the flights makes it difficult and expensive for them to use the local service for all travel.

Many elderly people in the community also rely on the service. To them, Walseth said, parking, the small-town safety and trust, and

The Marshall County Sheriff's Department confiscated two pounds of methamphetamine from a residence in Middle River on September 26.

Ricky Lynn Olson, 42, Middle River, Wayne Cole Johnson, 42, Gatzke, and Judy Marie Seader, 47, Middle River, have each been charged with a first degree controlled substance crime. Marshall County Sheriff's Department said that the street value of the confiscated drugs was estimated near $1 million.

They were arraigned in Marshall County District Court on September 28, where bail was set. Bail was set at $50,000 for Olson and Johnson. Seader was released on personal recognizance. Their next court appearances have been scheduled for October 2 at the Marshall County District Court.

The case was investigated with the assistance of Red Lake, Roseau and Pennington County law enforcement agencies.

Tom Dondelinger (left), owner of Northern Motors Inc., the local GM dealership in Thief River Falls, presented Chief of Police Jim Haugen (right), of the Thief River Falls Police Department, with a check for over $5,000. The gift was made possible by the Dondelinger Foundation. The donation will be used to replace deteriorating equipment that is up to 25 years old. Newly purchased VHF portable radios will help to ensure public and officer safety. Haugen said officers will have a direct line of communication with other officers and agencies at all times with the new devices.

On September 30, 3:19 p.m., police received a report of a Clarion compact disc detachable face taken from a vehicle on the 800 block of Arnold Avenue North. The vehicle was also egged. The compact disc face was valued at $200.

On October 1, 2:30 a.m., police received a report that $250 worth of compact discs and a cell phone had been taken from a vehicle parked on the 500 block of Greenwood Street West.

On October 1, 3:35 p.m. a watch was reported stolen from a locker room at Northland Community and Technical College. It has value of $72.

Shoplifting. On September 25, 6:28 p.m., Ann Liza Juhl, 39, Thief River Falls, was cited for shoplifting.

Violation of protection order. On September 29, 7:53 a.m., charges are pending against Charles Peter Gerardy, 41, Thief River Falls, for violation of a protection order and terroristic threats.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Organ dedication concert at UMC Sunday, Oct. 7

The congregation of the Thief River Falls United Methodist Church invites everyone to join it in celebration as it dedicates its new church organ.

An organ dedication concert will be held in the church sanctuary on Sunday, October 7, at 3 p.m. Fellowship time will follow in the church basement. The event is free, and a freewill offering will not be collected.

Following a brief devotion time and dedication of the organ by Rev. Dan Hom, Dr. Christopher Wallace will play an assortment of organ pieces showcasing a variety of musical styles.

Dr. Wallace, a native of Atlanta, Ga., holds a doctorate of musical arts degree. Initially, he earned both bachelor and master's degrees in music from the Eastman School of Music under the esteemed Dr. Nelita True. His outstanding ability earned him Eastman's distinguished Performer's Certificate, and he was appointed teaching assistant to Dr. True. Dr. Wallace completed his doctor of musical arts degree in piano from the University of Minnesota in 1994 where he studied with concert pianist Lydia Artymin.

Embarking on a career as a soloist, chamber musician and accompanist, Dr. Wallace has performed in Atlanta, Florida, Montana, Maryland, Minneapolis/St. Paul, Costa Rica, Guatemala and San Salvador. He is currently serving as organist and choir master for the Episcopal Parish of St. David and has been a church musician for over 12 years. Since 1997, he has been president of Allen Organs of the Twin Cities.

Dancing through the Decades

Northernaires Dance Club cuts up the rug

While much has changed over the years, much has remained the same especially for the Nothernaires

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

While much has changed, much has remained the same. So is the way of Northernaires Dance Club as it meets three times a year, affording its members the opportunity to let their hair down, kick up their heels a bit and most importantly, get to know each other.

The organization is currently kicking off its 35th year, and a letter will be mailed this week to the 110 or so households of couples and individuals who have, in recent years, attended a dance or expressed an interest in joining the club.

Membership, however, is not limited to those receiving the mailing. An attitude that amounts to "the more, the merrier" exists among current members, and anyone and everyone is welcome to join them.

Socialization is the club's sole purpose as it was when it began in the mid-1960's.

It was a group of five women who organized the club in 1965. The instigators included Maxine McEwen, Janet Henry, Joanne Johnson, Annette Bergan and Gretchen Beito, the only one of the five who still lives in Thief River Falls.

Gretchen and her husband, Gene, were members of the Cotillion Dance Club which had formed in the 1950s and says she and the other four gals were looking for a social outlet a little less formal than the one that club provided.

The Cotillion club lived up to its definition — "any large, formal party for dancing." It met four times a year and was a real dress-up affair with a big sit-down meal and dance with dance cards and the works. Although David Beito was a mere child, his weary dad, Gretchen says, filled his name in on the card for the last few dances.

She and her friends were seeking a less formal affair than Cotillion Dance Club offered, one that would begin after they had put their young children to bed for the night. And, instead of a large, early-evening meal, they rather preferred midnight snacks.

Once they decided what they wanted to do, the original dance committee members starting making telephone calls to get others interested in joining the club. The timing was right, too, as Arctic Enterprises was growing and bringing many new couples to town, eager to meet others and be a part of the local social scene.

"It worked," Gretchen says. Membership rolls included about 60 couples during those early years.

The membership fee that was charged paid for the bands which were hired for the three dances held in the fall, winter and spring.

Because some were apprehensive about dancing, Gretchen says that they also hired Oick Norquist of Oklee, a former Arthur Murray dance instructor in Seattle, to give lessons at one of the first club gatherings.

While the early fall dances featured a costume party, the winter and spring events were more "come as you are," and the food that was served was usually furnished by the women who served on a committee for a particular dance. Decorations were a part of every event and also the responsibility of the dance committee.

As years have passed, the format of the gatherings has stayed much the same. The people who attend the dances are, for the most part, different as some couples have moved from Thief River Falls and new people have moved to town, or, in the case of the Beitos, the styles of music and dance have changed more than they have.

Another sign of the times is the fact that the couples include not only the officially wed but those with "significant other" partners. Singles are encouraged to take part as well.

"Anyone — everyone is welcome," says Lauro Brickson, one of Northernaires Dance Club's committee members. The group's only stipulation is that a member be over 21 years of age.

Three theme dances are held each year in the fall, winter and spring. Appetizers are served at the the fall and spring events, and the winter dance features a catered meal. Currently, all of the dances are being held at the Elks Club with disc jockey Peg Mehrkens providing a variety of dance music.

Decorations and appetizers continue to be the responsibilities of the individual dance committee members.

Lauro says that many Northernaires members who are "big kids at heart" have a lot of fun with the themes. Favorites mentioned include last year's Halloween dance when 10 participants dressed up as the Brady Bunch, a Gangsters Ball, and Olympic-theme dance when several members came clad as the Jamaican bobsled team, a Millionaires' Ball and old favorites such as a western theme.

Fun is the bottom line, and costumes are completely optional and only for those who enjoy putting them together.

Although Northernaires Dance Club was organized by a group of stay-at-home moms, today's women, many of whom are members of the work force, need a social outlet, too, Brickson says.

So that people have the opportunity to get to know each other, the dances often feature icebreaker-type games or place card settings that situate you near one couple you know and another you have not yet become acquainted with.

This year's events will again be held at the Elks Club with Peg Mehrkens providing the dance music.

The "Moonlight Masquerade" dance on Saturday, October 27, will begin at 8 p.m. and include appetizers.

The February 9 event will be a "Marti Gras Formal" with participants dressing up as much or as little as they desire. An 8 p.m. dinner will be served following a 7 p.m. social hour, and the dance will begin at 9 p.m.

"Saturday Night Live" will be the theme of the 8 p.m. dance with appetizers on Saturday, April 13.

Members have the option of paying the membership fee of $60 per couple or $30 per single at the October event, or paying per dance, a fee of $20 per couple/$10 per single for the fall and spring events and $40 per couple/$20 per single for the winter dinner and dance.

For planning purposes, RSVP's are required at least five days before each dance, and Brickson also notes that the full admission fee will be charged regardless of what time a couple or individual arrives at the dance.

Newcomers to the community, former members of the club and anyone who thinks he, she or they might enjoy themselves is invited to call Laura Brickson and get their name on her mailing/calling list. Her telephone number is (218) 681-7127, or you can email her at pat.brickson@digikey.com.

Laura, who thinks that in a town like Thief River Falls folks must often take it upon themselves to "make their own fun," compares the events of Northernaires Dance Club to "a wedding dance without the bride and groom."

Sound's like fun, doesn't it?

Three Events to Dance For

- The "Moonlight Masquerade" dance will be held on Saturday, October 27.
- The February 9 event will be a "Marti Gras Formal" with participants dressing up as much or as little as they desire.
- "Saturday Night Live" will be the theme of the 8 p.m. dance with appetizers on Saturday, April 13.

Then. . .

and Now. . .

Themes and costumes continue to add to the fun for those who participate in Northernaires Dance Club. This Halloween party included Pat Brickson, dressed as Cher; Kevin Yaggie aka Dracula; Mark Thune as Bat Girl; and Shelby Sorvig clad as a pirate. Northernaires Dance Club will kickoff its 35th year with a "Moonlight Masquerade" on October 27. New members, both couples and singles, are invited to join the fun. For more information, call Laura Brickson at 681-7127. (Submitted Photo)

Veronica Hanson and Dustin Carlson wed June 2 at Donaldson

St. Olaf Lutheran Church in Donaldson was the site of the June 2 nuptials uniting Veronica Lynn Hanson and Oustin Robert Carlson in marriage. Rev. Ben Carlsen officiated at the 5 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Robert Hanson and Oebra Hanson, both of Karlstad, and Marv and Kathi Carlson of Thief River Falls.

Brian Unbehaun, friend of the groom, was the soloist, performing "From Here to Eternity" and "Amazed." Pat Larson was the organist.

Heather Mataya, sister of the bride, served as the matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Jennifer Ley, cousin of the groom, and Natalee Johnson, Hailey Stephenson and Alison Krantz, all friends of the bride. The bride's cousin, Rachel Pokrzywinski, was the flower girl.

Serving as the bride's personal attendant was her friend, Lauro Rud.

Cameron Carlson, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen included Brondon Bolstad, cousin of the groom, and James Lehrer, Brian Unbehaun and Kevin Sheller, all friends of the groom. The groom's cousin, Grant Page, was the ring bearer.

Ushering the guests were Christopher Hanson, brother of the bride; Max Pokrzywinski, cousin of the bride; and Justin Carlson and Tony Page, both cousins of the groom.

Honored guests included Patricia Page and Clayton and Marvel Carlson, grandparents of the groom, and Roger and Shirley Richter, lifelong friends of the groom.

Hosting the reception at the Eagles Cub in Karlstad were Karen and John Lundgren, uncle and aunt of the groom, and Oennis and Genafay Pokrzywinski, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Others who assisted with the wedding and reception were Oeb Bolstad, Oianne Skauge, Kim Yancey, Joyce Carlson and Donna Bjerke, aunts of the groom; Michelle Pokrzywinski, Polly Pokrzywinski and Kelly Hanson, aunts of the bride, and Esther Pietruzewski, great-aunt of the bride.

The groom's uncles, John Skauge and John Lundgren, captured the event on video tape, and Rob Page, uncle of the groom, was among those taking candid photographs.

Since their marriage, Oustin and Veronica have enjoyed trips to Wisconsin and Yellowstone National Park. They are currently residing in Moorhead.

Veronica is a 1999 graduate of Tri-County High School in Karlstad. She attended Northland Community and Technical College and is currently attending Minnesota State University Moorhead. She is employed by USBank in Fargo.

Dustin is a 1998 graduate of Lincoln High School and attended NCTC. He is currently employed by PCI in Fargo and plans to attend MSUM this winter.

October is National Disability employment awareness month

(October also marks the 30th anniversary of the Occupational Development Center Inc.)

During the month of October, the Occupational Development Center wishes to remind employers and residents of the region of the importance of hiring employees with disabilities.

Employers who include employees with disabilities in their workforce enjoy win-win situations. Employers get employees who are as productive as any other employee, with good attendance records and loyalty to the job and the company. Employees with disabilities gain self-esteem and a paycheck.

Workers with disabilities are an important and largely untapped resource for employers. While there are countless examples of successful people with disabilities working in many different occupations, there are still many more Americans with disabilities who face great difficulties in their desire to join the workforce.

The Occupational Development Center (OOC) provides services throughout northern Minnesota, and their programs are designed with the intention of providing people with disabilities the training necessary to gain and hold a job. Participants are expected to help develop their own goals for each program entered while at the OOC. OOC's Community Employment Services are designed to assist a person to choose, obtain and retain employment in the community. The services are provided on an organized, individualized basis and include preparation of the person for employment, job development and job placement, maintenance support during employment and post-employment/closure services.

In addition to programs of service and community placement opportunities, ODC provides jobs with OOC facilities. Production work at OOC consists of a variety of possibilities provided through custom product manufacturing and sub-contracting.

Established in 1971, OOC has been serving people and industry for over 30 years. ODC invites you to join in their anniversary celebration being held on Friday, October 26 from 2:30 to 4 p.m. at 1520 Highway 32 South, Thief River Falls.

For more information about utilizing ODC's workforce, call 218-681-6830.

Fall dinner and bazaar at St. Anne's Sunday

St. Anne's Catholic Church of Goodridge will hold its annual fall dinner and bazaar on Sunday, October 7, from 4 to 7 p.m.

The menu will feature roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy, French green beans, salads, pickles, rolls, desserts and beverages.

The event will also include a cake walk, fish pond, crafts and a country store.

Cost is $6 for adults, $3 for kindergarten through sixth grade students, $1.50 for preschoolers or $22 per family.

This weekend's mass will be held at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Catherine Rosten and Jeremiah Johnson plan October 13 nuptials

Catherine Ann Rosten and Jeremiah Otto Johnson with their parents, Byron and Sharon Rosten of Plummer and Charlie and Lora Johnson of Oklee, announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Catherine is a 1997 graduate of Pershing High School and a 2001 graduate of Bemidji State University. She is currently employed in the Family Services Department at Inter-County Community Council.

Jeremiah "J.J." is a 1995 graduate of Oklee High School and a 2000 graduate of the University of Minnesota, Crookston. He is currently employed by Northwest Grain in Thief River Falls.

A wedding is planned for October 13 at 3 p.m. at St. Joseph's church in Brooks. A reception and dance will follow at the Community Hall in Oklee.

4-H Carnival slated for Friday, Oct. 5

Pennington County 4-Hers will present their annual Carnival on Friday, October 5, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Thief River Falls City Auditorium.

The event will include a cake walk, games, prizes and fun for all. Tickets are $.25 each or five for $1. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Federal Consumer Protection has confirmed the accuracy of the fuel saving described in this advertisement.
Device May Increase Gas Mileage by 22%
BOSTON - National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston has developed a low cost automotive accessory called the Platinum Gas Saver which is guaranteed to increase gas mileage by 22% while meeting all emission standards.
With a simple connection to a vacuum line, the Gas Saver adds microscopic quantities of platinum to the air-fuel mixture entering the engine.
Platinum has the unique ability to make non-burning fuel burn. With platinum in the flame zone, you increase the percentage of fuel burning in the engine from 68% of each gallon to 90% of each gallon, a 22% increase.
Since unburnt fuel leaving an engine is pollution, this 22% of each gallon would normally burn when it reaches the platinum of the catalytic converter.
Unfortunately, the converter's platinum burns this fuel in the tail-pipe, where the heat and energy produced from burning this fuel cannot be harnessed to drive your vehicle.
But when the Gas Saver adds platinum to the air-fuel mixture, 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.
After studying this process for five years, the government concluded: "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Platinum Gas Saver than the 22% claimed by the developer."
In addition to this government study, the Gas Saver has received patents for cleaning out carbon and raising octane, making premium fuel unnecessary for most vehicles.
Jnel Robinson, the developer, commented: "We have sold almost a half million Gas Savers. To our surprise, as many people buy the Gas Saver because it extends engine life (by cleaning out the abrasive carbon deposits) as buy it to increase gas mileage or to raise octane."

Government Produced Test Data
The government studied fuel saving test data on vehicles made by several auto makers using the Gas Saver. This is the data they produced from a fleet of 15 identical 5-liter vehicles.

Vehicle Number	Miles/gal. without Gas Saver	Miles/gal. with Gas Saver	Percentage Increase
1	12.0	17.8	48.3%
2	11.3	16.6	46.9%
3	14.1	20.7	46.8%

Scientific Facts
Chemicals in Cigarettes
Chemical #1 – Asbestos: Inhalation of asbestos can cause lung cancer and mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the lining of the chest and abdomen lining.
Chemical #2 – Radon: A cancer-causing radioactive gas that the Surgeon General has declared to be, by itself, the second-leading cause of lung cancer in the United States.
Chemical #3 – Benzene: A chemical often found in gasoline, has been proven to cause leukemia in some individuals. Long-term exposure may affect bone marrow and blood production
Do you want these chemicals in you? If you don't, you should know that you don't even have to smoke to consume them. You just have to be around those that do.

Card of Thanks

Words truly cannot express the gratefulness felt by the family of Edna Hanson for the constant support, the words of encouragement, the phone calls, and the many beautiful cards and messages sent or spoken to Edna and her family during her lengthy illness. Each letter, card and message was read by Edna, or read to her by her family, and was deeply appreciated. Some brought laughter, some tears; all were cherished by Edna and her family.

Edna fought a long and courageous battle. Knowing her as well as we do, we believe she was trying hard to live to please her family. She tried very hard to remain as independent as she could so she could continue to live in her home, near her friends and family. She was blessed with so many friends and very close family members.

We thank God for blessing us with the life of this exceptionally dear mother (and substitute mom), grandmother, great-grandmother, lifelong friend, loving sister, and aunt. We also thank God for the dear friends and family who have unselfishly devoted their time to the care of her home, plants, lawn, and other necessary items while she was away. That care enabled us to concentrate all our efforts on Edna's care.

We would like to thank Pastor Dahlen for the exceptional service and the ladies of Faith Lutheran Church of Goodridge who served the delicious luncheon at the Goodridge Community Center. Thanks to Linda for the special balloon. Edna's memory will always remain with us with the memory of her gentle touch and her beautiful smile.

Baby shower for Maloni Henrickson Sunday, Oct. 7

Friends and relative will have the opportunity to meet Malani Dee Henrickson at an open house baby shower on Sunday, October 7, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Gordy Henrickson home in Goodridge.

Maloni is the infant daughter of Randy and Twyla Henrickson.

Artists enjoy annual Paint-Away

Ten members of Artists Unlimited left early Sunday, September 16, on their annual "Paint-Away," traveling in two mini-vans to Medara, N.D.

The artists' destination was the rustic new Eagle Ridge Lodge, situated high on a hill overlooking the Badlands. They spent their time trying to capture the rugged scenes on canvas or watercolor paper, a task that proved very challenging. They also enjoyed the meals served to them, rides in horse-drawn wagons to remote locations and a scenic drive through Theodore Roosevelt National Park.

Those making the trip were Vi Borr and Loreen Hanson, Thief River Falls; Frances Karleson, Roseau; Audrey Sandahl and Evelyn Anderson, Lake Bronson; Ann Novacek, Greenbush; Paulette Christiansen, Badger; Margaret Anderson and Lilly Smolak, Lancaster; and Ann Bednar, Vita, Manitoba, Canada.

After enjoying a wonderful painting experience and relaxing vacation, the group arrived home September 20.

Christensens to celebrate 40th anniversary Oct. 6

Ray and Lillian Christensen will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary with cake and coffee on Saturday, October 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. at their farm.

The program will include a presentation by Cathy Erickson.

United Lutheran supper in Gatzke Sat., October 6

The men of United Lutheran Church in Gatzke will host their annual Swiss steak supper on Saturday, October 6, from 4:30 to 8 p.m.

Complementing the Swiss steak will be mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, coleslaw, lefse, dessert and beverages. Cost of the meal is $6.50 for adults and $3.50 for kindergarten through sixth grade children. Preschoolers are free.

Matching funds will be provided by Lutheran Brotherhood Branch 8129 and Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 11211.

King/Benson dance Saturday

A wedding dance celebrating the nuptials of Jennifer King and Tyrone Benson will be held on Saturday, October 6, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the American Legion in Lake Bronson.

DAV and Auxiliary met September 17

Disabled American Veterans and Auxiliary, Crookston Chapter 14, met Monday, September 17, for a breakfast meeting at the Northland Inn in Crookston.

Vice Commander Jim Sheridan presided at the chapter meeting, and the unit meeting was led by Phyllis Sheridan, vice commander of the auxiliary.

It was announced that the fall DAV and Auxiliary conference will be held October 4-6 in Wilmer where Phyllis Sheridan, Minnesota DAVA hospital chairwoman, will present her report at the Auxiliary business meeting.

Membership was stressed, and the auxiliary welcome six junior members. The annual Forget-Me-Not drive scheduled for the week of September 24 was also discussed.

The next meeting of the DAV and Auxiliary will be held on Monday, October 15, at 9:30 a.m. at the Northland Lodge in Crookston.

Laurie Panek was recently promoted to the position of field office area manager for the Roseau and Thief River Falls WorkForce Centers.

Panek has worked as a staff member of the Thief River Falls WorkForce Center for the past 25 years, most recently as the Welfare to Work coordinator for the northwest area of Minnesota.

Arts Council holds awards banquet

The Thief River Falls Community Arts Council hosted an appreciation dinner/awards banquet recently, marking the end of its summer theatre season.

The event was held in the lower level of the Evergreen Eating Emporium, and an invitation was extended to all who had participated in the summer productions. Board member Sharon Noreen was in charge of decorations with other board members assisting with the plans and President Jane Anderson serving as emcee for the program.

"Best Actor" trophies were presented to Duane Morey for his role in "Annie," Jan Peterson for her role in "Social Security," and Ralph Cox for his role in "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Ballots were distributed to each of the casts asking members to vote for the fellow cast member he or she found to be the most helpful, pleasant and easiest to work with. Winners of these "Players' Choice" awards were Duane Morey of "Annie," Lori Ann Wolseth of "Social Security" and Ralph Cox of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

Gifts of appreciation were also presented to directors Barb Geer, Rob Burkel and Yvonne Asp and crew members Philip Hoks, Karen Jenson, Brianna Geer and Key Teeters Asp.

The evening concluded with the announcement that everyone was waiting for — the plays planned for next year's summer season. The Arts Council has selected "Oklahoma!" for its June show; the comedy, "Noises Off!," for its July production; and Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Cinderella" for its August musical.

Ragan honored at New CPA banquet

Rita E. (Sackett) Ragan was among the honorees at the new CPA banquet held September 23 at the Alerus Center in Grand Forks, N.D.

The event began with a reception for the new certified public accountants, their guest and hosts. A dinner was followed by a program during which each new CPA was presented individually, and the professional oath was taken by the group.

Ragan was one of 37 individuals who successfully completed the CPA exam on May 2-3 of this year.

She is a 1974 graduate of Lincoln High School, a graduate of Moorhead State University and the daughter of Rodger and Ruth Sackett of Thief River Falls.

Ragan currently resides in Davenport, N.D. with her husband, Ronald, and is employ at the Fargo division of SuperValu as an SR retail accountant.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...The Nation Will Survive and Thrive...
And So Will We

"This great Nation will endure as it has endured, will revive and will prosper. So, first of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself - nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance."

Franklin D. Roosevelt
First Inaugural Address
Saturday, March 4, 1933

Franklin Roosevelt became president in the black depths of the Great Depression, and his words above were addressed to that time. They could, however, also be spoken to our country at the present time, and I have taken them out of context for that reason.

If we allow ourselves to be overcome by fear, the terrorists have already won. No matter that we send our precious loved ones to fight the enemy and vanquish him. He will have accomplished what he set out to do if we allow ourselves to give in to fear. If now, before the battle, we stand in terror, heads bowed, baring our necks for the sword, we will have been vanquished, no matter whether we are victorious in the fight to come or not.

This is not the time to tremble and hide our heads in the sand, fearing what might come. There is no future in fearing what terrible things can be wrought upon us, wondering from where they will come and in what manner they will come. This is not the time to allow our imaginations to run wild and allow us to doubt the basic principles and beliefs of our country. It is not the time to doubt the ability of the American people to overcome adversity, whether that adversity comes as an actual physical presence or in the hidden guise of terrorism that destroys spirit and self-confidence.

We must stand up and be firm. We cannot move in haste, or be reckless and imprudent, because that is the way to disaster and defeat, not just to our soldiers who fight the battle, but to the moral fiber of our country. Then, again, the terrorists would win. We must be sure and cautious, punishing only the enemy and not the innocents with whom he surrounds himself. We must always err on the side of caution when it comes to human life, never forgetting that every life is a gift from God. We must always remember that it is in God we trust and for whom our great nation was founded.

We must be ever vigilant and wary of evil, because it is always present. Like a handsome lion, evil stalks abroad, waiting to sink its teeth into whatever weak prey it can find. Evil can be deceitful; yet attractive and charming, drawing us with a siren song. Our country must remain steadfast in its faith and loyal in friendships with other nations, never giving in to the temptations of deception and trickery. That is the way of the terrorists.

And now it is time to move on and do what needs to be done.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Signs of Autumn

What better way to gather up signs of autumn than to head outdoors for an autumn hunt? You will need:

- a plastic bag
- orange construction paper
- glue
- scissors

Provide your child with a plastic bag and head outdoors for an autumn hunt. Have your child search for and collect signs of autumn such as pine cones, leaves, nuts, twigs and acorns. When the hunt is over, have your child cut out a pumpkin shape from the orange paper and glue the items from the collecting bag onto the cutout pumpkin.

PARENTING TIPS
Discovering Nature With Children

Children are curious and "discovering" the world around them. All the things that we know and take for granted are new to them. Sometimes without realizing it we squelch their curiosity or we give the message that things in nature are to be avoided. For instance, as you walk down the sidewalk, your youngster finds a worm or a grasshopper or ladybug. Bending down to investigate she asks, "Where are its ears?" your first reaction may be one of disgust: "Don't touch that."

How you deal with your child's explorations will shape her feelings about the natural world. Your reaction can tell her that nature is something to avoid or that it is a source of endless excitement. In this instance you could say, "I don't know if it has ears, let's have a look." Or maybe you could visit the library together to find a book that will help you find the answers.

Help your child use all her senses to explore the world around her. Use words that will help her to describe what she sees, hears, smells, touches and tastes. Together you can discover a world of endless interest and excitement.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Discover fall. Talk about how the world is changing. How have the trees changed? What colors are the leaves? How do the leaves sound when you walk through them? Do you smell any burning leaves?

Citizens for Smoke-Free Air coalition formed

Residents of Pennington and Marshall counties announce the development of Citizens for Smoke-Free Air.

The coalition consists of community members who are concerned about the health hazards of second-hand smoke exposure and who believe in the right to breathe clean air.

Citizens for Smoke-Free Air meets monthly and explores ways of educating and activating the public about the poisons many children, employees and non-smokers involuntarily breathe.

Meetings are held on the third Thursday of each month from 6 to 8 p.m. at Northland Community and Technical College with supper provided by the MEETS Task Force.

Citizens for Smoke-Free Air currently list 197 supporters and encourages any community member who has been directly or indirectly affected by the effects of second-hand smoke or who believes in the importance of safe air to take a stand and join the organization.

For more information about Citizens for Smoke-Free Air, contact Brenda Russ at 683-4366 or Tammy Hansen at 874-2145.

Kiwanis holds installation banquet on September 25

Installation of officers for 2001-2002 was the main order of business conducted at a banquet of the Kiwanis on Tuesday, September 25.

Officers include Jim Hulteen, president; Angela Malone, president-elect; Barb Notvik, vice president; Galen Sylvester, past president; and Marilyn Weir, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of directors for the upcoming year are Brad Norland, Bob Christensen, Warren Worker, Duane Holland and John Jacobson.

Don Shafland was named club rep, a new position in which Shafland will serve as a liaison between the local, district and national organizations.

The installation of officers was conducted by Kiwanis Lt. Governor-Elect Cindy Braseth of Grand Forks.

The meeting also included the presentation of the Hixon award to longtime Kiwanis member Ken Murphy. Murphy joins Earl Gibson, Don Jorstad, Dave Odette, Cliff Larson and Dan Shafland who have also received this special award.

Out-going President Galen Sylvester wrapped up the meeting, reporting on a very good year and identifying some of the projects Kiwanis contributed to during the year.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

October is a rich, nostalgic time of year. I really can't imagine a turn of the weather in October which would offend me. Rain, sunshine, heat, cold, fog, even an early snow—whatever October brings seems acceptable and good.

No windstorms. No mosquitoes. No pollen. No snowdrifts. The sour late apples hang low from the tree. Golden pumpkins aplenty populate the patch.

The grass seems a richer green when it is set off by the golden leaves, and it is at its very deepest green under the yellow lights of a small-town football field.

I can't bring myself to care about high school football. Last time I attended a game, I decided it was like watching a herd of cattle on caffeine. But I do still slow down to look at the grass if I happen to drive by on a Friday evening.

In early October, combines still roar around the bean fields well into the night. Grain trucks creep along the lonely tar country highways at all hours.

Beet harvest just got going. I enjoy driving down US Highway 75 late at night during beet harvest. The brightly-lit diggers creep along the vast, flat floor of the valley like ships at sea.

US Highway 75 runs all the way from Texas to the Canadian border, but I can't imagine a flatter, lonelier stretch than the seventy-mile segment which runs from Moorhead to Crookston, just east of the Red River, through some of the richest farmland on earth.

Kragnes, Georgetown, Perley, Hendrum, Halstad, Shelly, Nielsville, Climax, and finally Eldred. You could fit the population of all those towns put together in medium-sized high school gym. Good solid people, but there's just getting to be too few of them.

Where there were once 30 farms, there is now one. Where there were 100 one-room country schools and eventually 10 town schools, there are perhaps two consolidated schools. Most churches are either gone or closed.

Where there were once five gas stations, there might be one, if you're lucky. And that station makes most of its money on pizza and cappuccino. Where there were hardware stores, grocery stores, restaurants and bars, there is now, perhaps, a bar.

Most towns around here have funeral homes which are twice as fancy as their bank. That just can't be a promising economic indicator.

On both ends of that stretch of Highway 75 are big discount stores, supermarkets, and fancy chain restaurants which draw customers away from the dying little towns.

These facts are neither good nor bad, they just are. And they will continue to be. One can preach about buying local, but how are you going to compete with Wal-Mart, or avoid buying at Wal-Mart, when they sell 100-foot extension cords for seven dollars?

But a night-time drive down Highway 75 in October allows one to forget all of these sobering economic and demographic realities. When harvest is on, the rural Red River Valley wakes up and flexes its muscles.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com ©2000 PGC

CORNERSTONE

Kirsten Melvie, Cornerstone Christian School

(Editor's note: In this edition, we welcome students of Cornerstone Christian School in Thief River Falls. They have gladly accepted the task of writing a monthly column. We believe this column will offer readers of "The Times" another insight into the thoughts and activities of students in this community.)

by Kirsten Melvie

The tragedy on September 11, 2001 has touched everyone in America in some way or another. Some people know people who know somebody who was hurt or killed in that tragedy. All of us by now certainly have seen the horrible scenes of this disaster on television or heard about it on the radio. So what can we do?

Well, not everyone can just hop in a car, drive down there and volunteer to help. What we can do, though, is pray. They pray, and pray, and pray some more. God has done and can do miracles. Although we think that it would be impossible for anyone to still be alive in that rubble, if it is God's will, there could be people still alive and trapped and it is just that no one has found them yet.

So is it wrong, as Christians, to hope that the people who did it be found and brought to justice? Of course not. In Proverbs 24:24 and 25 it says that those who rebuke the guilty will be blessed.

I am praying that people will become close to God through this tragedy and that there will be a great revival.

I think this tragedy has brought many people together and has brought out the best in people. I am proud of how Americans help people in many ways, even if they are far away. I am proud of our country! God bless America!

(Kirsten is the eighth grade daughter of Kjel and Dawn Melvie of Thief River Falls.)

Nature Belles holds meeting

The September meeting of Nature Belles Garden Club was held at the home of Mary Wiskow with Bea and Mary Wiskow serving as hostesses.

Members in attendance were Pat Swanson, Carolyn Haugen, Sue Braastad, Rita Soine, Tammy Haugen, Kristel Harlburt, Audrey Rogalla, Joan Nelson, Pat Szymanski, Betty Troska and Bea Wilson.

The organization's next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 11, at Rita Soine's home. Business will include the election of officers and meeting plans for the coming year.

Vigil to mark Domestic Violence Awareness month

Victims and survivors of domestic violence will be honored and special tribute will be paid to Minnesota women and children who lost their lives to domestic violence during the past year at a candlelight vigil at Hartz Park in Thief River Falls on Sunday, October 7, at 5 p.m.

The event will be hosted by Violence Intervention Project's staff and supporters. Those attending are asked to bring their own candles.

Following the vigil, an open house will be held at the new Violence Intervention Project facility at 1911 Greenwood Street East. Refreshments will be served, and tours of the new facility will be provided.

October is National Domestic Violence Awareness Month — a time to reflect on those whose lives have been changed forever due to the violence of another and a time to reinforce the idea that violence and abuse are behaviors which should not be tolerated in our community. Hundreds of individuals in northwest Minnesota live their lives fearing the ones they love. VIP staff and supporters ask everyone to join them in sending a message that domestic violence is not acceptable and take time to remember those who are affected by personal violence.

For more information or to find out ways that you can help, call Violence Intervention Project at (218) 681-5557 or 1-800-660-6667. All volunteer hours and donations are greatly appreciated by VIP.

Mae Nelson, 79

Thief River Falls - Mae Nelson, 79, died Sunday, September 30, 2001 at Hillcrest Nursing Home in Red Lake Falls.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. today (Wednesday, October 3) at St. John Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls with Rev. Donald Kirchner officiating. John Folland will be the organist, and the soloist will be Vanessa Anderson. Casketbearers will be Jason Langseth, Richard Nelson, Scott Molstad, Orandon Molstad, Randy Nelson and Brian Nelson. Interment will be in Telemarken Cemetery in Kratka Township of Pennington County.

Visitation was held Tuesday, October 2, from 4 to 7 p.m. with a 6 p.m. prayer service at Green Funeral Home in Thief River Falls. Visitation will also be held for one hour prior to services at the church.

Mae Lucille Spokhe was born on November 20, 1921 in Minot, N.D., the daughter of Knute and Clara (Smith) Spokhe.

She was married to Norman Waswick for a few years and then was married to Harry Hansen. On September 14, 1971, she married Clarence Nelson in Las Vegas, Nev. Mae worked as a seamstress and clerk for Tenner's Costume Shop on Hennepin Avenue in Minneapolis for some time. She and Clarence made their home in Champlin for a few years before moving to Thief River Falls in 1989.

Mae and Clarence enjoyed traveling, making trips to California, Texas, Florida and Norway. She also enjoyed crocheting and flower gardening.

Survivors include her husband, Clarence of Red Lake Falls; two stepsons, Ken (Gerrie) Nelson of Oklee and Vern (Elaine) Nelson of Thief River Falls, a stepdaughter, Jennie (Allan) Swenson of Hettinger, N.D.; 10 grandchildren; 21 great-grandchildren; three great great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews.

Mae was preceded in death by her parents; her first two husbands; a son, Arvid Hansen; five brothers; five sisters; and a stepdaughter, Doris Dalby.

Onezime Bachand, 94

Oklee - Onezime A. Bachand, 94, died Sunday, September 30, 2001 at Hillcrest Nursing Home in Red Lake Falls.

Mass of Christian burial will be held at 10 a.m. on Friday, October 5, at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Oklee with Father Dave Super and Father John Kleinwachter concelebrating. Elizabeth Rolfson will be the organist, and the song leader will be Joan Bronken. Casketbearers will be Charles Bachand, Mike Bachand, David Bachand, Casey Wiedenman, Jacob Wiedenman, Jeff Bachand and Tony Bachand. Interment will be in St. Francis Xavier Catholic Cemetery at Oklee.

Visitation will be held Thursday from 5 to 8 p.m. with a 7 p.m. prayer service at Johnson Funeral Service in Oklee. Visitation will also be held for one hour prior to services at the church Friday.

Onezime A. Bachand was born on November 25, 1906, in Lambert Township of Red Lake County, the son of Anton and Vitaline (Boucher) Bachand. As a child, he lived with his parents in Canada for a few years. He lived his entire adult life as a resident of Lambert Township, rural Brooks, where he farmed for a living.

On October 21, 1935, Onezime married Mae B. Turgeon at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church. Mae died on August 27, 1990.

Onezime served on a variety of boards and was a trustee of the church.

Survivors include three sons, Charles (Carol) Bachand and Michael (Audrey) Bachand, both of rural Brooks, and David (Mary Lynn) Bachand of Oklee; two daughters, Elizabeth (Richard) Rolfson of San Diego, Calif. and Margaret (Richard) Wiedenman of Brooklyn Park; 17 grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; a brother, Dennis Bachand of Oklee; and a sister, Laura (Emil) Nadeau of Elk River.

Onezime was preceded in death by his parents; wife; a brother, Alfred; and two sisters, Emma Hince and Maybelle Proulx.

She was preceded in death by her father.

Evangeline Pick, 91

Warroad - Evangeline A. Pick, 91, died Saturday, September 29, 2001 at a Warroad nursing home.

Mass of Christian burial was held Tuesday, October 2, at 10 a.m. at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Warroad with Father Larry Weisler and Father Pat Sullivan officiating. Margaret Marvin was the organist. Casketbearers were James Moser, Daniel Moser, Terry Roseen, John Moser, Robert Moser and Edward Foster. Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery with Helgeson Funeral Chapel of Warroad in charge of the arrangements.

Evangeline Ann Lucier was born December 16, 1909, the daughter of George and Anna Lucier. She grew up in the Twin Cities. When Evangeline was 14, she was invited to Paris to further her studies in art, but due to her young age, her parents declined the invitation. She attended St. Ann's Conservatory where she also taught art. She wrote and spoke French fluently and was a talented pianist. When she was 17, Evangeline worked for St. Paul Book and Stationary, and she later worked at the Telephone Company and Golden Rule (now Donaldsons).

Evangeline met John Pick when he was attending Hamlin University and was living in her parents' boarding house. They dated and were married on April 22, 1933 in St. Paul. The couple later moved to Warroad where they farmed with John's parents. Evangeline helped with the bottling and delivery of farm milk and continued her painting in her spare time. When John began commercial fishing and mink ranch operations, she helped lift the nets and did the bookkeeping. She later worked as a waitress and cook at Pallie Martin's Pool Hall and Cal's Doghouse. During the 1960s, she worked as a proofreader for her son-in-law at the Warroad Pioneer. John died in May of 1972.

Evangeline was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and its Ladies Guild.

She enjoyed painting, baking, working on crafts, gardening, flowers and especially, spending time with her daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Evangeline is survived by three daughters, Lorraine (Marvin) Kellogg of Longville, Joanne (Wayne) Roseen of rural Roseau and Kathryn (Dale) Moser of rural Salol; seven grandchildren; and 13 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband; parents; a brother, Joseph Lucier; a sister, Angeline Foure; and a great-granddaughter, Kristie Roseen.

Myrtle Johnson, 92

Glenwood - Myrtle A. Johnson, 92, formerly of Thief River Falls, died Sunday, September 30, 2001 at Lakeview Good Samaritan Nursing Home in Glenwood.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, October 4, at Ebenezer Lutheran Church, rural Oklee, with Rev. Robert Dahlen officiating. Gelene Lundeen will be the organist, and grandchildren David Thorson, Diane Duncan and Doreen Thorson will be the soloists. Casketbearers will be David Thorson, Aaron Duncan, Robert Manderud, Richard Manderud and Andy Peterson. Interment will be in Ebenezer Cemetery in Mayfield Township of Pennington County.

Visitation will be held today (Wednesday, October 3) from 4 to 8 p.m. with a 6:30 p.m. prayer service at Green Funeral Home in Thief River Falls. Visitation will also be held for one hour prior to services at the church Thursday.

Myrtle Amanda Peterson was born on May 13, 1909 in Deer Park Township of Pennington County, the daughter of John and Esther (Peterson) Peterson. She grew up in Deer Park Township and attended Deer Park School. For some time, Myrtle worked as a cook in Grand Forks and Fargo, N.D. She also operated her own doughnut shop in Minneapolis for a short time.

On November 2, 1938, she was united in marriage to Palmer Johnson in a triple wedding that included Palmer's twin sisters at Ebenezer Lutheran Church. The couple began their married life on the farm in 1939, and following Palmer's death on November 17, 1982, Myrtle continued to make her home there until 1985. She resided in Thief River Falls until 1997 when she moved to Sauk Centre. Because of her health, Myrtle spent several winters in Tucson, Ariz. She resided at Lakeview Nursing Home in Glenwood from January of 2000 until the time of her death.

Myrtle was an active member of the Ebenezer Ladies Aid, Eagles Auxiliary and Sons of Norway.

While on the farm she enjoyed animals, especially small dogs. She also enjoyed cooking, baking bread, making lefse, sharing her cooking and baked goods with others, attending church, visiting, playing cards, dancing and especially, spending time with her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Myrtle is survived by a daughter, JoAnn (Wayne) Thorson of Sauk Centre; a son, Roger (Margaret) Johnson of Spring Creek, Nev.; five grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; a sister-in-law; and a brother-in-law.

She was preceded in death by her husband; parents; a sister, Ida Manderud; three brothers, Adolph, Melford and Joseph Peterson; and several nieces and nephews.

Bemidji forensics lab began processing evidence October 1

Minnesota law enforcement agencies will have a new resource for solving crimes when the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension forensics laboratory in Bemidji began processing evidence on October 1.

Housed in a newly constructed 26,000 square-foot building, the lab will analyze crime-related evidence for law enforcement agencies in about 27 northern counties. Until now, only the BCA facility in St. Paul processed evidence for all of Minnesota's 410 police departments and 87 sheriffs' offices.

"Law enforcement agencies need to solve crimes and keep communities safe," said BCA Forensic Science Laboratory Director Frank Dolejsi. "The BCA is here to support them with a tough job, and we're proud to give them this new facility."

The new lab will assist law enforcement with combating one of the state's fastest growing crime problems, the proliferation of methamphetamine labs, says Dolejsi. It will help eliminate a backlog of unprocessed evidence for non-priority cases.

"Our local law enforcement partners really fought for this new building," said Commissioner of Public Safety Charlie Weaver. "We are looking forward to working with them more closely on crimes that affect quality of life in their communities."

The lab will first provide analysis of drugs, firearms, tool marks and fingerprints. A DNA section will be added early next year. The lab will eventually provide crime scene services, such as blood spatter documentation and use of alternative light source for evidence detection.

With a second forensic laboratory available to them, law enforcement agencies will be able to address crimes such as burglaries and drug offenses more efficiently, said Dennis Delmont, executive director of the Minnesota Chief of Police Association.

"We're very pleased with the way the BCA and Commissioner Weaver responded to a growing problem for our members," said Delmont. "These crimes aren't the same priority level as homicides and rapes, but they are still very important to communities."

The location of the Bemidji facility also means officers in northern Minnesota will no longer have to drive to the Twin Cities to deliver evidence.

Jim Dougherty is the assistant director in charge of the new lab, which will include a staff of nine scientists and support personnel. The building will also house BCA agents assigned to the Bemidji area.

Construction of the building began in September of 2000. Funding and authorization were approved during the 1999 legislative session.

Goodridge student awarded BSU scholarship

A student from Goodridge has received a $600 Troppman Scholarship from Bemidji State University for the 2001-2002 academic year.

Kari Swanson is a freshman majoring in mathematics at BSU. She is a graduate of Goodridge Public High School where she was a member of the National Honor Society, student council, band and Knowledge Bowl team. She also was a participant in Girls' State and recipient of the Goodridge Math Award.

The Troppman Scholarship Award Program was established in memory of the late Fred Troppman, a pioneer Bemidji businessman who was a longtime supporter of BSU and its students.

Bemidji presents more than $650,000 in academic, talent and leadership scholarships each year.

Garden workshop held at Baudette

"Perennial Inspirations for the Northern Gardener" was the theme of the recent 13th District Horticulture Society garden workshop at Baudette.

Mike Hegar of Chanhassen, co-owner of Ambergate Gardens, was the guest speaker, showing slides and sharing information about perennials that are suitable for various types of growing situations. He also offered a number of plants and gardening items for sale.

Ruth Lee of North Star Garden Club, Baudette, gave a demonstration on various propagation methods. Lee likes to take cuttings from her geraniums in the middle of summer and then start new plants to winter for her next year's garden.

Tami Bredeson, president of the North Star Garden Club, welcome workshop participants, and dinner music was provided by Phyllis Evans and Janet Peterson.

Officers for the next two years were elected and include: Norma Hanson, Goodridge, Deer Park Garden Club, president; Betty Mohrbacher, Warroad, Gro-Rite Garden Club, vice president; Alva Larson, Warroad, Green Thumb Garden Club, secretary; and Karen Andol, Badger, Gro-Rite Garden Club, treasurer. The appointed officers, historian and publicity chair, have yet to be named.

District gardening awards were also presented. Recipients of the Distinguished Gardener Award was Luella Peterson, Roseau, Green Thumb Garden Club. Receiving awards for Outstanding District Service were Ione Carlson, Roosevelt, Green Thumb Garden Club; LaVonne Knudson, Warroad, Green Thumb Garden Club; and Jean Pederson, Roseau, NaChur Garden Club.

The door prizes that were awarded were donated by Noble Drug, Ben Franklin, Floral Expressions, Four Seasons Gifts, West Fargo Bank, Jerri's Sweat Shop, True Value Hardware, Bredesons, Border State Bank and Ruth's Florals and Needle Art.

A silver tea concluded the event as participants were thanked for their "willingness to share their expertise and enthusiasm with 'geographically challenged' gardeners."

Skadsem granddaughter wins contest

At the 4th annual Wyoming Hunting and Fishing Expo banquet at Casper, Wy. September 8, Nikki D. Skadsem was named the first place winner for her essay, "Exploring Your Wildlife Legacy."

Nikki is the daughter of Mike and Vicky Skadsem of Gillette, Wy., granddaughter of Lucille Skadsem of Newfolden and great-granddaughter of Lawrence Theis and Irene Theis, both of Begley.

For her essay, she received a $200 savings bond from the Wyoming Biologists Association. She was also the recipient of a Youth Hunter Skills and Stewardship Award for which she received a guided elk hunt donated by a Moran, Wy. outfitter.

In addition, Nikki was the winner of the 15-to 18-year-old division of the Youth Hunter Education Challenge, a competition which included shooting proficiency and field exams of wildlife knowledge, wildlife identification, hunting skills, hunting ethics, outdoor skills and firearms safety and handling.

Nikki is a senior at Campbell County High School in Gillette, Wy. and plans to attend college after graduation, pursuing a career in wildlife biology.

Minnesotans' seat belt use increases

The number of Minnesota drivers and passengers using seat belts has reached 74 percent, according to a survey recently conducted by the Office of Traffic Safety in the Minnesota Department of Public Safety. That increase reflects an average annual one percent gain from previous years when seat belt usage was at 72 percent in 1999 and 73 percent last year.

"This is progress," said DPS Traffic Safety Director Kathy Swanson. "We believe this increase is due in part to our public safety efforts, such as the Safe and Sober program and ongoing law enforcement training."

Safe and Sober is a federally-funded program that awards grants to educate the public and increase law enforcement of traffic laws.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration released information showing that the number of people killed by drunken drivers increased last year for the first time since 1995.

"Seat belts are the best defense law-abiding and unsuspecting drivers have against a drinking driver who can strike anywhere, anytime, and the simplest way of preventing traffic deaths and injuries among Minnesotans," said Swanson.

Hailey Wilde (left) helped a U.S. Fish and Wildlife official band a duck at Agassiz National Fish and Wildlife Refuge near Middle River on Tuesday September 25, during its annual "Duck Banding With the Public." The event was originally planned for Saturday, September 22, but was rescheduled due to poor weather conditions. The project helps track where ducks go, their age when recovered and general distribution.

Thief River Falls Public Library celebrates a century of history

• And it all began with a group of women. . . . .

(Note: The following is a collection of excerpts from the historical booklet of the Thief River Falls Public Library, the first of five installments which will appear in The Times during the month of October. The booklet, compiled by Librarian Heidi Hoks for the library's 100th birthday, will be available in its entirety at the library later in the month.)

In 1901, wives of a few civic leaders were discussing ways to improve their community and determined that a well-read and well-educated community was one such step. The idea of organizing a public library grew out of this discussion and the women placed this article in the March 14, 1901 newspaper to advertise their intentions.

"A number of ladies will meet at the residence of Mrs. J.J. Crowe tomorrow afternoon and discuss the advisability of establishing a free public library in Thief River Falls. This city is large enough to support an institution of this character, and the ladies should be encouraged by the public in general. A donation can probably be secured from Andrew Carnegie."

Obviously the idea intrigued many people and other women also came to the meeting to lend their support. It was reported in the next week's newspaper that a large number of local women met to organize a public library and elected Miss May Vaughan to chair a committee to assemble a collection of books. While she and her committee were to gather books from various individuals in the community, they were also charged with making recommendations for the initial purchases. Books, at that time, were a valuable commodity, and only those people who were well off were able to afford having books in their homes.

By April of 1901, a permanent organization — the Thief River Falls Library Association — was formed. There are conflicting reports as to whether Mrs. James Meehan or Mrs. F.H. Kratka served as the first president, but the majority of sources indicated it was Mrs. James Meehan. . . From records, it appears that all the wives of major business owners in the city became members of this association.

Fund-raising for the library now began in earnest. Because of the scarcity of books and the public support shown for the cause, the local association decided to begin with a subscription drive. So during the first year of the library's existence, people were charged a "subscription" fee (or membership fee) in order to be allowed to take out books from the library. However, in order to receive a "guaranty card" (library card), a reliable person — other than the person applying for the card — had to vouch for the person and co-sign for their card.

Today, it seems impossible to believe that someone would pay a fee and then have to have a witness to vouch for their trustworthiness in order to get a card, but the citizens of Thief River Falls were willing to do so in order to get a library started in town.

The sum of $500 was raised that first year by public subscription, and this money was used to purchase books. A complete set of the works of Charles Dickens plus 100 other books were purchased for this sum.

After this initial effort, the library was supported not only by subscription but also by the proceeds raised by teas, balls and suppers. . .

Library balls were gala affairs, opening the social season in the fall of each year. . .

The January 2, 1902 Thief River Falls News (a newspaper) talks about the first library ball thus: "The ball given by the Library Society New Year's Eve was attended by a large crowd, and all had an enjoyable time."

Another ball was held on April 4, 1902 and was advertised in the April 3, 1902 newspaper. This, also, turned out to be a great means of generating revenue and so other fund-raising balls for the library were held on August 15, 1902, October 2, 1903, New Year's Eve of 1903 and November 24, 1904. It appears from newspaper accounts that these balls were originally held to raise money to start the library but then ceased until they began as annual fall events in 1912. During that year, the following ad announced the upcoming ball:

"The Library needs new books, more magazines, newspapers, a reading table and lamp, magazine and newspaper racks, paint for the walls and matting for the floor. Every dollar taken in for the Ball will help buy some of these things."

Library board member Marj Lavalier (center) and librarian Heidi Hoks (right) presented a plaque to Gretchen Beito at the Thief River Falls Public Library's 100th birthday kick-off event Sunday afternoon. Special tribute was paid to Beito who has been a very active library advocate for many years.

Actor/playwright Kathy Ray received rave reviews from those who enjoyed her one-woman play, "Coya Comes Back," at the Thief River Falls Public Library's 100th birthday kick-off event Sunday afternoon. In the play, Coya Knutson returned from the hereafter to tell recently elected Minnesota Congresswoman Betty McCollum about her political experiences and, in the process, offer her a little advice. Ray's performance was particularly fitting as Gretchen Beito, author of Coya Come Home: A Congresswoman's Journey, was honored at the event for her many years of advocacy for the local library as well as libraries throughout the state.

Boy Scouts hold Fall Camporee September 21-23

Despite the cold and rain, the annual Boy Scout Fall Camporee went off without a hitch September 21-23 at the Thief River Falls Sportsmen's Club.

The theme for this year's event was "Fun in 2001." Host troops included Troop 57 of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Troop 59 of Zion Lutheran Church and Troop 199 of St. John Lutheran Church. Guests included 10 troops from northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota.

Friday evening was designated as the beginning of the Camporee with registration and camp set-up. The evening concluded with Senior Patrol Leader and adult leader meetings along with a cracker barrel.

Saturday began with a full breakfast at each campsite followed by an opening flag ceremony. Throughout the day, troops participated in events such as fire building contests, a Norwegian waddle race, Atomic Pioneering, Torpedo Bang-Bang and the rifle range.

Late afternoon provided the youth with some free time to play football, toss a Frisbee around and compete in the campsite judging contest. After supper, troops were challenged to create the overall best dessert in their campsites to be judged by a panel of "dessert-eating professionals."

At nightfall, participants were invited to a Scout church service conducted by Rev. Dennis Raymond of Zion Lutheran Church. After the service, the awards for best Scout spirit, best campsite and best dessert were named, and the evening concluded with a roaring campfire and adult cracker barrel.

Sunday morning served as a time for cleanup and breaking down camp. Hans Helgeset, District 12 scout executive, noted his appreciation to all the participants, the Thief River Falls Sportsmen's Club and adult leaders who made the event possible.

Fire building was perhaps made a bit more challenging by weather factors, but the rain and cold didn't dampen the spirits of Scouts attending the annual District 12 Boy Scout Camporee held September 21-23 at the Thief River Falls Sportsman's Club. (Submitted Photo)

Lashing was one of the skills practiced by Boy Scouts at the District 12 Camporee held at the Sportsman's Club near Thief River Falls September 21-23. Thief River Falls Boy Scouts from Troop 57 of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Troop 199 of St. John Lutheran Church and Troop 59 of Zion Lutheran Church served as hosts to 10 other troops from northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota at the annual event. Muscular Dystrophy Association offers flu shots

The Muscular Dystrophy Association will again offer free flu shots to people in Eastern North Dakota and Western Minnesota who are affected by any of the more than 40 neuromuscular disorders in the Associations program.

Progressive muscle diseases can damage all muscles, including those responsible for breathing. This complication makes influenza particularly hazardous for people who have muscular dystrophy, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease) or other neuromuscular disorders.

For information about obtaining a free flu shot, call the MDA office in Fargo at 701-235-1988, MDA headquarters at 800-572-1717 or visit www.mdausa.org.

Grants available to artists with disabilities

VSA arts of Minnesota will award six $1,000 grants to Minnesota artists with disabilities through its Artist Recognition Grant Program, funded by the Jerome Foundation. The program's goals are to:

- recognize excellence in arts produced by persons with disabilities;
- provide financial awards and tangible encouragement to artists with disabilities so their work in the arts might continue;
- identify Minnesota artists with disabilities who are dedicated to making arts production and/or presentation a central part of their lives.

The program is open to individuals in all art disciplines – visual, performing, written, media, etc. (including grant recipients from 1996-98).

The application deadline is Friday, November 9, 2001. For an application, call 612-332-3888 or 1-800-801-3883 (in Greater Minnesota) or email jon.mn@vsarts.org. If you need a format other than standard print, specify PC diskette, audio tape, Braille or large print.

LSS to host caregivers workshop October 11

Lutheran Social Service will host a caregivers workshop on Thursday, October 11, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

Speakers and topics for the conference will include Virginia Hanson of Lutheran Social Service discussing stress management, Carla Abdo from Legal Services of NWMN presenting legal issues and program opportunities for seniors, Vicki Muehuler, lay chaplain at Emmanuel Nursing Home in Detroit Lakes discussing the importance of balance in our lives, Glenice Johnson from the Minnesota Extension Service presenting "Lighten Up with Lena," and finally, a video presentation discussing the importance of care for the caregiver.

Cost of the conference is $15 which includes all materials, lunch and snacks. Scholarships are available. Registration deadline is October 5. For more information, call 1-800-317-4845.

BER IS FIRE PREVENTION MONTH

2001 THIEF RIVER FALLS FIRE DEPARTMENT

WE SALUTE OUR FIREFIGHTERS!

Top 10 Fire Prevention Tips:

1. Install smoke detectors on every level of your home and in every bedroom.
2. Test smoke detectors every month.
3. Change your batteries in your smoke detectors every 6 months when you change your clocks when daylight savings time ends and begins.
4. Replace any smoke alarm that is 10 years old or older.
5. Keep matches and lighters out of the reach of children.
6. Provide smokers with the appropriate ash trays. Never smoke in bed or when tired.
7. Keep an eye on cooking.
8. Do not overload circuits or outlets. Eliminate extension cords.
9. Inspect furnaces and heating appliances annually.
10. Learn how to use a fire extinguisher and have one handy.

HOW TO SURVIVE A FIRE!

If fire strikes, following a few rules will help you SURVIVE!

DO'S:

- Before you open a door, touch near the top with the back of your hand & feel for heat. If the door is hot or you see smoke curling under it, do not open the door. If it is cool to the touch open the door slowly. Check for smoke. If you see smoke, close the door and exit elsewhere.
- Close windows before you leave, if you safely can, and close the door behind you.
- Crawl below the smoke – the coolest and freshest air is toward the floor.
- Use the stairs, never take an elevator. Smoke rises and you could be trapped inside a stalled elevator.
- Go to a prearranged meeting place outside and call the fire department.

DON'TS:

- Don't run through a fire.
- Don't risk your life to save a pet.
- Don't try to save valuables.
- Don't worry about how you look.

If a fire strikes, following a few rules will help you SURVIVE!

Every Household Should Have A Fire Escape Plan

Fires and burns remain the [illegible] leading cause of unintentional injury-related deaths among children ages 14 and under. Children, especially those of ages five and under, are at the greatest risk from home fire-related death and injury. A less acute perception of danger, less control of their environment, and a limited ability to react properly to a fire contribute to this excess risk.

Each year, US fire departments respond to more than 400,000 residential fires, or one every 71 seconds. Smoke alarms are extremely effective at preventing fire-related death and injury. The chances of dying in a residential fire are cut in half when a smoke alarm is present. Detecting the fire is only the first step. Having a planned escape plan can make the difference in surviving a fire.

Things to do now, before a fire occurs:

- Draw a floor plan of your [illegible] ways out of every room.
- Discuss the escape routes with every member of your household, include special needs of individuals in your plan.
- Pick a meeting place outside of your home. Tell everyone to meet there after they've escaped so you can make sure everyone is out. Call the Fire Department from outside your home.
- Hold a home fire drill [illegible]. Pretend that some escape routes are blocked by smoke and fire and practice using alternative exits.

COLORED INK

Monday morning, picket signs were ready for employees of the two unions that went on strike. Members of the unions in Thief River Falls have their picket line set up in front of Northland Community and Technical College, where the majority of the striking union members in the community are employed.

State employees go on Strike

According to the negotiator, the overall package proposed by the state, "would expose employees and their families to up to $1,900 per year per person and $3,800 per year per family in out of pocket medical costs."

The union "proposed a limit of $800 per person and $1,600 per family for medical out of pocket costs." According to the negotiator, "Overall, the Union's proposal would cap exposure at $1,000 per year per person and $2,000 per year per family."

The overall difference on health insurance is about four percent of premium.

The other issue is pay. According to a news release from MAPE, "The state offered the 10,500-member MAPE a onetime 4 percent raise for the life of the contract that is delayed six months until Jan. 2, 2002, plus a onetime $500 bonus to those who have reached the top of their pay scales on July 1, 2002."

"The MAPE negotiators lowered their offer to a 4.5 percent increase each year (from 6.3 percent the first year and 4.2 percent the second year.)"

Who are the local members of the two unions?

Hauschild said locally, most of the union members are at Northland Community and Technical College. She said there are a total of about 60 at the college and WorkForce Center.

There are other members of the unions in the community. Hauschild thought most of them would join the picket line in front of the college.

AFSCME members at the college generally include most of the maintenance stuff, clerical and administrative support personnel.

MAPE members at the college generally include personnel involved in student support staff positions, such as placement, financial services, business, marketing and minority services.

Hauschild said these people are generally found behind the scenes.

There are about 10,500 members of MAPE, and about 19,000 members of AFSCME.

Hauschild said she has been encouraged by the support shown members of the two unions in Thief River Falls. Some students have joined the staff on the picket lines, and other staff have been supportive either vocally or by occasionally bringing rolls and doughnuts for the striking employees. Some college staff have also joined the strikers on the picket line during their own time.

Hauschild said NCTC President Dr. Orley Gunderson has been very understanding.

Before union employees left on Friday, Hauschild said they relinquished all state property, which includes keys and codes.

Hauschild said she wasn't exactly sure when talks would begin again, but said she they have been told that talks would begin sometime on Tuesday, and negotiations again sometime later toward the weekend.

Plight of children inspire Walk of Hope

said Ball. "The needless slaughter of hundreds of thousands of innocent children must stop and only people working together can stop it."

Today, Ball said children are living and dying in the streets of major cities all around the world. While Ball is trying to raise $10 million, raising money is the smallest part of his mission. Ball said the biggest element of his mission is to inspire people to take action to help children

Don't underestimate his conviction.

The tragedy that beset the World Trade Center in New York and Pentagon in Washington, D.C., was and is horrific, Ball said. It also caused a lot of people to take a stand and take action. Ball would like to have the kind of impact on people to cause them to take action too regarding this issue.

"As a Canadian citizen I fight for American children, and all other children of the world every day. I fight for American children every day on this journey and love this country as much as any American. As I do battle for children in this country, I would do battle for this country. That's the strength of my conviction," said Ball.

Ball said he will work with local charities which work for children. Organizations that would like to receive help are encouraged to go to their Web site at www.walkofhope.org. There are no strings attached. Their story will be published on the Web site, which received 16,000 hits in its first week, and is published in their literature. They will also be invited to participate in all major and minor events in North America, and in annual events.

Individuals who would like to participate can do so by making a donation, praying for the safety and success of the Walk of Hope, or by becoming a volunteer. "I guarantee volunteers," said Ball, "that it will change their lives forever." Ball said they have about 60 team members, but they need 300, so there's a great need for help. Donations and more information about Walk of Hope can be obtained by calling their toll free number (1-888-535-9999) or visiting their Web site at www.walkofhope.org.

Recently, Ball found another way for people to help. He's encouraging families, friends and neighbors to save the tabs from aluminum cans and the cans and send the donation to Walk of Hope. His goal is to collect 100 tons of can tabs. These donations will be used to buy life-saving medical devices for children who do not normally qualify for them.

Ball said a nine-year-old blind boy named Robert is saving aluminum tabs to get a wheelchair for a boy who desperately needs one. Robert, he said is blind because of a tumor. Recently, he learned that his own cancer has returned. Ball said he finds the youth's dedication and desire to help someone else deeply touching.

Aluminum tabs and donations can be sent to: Walk of Hope, Inc. PMB 241-14700 N.F.L.W. Blvd. #157 Scottsdale, AZ 85260.

Ball said local individuals, businesses and organizations have also agreed to help. Tabs can be dropped off in Thief River Falls at Super One and New Life Fellowship church.

Ball is accompanied on his trek by his wife Dianne, who drives the support van, which is packed with their travel gear and public relations campaign materials. He is also supported by a network of volunteers. Among the members of the support team are Greggory R. Smith, child protege, Les Brown, an internationally known speaker, and Vicki Kieth, recipient of the Order of Canada.

Ball lives in Toronto with his wife Dianne. He has two married sons. His background includes careers as a chef, journeyman floor mechanic, and telecommunications cost consultant. He has owned and operated two marketing companies, a publishing company and a telephone company.

closeness of the airport, are very important factors. He added that many of their customers do not drive or are unable to drive, and the three-hour round trip to Bemidji, or two-hour round trip to Grand Forks would be just too much.

Many extra services come with a small-town airport. Travelers are often greeted by people they know. There's the $5 electrical plug-in service for vehicles parked at the airport during winter, and many other small-town extras. Recently, a traveler's daughter left her wallet behind at the airport. The traveler called back and the wallet had not only been found and put in a safe place, but it still had the cash left in it.

Walseth believes part of the problem has to do with the allocation of seats to Thief River Falls. He said he's not sure what the allocation is, but said it is not half of every flight. Thief River Falls can sell only 10 to 12 seats per flight and, prior to the withdrawal of a flight earlier last spring, many of the flights were booked full.

Walseth said that if Northwest pulls out it would definitely affect his sales. He added that the travel agency business is already dealing with low margins. Last month Northwest lowered the cap on commissions.

If Northwest does pull out he said he would have to find something to accommodate travelers, such as a shuttle service.

In addition to customer travel, Arctic Cat uses Northwest to ship parts in, and the medical community uses the service to transport medical supplies and transplant organs, such as eyes, which are vital.

Shefland's Flying Service

When you're a small business and the one steady source of income you have says it's leaving, it's serious, said an employee of Shefland's Flying Service in Thief River Falls.

Shefland's Flying Service, which has been at the regional airport in Thief River Falls for eight or nine years, is the Fixed Based Operator at the airport. A Fixed Based Operator is somewhat akin to a co-op gas station; it provides fuel and other services.

Joe Cornelius said he is concerned about the situation, but has a "wait-and-see" attitude. He added that he wished more people would use the service.

Mayor Borsheim

Thief River Falls Mayor Mark Borsheim said he remains "extremely optimistic." He said he has heard that Northwest is willing to operate with a subsidy; and, an amendment to a bill added $120 million to continue funding of essential air service. With the state's history of supporting essential air service communities, Borsheim said he believes Northwest will continue to operate with the subsidy. He added, however, that it will take a lot of effort on the part of everyone in the community to make it work.

Frequent Flyer

Not all people who fly out of Thief River Falls are business people or people taking vacations.

"I hope they don't stop service to Thief River Falls," said Heather Cavalier of Fertile.

Cavalier transports her 10-year-old son Corbin every week to the Thief River Falls Regional Airport so that he can go to the Minnesota State Academy for the Deaf in Faribault.

Cavalier said Corbin loves the people at Thief River Falls because they are so nice to him. She said they are so friendly, and they make sure the flight attendants know he's deaf and what kind of pop he likes.

Every Friday, Cavalier drives to Bemidji to pick up Corbin. She explained that when Northwest cut out the Friday afternoon flight, they had to drive to Bemidji to pick him up. That adds another half hour to their drive time and, because of the time the flight leaves, Corbin misses a half day of school.

It may not seem like a lot, said Cavalier, but it cuts into the time with her family, and the weekend. She has three other children at home, one of which is five years old, and two others who have already left. As it is, the drive to Thief River Falls takes an hour. The drive is long enough and worse in the winter. It's also a lot to ask when your son is only 10 years old.

LHBN program offers depression screening

Each year, between 17 and 20 million Americans develop some form of depression. Those thinking they may have depression are urged to attend a National Depression Screening Day program at Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Warren.

The Warren Living at Home/Block Nurse program will offer presentations and free, anonymous depression screenings to local residents. The presentations will be held from noon to 1 p.m. and 3:30 to 4:30 p.m., and screenings will take place between 1 and 6 p.m.

People with depression often feel alone, not realizing that depression affects many people. In fact, one out of every five adults may experience depression at some point in their lives. Other surprising facts about this often misunderstood disorder include:

- Twice as many women as men suffer from depression, but risks for bipolar disorder (manic depression) are similar in men and women;
- Dysthymia is a mild form of depression that lasts two years or more;
- The World Health Organization estimates that by the year 2020, unipolar major depression will be the second-most burdensome disease in the world, surpassing respiratory infection and tuberculosis; and
- Teen suicide rates have increased more than 300 percent since the 1950s.

Common symptoms of depression include feelings of sadness, loss of pleasure in usual activities, feelings of hopelessness, helplessness and worthlessness, changes in sleep or appetite, loss of energy, restlessness and thoughts of death or suicide. Manic depression also includes feelings of euphoria and/or agitation.

Unfortunately, fewer than half of those suffering from the disorder actually receive treatment; however, depression is one of the most treatable of illnesses, with the vast majority of sufferers showing improvement in as little as eight weeks.

The depression screen day event will be held on one-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon. For many, the shock and numbness brought on by these horrible acts will begin to wear off. For some, however, some grief may linger and deepen into depression. Still others may be faced with the initial onset of post traumatic stress disorder.

Everyone is welcome to attend the Oct. 11 event. Our Savior's Lutheran Church is located at 220 West Johnson in Warren. For more information, call (218) 745-4005.

City prepares response to plans to cut air service

ty and upheaval in the industry, and that details and an interpretation of a new bill that was passed that provides an additional funding for the essential air service program have not been completed.

In its objection to the request for termination and its request for subsidies to continue service, Thief River Falls will probably state that it has been identified as an essential air carrier city, which means service is vital to the region. It will point to schedules, availability and pricing as other factors that led to declining enplanements (use). It will also point to "leakage," which refers to Northwest's claim that approximately 55 percent of Thief River Falls or area residents who use Northwest to fly, are now flying out of other locations, such as Grand Forks and Bemidji, as evidence that there is demand for service. It will also show that prior to a change in schedule and the elimination of one flight, enplanements at the airport were growing at a rate of 8.8 percent. Now, enplanements are being maintained but are not growing.

Northwest has also claimed that Thief River Falls has not been meeting its quota for enplanements; although, city officials say they don't know how many seats are available to passengers enplaning at Thief River Falls Regional Airport. Several officials said they had anecdotal information indicating that 50 percent of the seats that were supposed to be available are not available to passengers leaving from Thief River Falls.

"There's a problem when you cannot get a seat out of Thief River Falls but you can at Bemidji, and there's still room on the plane," said Don Stewart, community development director.

Chris Twomey, chief executive officer and president at Arctic Cat in Thief River Falls, pointed out that his business needs flights that can get people out of here and back in one day so they can do business, and flights that easily connect to international flights. This is not possible with the current schedule.

Twomey said it's important to point out that this is not just a Thief River Falls issue. Air service is vital to the region, he said. There are many businesses and individuals in the region who depend on this service, and for it not to be available would cause an economic hardship.

While they only have a short time before the October 8 deadline, representatives of Thief River Falls plan to contact representatives of other communities in the region, and especially businesses to ask for their support.

Twomey said it is especially important for those businesses that can define an economic hardship and International connections, to write letters of support.

Those letters should be addressed or delivered to:

- The Honorable Norman Mineta, Secretary, United States Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590; or,
- Mr. Dennis DeVany, Director, Chief, EAS and Domestic Analysis, X-53, U.S. Department of Transportation, 400 Seventh Street, S.W., Room 6417I, Washington, D.C. 20590; and
- a copy should be sent or delivered to Ron Lindberg, public works director, 405 East Third Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

The impact of Thief River Falls' proximity to Grand Forks was also discussed. Federal statute states that a community may not succeed in its application for essential air service community subsidies when the community is within 70 miles of a "medium hub city." When asked whether Grand Forks or Fargo meet the definition of a "medium hub airport," City Attorney Paul Ihle said they do not.

Ron Lindberg, public works director, said there are 82 cities throughout the United States receiving federal essential air service community subsidies.

Participating in the meeting Monday were: Mark Borsheim, mayor, Senator LeRoy Stumpf, Valerie Solem, representative for Sen. Mark Dayton, Wally Sparby, representative for Congressman Collin Peterson, Chris Twomey, chief executive officer and president of Arctic Cat, Don Stewart, community development director, Ron Lindberg, public works director, Paul Ihle, city attorney, and Bob Wurst.

Thief River Falls 40-0 winner over Duluth Central...

Prowlers register shutout

Duluth Central put together a balanced attack in Friday's Super Sea Range Conference high school football game against Thief River Falls. Not a very effective offense, but balanced nonetheless. Shut out 40-0, the Trojans were limited to just 52 yards of total offense – 26 on the ground and 26 in the air.

"The defense played outstanding," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "They really stepped it up. We did not miss many assignments." Or tackles.

It was Thief River Falls' first shutout since a 50-0 victory over Virginia midway through the 1998 season. It was also the Prowlers' third straight win after two season-opening losses and maintains their first place conference tie with Duluth East and Duluth Central at 3-1 in league play.

"Their confidence is at an all-time high right now," noted Mumm. "We're not very big; we're undersized every time we step on the field. But the kids believe in themselves. When they stand in front of a mirror, they see something."

The Prowlers scored on their first three possessions, then stalled before getting the offense going again at the end.

First scoring drive, a 9-play, 74-yard march, featured a 28-yard sprint to the outside by halfback Jon Swanson and a pair of 12-yard runs through the middle by fullback Aric Berg – the second one putting him into the the end zone 4:55 into the game. Stephan Hahn's conversion kick made it 7-0.

Two big plays covered most of the ground on a six-play, 75-yard touchdown drive that doubled the difference to 14-0 with 1:52 gone in the second quarter. First, Swanson, after appearing to be stopped cold at the line of scrimmage, ran out of the arms of tacklers for a 22-yard gain. On the next snap, Dan Almquist picked his way through the left side of the Central defense on a 44-yard touchdown run.

A 34-yard gain on an inside counter by Swanson carried the ball to the Trojans' 10-yard line, and he scored on a fourth-and-goal from a yard out with 5:24 remaining. Hahn's 3-for-3 first half made it 21-0.

The Prowlers came up empty-handed on their final first half possession, then failed to pick up a single first down the first three times they got their hands on the ball in the second half.

The offensive slowdown changed abruptly, however, when quarterback Robby Anderson found Almquist open on the left side and the play turned into a 76-yard touchdown with 47.6 seconds left in the third quarter.

"We had a good start, then we bogged down," acknowledged Mumm. "Give Central credit. They put 9-10 guys in the box and shut down our running game. We were looking for different things to try. The pass got it going. Danny ran a nice pattern and Robby stood in the pocket and made a good throw. You get the ball to Danny in the open field like that and good things are going to happen."

It ignited an offensive outburst for the Prowlers, who scored three touchdowns over a series of seven plays.

Trent Christensen went off left tackle for a seven-yard touchdown run with 9:22 to play and Dane Kjono got to the outside on a 58-yard scoring sprint with 6:14 left.

The Prowlers finished with 459 yards of offense. Swanson, even though he was slowed by an ankle injury suffered in a 35-29 win at Grand Rapids a week earlier, wound up with 158 yards on 14 carries.

"For a kid with a bad ankle, Jon runs pretty well," offered Mumm.

The Prowlers will be at Proctor Friday.

TRF wins Fosston/Bagley Invitational

Cami Hendrickson, Brittany Haviland, Allyson Helling, and Chelsea Haviland combined to set pool records in both the 200 and 400 freestyle relays Saturday to lead Thief River Falls to a championship performance at the Fosston/Bagley Invitational girls high school swim meet.

The Prowlers finished the day with 288 points, followed by Roseau with 215, Fosston/Bagley 211, Detroit Lakes 191, Staples-Motley 160, Perham 122, and Crookston 115.

"The girls swam their hearts out," said Thief River Falls coach Jill Buck. "They swam great."

Chelsea Haviland, in addition to being part of the two record-setting relay teams, also won the 50 and 100 freestyle races.

The two relay teams had their best times of the year, while individual personal-best clockings were turned in by Hendrickson, 200 freestyle; Brittany Haviland, 100 butterfly; and Katie Pribula, 500 freestyle.

"This was a very proud day for these girls when their team was announced the champions of the meet," offered Buck. "They deserved it. They worked hard."

Thief River Falls is 3-1 volleyball winner over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo

Kelly Bendickson had 13 kills, Meagan Lunke collected 39 assists and Kayla Loe came up with six service aces Thursday as Thief River Falls beat host Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 15-4, 14-16, 15-10, 15-8 in high school volleyball.

The Prowlers, who bumped their record to 5-13-1, played solid volleyball from start to finish, according to co-head coach Erika Jensen. "That's the most fun any of us have had so far this year," she said. "They worked really hard as a team and they stayed positive the entire night. It was a very big step for us."

Beth Padilla of the Prowlers chased down a volley for a backhand return in a Thief River Falls Quadrangular girls high school tennis opening round match against Roseau Thursday. Padilla and Maggie Stock beat the Rams' Nikki Hesson-Kara Hedlund 6-0, 6-1. The Prowlers went 3-0 against Roseau, East Grand Forks and Park Rapids Area.

Pioneers split weekend matches

A win over Hibbing and a loss to Rainy River gave the Northland Community and Technical College its second straight Northern Division weekend road split.

The Pioneers beat the Cardinals 30-23, 30-16, 30-32, 30-18 Friday night. The Voyageurs won a Saturday afternoon match at International Falls 28-30, 30-24, 25-20, 30-22, 16-14.

Results followed earlier scripts. Northland is 3-0 against Hibbing this fall, but 0-3 against Rainy River.

Against Hibbing, Northland's Christel Berube had 12 kills and 7 blocks. Kylie Rogalla came up with 8 kills and 13 blocks, and Amanda Spong contributed 8 kills.

"We played pretty well against Hibbing," said Northland coach Mike Zachow. "Except for the third game when we let them back in it, it was a continuation of the Fergus Falls match (a 3-0 Northland win Wednesday)."

The Pioneers had a chance to beat Rainy River for the first time this fall, but with a 14-13 fifth game lead, a Northland serve went into the net, tying it and handing the ball to the Voyageurs, who served out.

Berube had 17 kills and 5 blocks in that one, while Rogalla was credited with 10 kills and 10 blocks and Spong 12 kills and 3 blocks.

"It was a great, great volleyball match – back and forth," pointed out Zachow.

The Pioneers, 5-4 in the Minnesota Community College Conference, will host Vermilion and Providence Friday beginning at 4:30, and will entertain Mesabi Range Saturday at noon. Friday's draw starts with a best-of-five Northland vs. Mesabi Range Northern Division match that will be followed by 2-out-of-3-game matches between Mesabi Range and Providence, then Northland and Providence.

Rogalla presented Northern Division volleyball honors

Northland middle hitter Kylie Rogalla, a freshman from Thief River Falls, was one of three players who were earned Northern Division Player of the Week honors in Sept. 24-29 Minnesota Community College Conference volleyball.

Rogalla had 37 kills and 21 blocks as the Pioneers beat Fergus Falls and Hibbing before losing to Rainy River.

She shared the award with Mel Potter of Mesabi Range and Dana Dickenson of Central Lakes.

Rams sweep Mustangs in volleyball encounter

Roseau shut down the Red Lake County Central offense Thursday en route to a 15-7, 15-1, 15-9 high school volleyball win at Oklee.

It was just the third loss in 14 starts for the Mustangs.

"We played defense almost all night," explained Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "They're the best team we've seen so far."

Brittany Berberich and Lindsay Bergerson led the Mustangs with seven and five kills, respectively. Michelle Halvorson picked up 12 assists; Maureen Munt had 10.

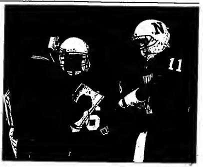
TRF basketball sign-up set

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club registration for the 2001-02 basketball season is currently under way for boys and girls in grades 2-6.

Forms will be distributed through school. The registration material and fees can be turned in at the school office. Registration deadline is Oct. 12.

For additional information, contact Vicki Yaggie at 681-7230.



Offensive coordinator Sean Huset went over the situation with Northland wide receiver Lucas Gannerelli (86) and quarterback Jeremy Cost, who checked the plays on his arm band, during a time-out in Thursday's Minnesota Community College Conference football game against Mesabi Range. The Pioneers won 26-21. This week's schedule has Northland at Hibbing Thursday.

MCCC football teams meet divisional rivals

Northland got off on the right foot in the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division football race last week with a 26-21 win over Mesabi Range. Thursday, the Pioneers will try to maintain their position at the top of the points standings by picking up a victory at Hibbing.

After a less-than-hoped-for 1-3 showing against MCCC Southern Division teams to open the 2001 season, winning their Northern Division debut at home was a must for the Pioneers if they had hopes of being in position to defend their divisional title won.

However, the Pioneers' next two starts are on the road against the other first-week Northern Division winners: Hibbing, a 38-19 Thursday winner over Itasca; and Vermilion, a 29-16 Saturday winner over Rainy River.

Northland's Thursday game at Hibbing will be followed a week later by a trip to Vermilion.

The Pioneers' final regular season home game will be a Tuesday, Oct. 16, match-up with Rainy River. They finish the schedule Saturday, Oct. 20, at Itasca.

Games against teams in your own division are worth two points in the league standings. Games against teams in the other division are one-point contests.

Top two teams in the final Northern and Southern Division standings earn MCCC post-season playoff spots.

Eagles edge Devils with defense, 16-8

Defense dominated play Friday as East Grand Forks Sacred Heart got by Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 16-8 in Nine-Man high school football.

The two Top of the State Conference foes played to a scoreless first half tie and were still deadlocked, 8-8, through three quarters.

Sacred Heart came out of it with a win when Matt Marek capped a drive by scoring on an 11-yard with about three minutes remaining.

"Defensively, we played pretty well," reported Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "Our defensive line played very, very well, especially in the first half."

The Blue Devils finished with 199 yards of total offense; the Eagles had 194. A bulk of the Goodridge/Grygla-Datzke yards came from Cory Dstby, who carried 33 times for 139 yards. John Miller continued 44 yards on five attempts.

"We just didn't move the ball as well as we should have," said Wilebski, whose squad fell to 0-5. Two of the losses have been by a single touchdown or less. "It's frustrating. The kids are working hard. They deserve to win."

TRF swimmers post win over Crookston

A 119-34 scoreboard cushion through 10 events allowed the Thief River Falls coaching staff to use the final two races as non-scoring exhibition entries during Thursday's high school swim dual against Crookston at the Franklin Middle School pool. It wound up as a 119-44 Thief River Falls win, boosting the Prowlers' dual record to 2-1.

"The girls did great," said Thief River Falls coach Jill Buck.

Three Prowlers had a pair of individual first place finishes, including Chelsea Haviland, diving, 100 backstroke; Cami Hendrickson 200 freestyle, 100 freestyle; and Brittany Haviland, 50 freestyle, 100 butterfly.

Carly Cota added a Thief River Falls win in the 500 freestyle.

The Prowlers won the 200 medley relay with April Peterson, Casey Engelstad, Suzie Rosencrans, and Cota, and took the 200 freestyle relay with Hendrickson, Brittany Haviland, Allyson Helling, and Chelsea Haviland.

Thief River Falls was an 87-46 winner in the junior varsity portion of the meet.

Football standings show Prowlers in thick of both Sea Range, 8AAAA race

Thief River Falls is tied for first place in the Super Sea Range Conference and is in second place in the Section 8AAAA points standings heading into the final three games of the 2001 regular season high school football schedule.

Conference standings are based on winning percentage in league games-only.

Section 8AAAA uses a points system to produce its standings, which will be used to determine post-season match-ups. Points are worth varying amounts, depending upon the size of the school that you are facing.

The Prowlers' final three games will be played Friday, Oct. 5, at Proctor; Friday, Oct. 12, vs. Cloquet; and Wednesday, Oct. 17, at Hibbing.

Section 8AAAA playoffs include quarterfinal games Tuesday, Oct. 23; semifinals Saturday, Oct. 27; and championship Thursday, Nov. 1. Quarterfinals and semifinals will be played at the site of the higher seeded teams. Championship game will be played at the Fargodome.

TRF volleyball C squad defeats Patriots, Spuds

Thief River Falls C squad high school volleyball team beat Win-E-Mac 15-17, 15-9, 17-15 Monday behind 12 service points by both Danielle Wilson and Marlen Weber.

Thursday, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo beat the Prowlers 17-15, 15-6. Jill Lappegaard had seven aces in a losing effort.

Earlier in the week, Thief River Falls came from behind to register a 10-15, 17-15, 15-11 Tuesday win over Moorhead as Maureen Duffy collected 11 service points and Weber had 8.

Patriots sweep Prowlers

Win-E-Mac beat Thief River Falls 15-9, 15-3, 15-12 Monday in high school volleyball.

"A lot of errors on our part," pointed out Thief River Falls co-head coach Erika Jensen. "We had a lot of missed serves and a lot of hitting errors."

The loss dropped the Prowlers' record to 5-14-1.

Lack of aggressive play hurt the Prowlers, according to Jensen. "We just sent the ball over the net without hitting it hard," she explained. "They have a good team. They picked up everything."

Hawley is 26-7 winner over B/G-Middle River

Unbeaten Hawley left quite an impression on Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Kent Janicke Friday during the Nuggets' 26-7 Valley Plains Conference high school football win over the visiting Gators.

"They're a tough team," said Janicke. "They're good. They would beat a lot of 3A schools. They've got some very fast backs, and they're physically strong up front. It's one of the better Hawley teams I've seen."

The Gators, behind Jeremiah Kern, turned in a solid performance on defense, but they had trouble on offense, netting just 169 yards – 84 of that coming on late-game passes.

"Defensively I thought we played well," said Janicke. "Kern played really well in the middle. He's tough. It didn't take Hawley long to figure that out, and they started running away from him."

Kern's efforts netted him the Gators' Defensive Player of the Week award for a third straight week.

Ben Huener scored the lone Badger/Greenbush-Middle River touchdown on a 3-yard pass from quarterback Jason Smith. He led the Gators' modest 75-yard ground game with 29 yards on 7 carries. Smith was 4-for-6 passing for 84 yards. Ricky Larson caught two passes for 61 yards.

The Nuggets' attack featured Ben Aakre with 187 yards on 23 carries and Cody Baxter with 125 yards on 25 attempts. Aakre scored twice.

The 1-4 Gators play Mahnomen Friday at Badger.

Storm wins title at volleyball tourney hosted by Nordics

Stephen-Argyle beat Tri-County 15-9, 15-5 Saturday in the championship match of the annual Marshall County Central Sports Boosters Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo got by Marshall County Central in the third place match 15-12, 7-15, 15-12; and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke defeated Kittson County North 15-2, 15-12 for the consolation title.

In the pool play portion of the tournament, the host Nordics lost to Stephen-Argyle and beat Kittson County North, both by 2-0 margins.

"We weren't awake in the first match," noted Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "The rest of the day we played not so poorly. We did a lot of things right."

The 4-11 Nordics, mentioned Jorgenson, were beginning to recover from a bout with illness that hit the team in a 15-7, 15-7, 15-9 Thursday loss to Climax/Fisher.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, a runner-up finisher at the Thief River Falls Invitational a week earlier, lost close pool play decisions to Tri-County and Warren-Alvarado-Oslo before beating Kittson County North. The Wolverines are 10-6 for the year.

Gators drop 3-2 match against Red Lake Falls

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River came close, but wound up on the losing end of a 3-2 Monday high school volleyball loss to Red Lake Falls.

The host Eagles won 13-15, 16-14, 8-15, 15-5, 15-13.

"They (Gators) played well," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Christine Adrian, whose team fell to 3-11. "It was probably, overall, one of our better matches of the year."

The visitors were led by Amanda Randall with 15 kills, Anne Dostal 11 and Kierah Kimbrough 10. Katie Borgen collected 29 assists.

Deer hunters group has a major interest in new trespass law

Minnesota Deer Hunters Association is working with hunters and landowners this fall to prevent trespassing conflicts, particularly in light of the new trespassing law passed by the legislature earlier this year.

The conservation organization has produced Hunter Access Cards for use by both hunters and landowners to facilitate positive hunter-landowner relation, and is making these available to the public.

State trespassing law prohibits unauthorized entry onto agricultural lands, which includes livestock pastures enclosed by a maintained fence; plowed or tilled fields; fields with standing crops or residue; grass or hay lands including native grasses that have been planted; and short rotation woody crops (i.e. hybrid poplar) fields. These agricultural lands do not need to be posted.

The law also requires that non-agricultural lands must be posted no trespassing to prohibit entry. To be legally posted, signs must be placed in one of two methods. Traditional method requires signs to be placed every 1,000 feet or less in open areas, or every 500 feet or less in wooded areas.

The alternative legal method is to post the primary corners and all access roads or trails on each parcel.

According to Mark Johnson, Executive Director of MDHA, it's a good idea to ask permission even if the private land you want to hunt is not posted. "Showing respect for private property by asking for permission can prevent misunderstandings and lead to increased hunting opportunities," Johnson said. "Getting to know farmers and landowners can lead to great friendships and can also be a great source of wildlife information."

Johnson says MDHA has discussed trespassing issues as an organization in recent years, including debating the pros and cons of the state trespassing law. He emphasizes that hunters are not the only individuals involved in trespassing complaints and problems, and that MDHA is consistently making efforts to improve relationships between private landowners and hunters.

As part of that effort, they have produced the access cards. The perforated card separates into two business card sized halves, one for the hunter and one for the landowner. The hunter fills out the card by providing his name, address, phone number, vehicle description and license number, and gives this to the landowner. The landowner then signs the other half, giving the hunting guest written permission to enter the private lands.

These cards are available free of charge to landowners and hunters, and can be obtained by sending a self addressed stamped envelope to MDHA Hunter Access Initiative, 460 Peterson Rd., Grand Rapids, MN 55744.

Recreational shining can be trouble

Minnesota Deer Hunters Association and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources DNR have received many comments of concern regarding occurrences of "recreational" shining.

In response to the shining concerns, MDHA and DNR Enforcement Division officials remind sports persons that, while recreational shining (between 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. and without a firearm or archery equipment) is legal, relations with landowners can quickly deteriorate by the indiscriminate use of lights on livestock, farmsteads or rural residences.

"Conservation officers often receive landowner complaints of the inappropriate use of spotlights around livestock and buildings," according to DNR Enforcement Director Bill Bernhjelm. "Those who practice shining need to remember that the future of recreational shining in Minnesota depends in large part on maintaining the good will and positive relations that exist between them and landowners."

It is illegal to shine wildlife between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. from September 1 to December 31, regardless if you have a firearm or archery equipment in possession. While suspicious activity may be reason for an investigative stop by conservation officers before 10 p.m., those shining after 10 p.m. should expect to be stopped and cited for the illegal activity, Bernhjelm said.

Conservation officers, supported by DNR Enforcement aircraft, regularly patrol areas of suspected illegal activity.

Conservation officers' efforts are greatly helped by timely calls from citizens concerned about illegal activity. Ongoing violations should be reported to conservation officers through Minnesota State Patrol dispatch centers or local law enforcement. Information can also be relayed 24 hours a day through the toll-free Turn-In-Poachers hotline at 1-800-652-9093.

"While we realize that most who shine do it legally," said MDHA's Executive Director Mark Johnson, "a persistent few refuse to follow the laws. As a result, I would like to encourage all MDHA members and deer hunters to please report violators to local law enforcement officers. Too often those practicing illegal shining are also poaching. It is time they are stopped. It is time to stand together and clean up our neighborhoods."

DNR hoping hunters spare collared bears

Though it is still legal for hunters to shoot radio-collared bears, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is asking hunters not to do so this year. This is a change from previous years when the DNR emphasized that radio-collared bears are legal game, and encouraged hunters who shoot collared bears to record collar information and send it to the DNR along with the required tooth sample. The regulations have not changed, according to DNR Wildlife Research Manager Mike DonCarlos, but due to changes in research goals, the DNR is asking hunters not to shoot radio-collared bears this year.

"In previous years, research objectives included documenting hunting mortality rates for black bears, so we wanted our radio-collared bears to be exposed to the same hunting risks as all other bears," DonCarlos said. "Current DNR and private research projects are focused on bear reproduction and behavior, so now we want as many radio-collared bears as possible to survive the hunting season."

The DNR emphasized that a hunter may still legally take a radio-collared bear, unless the bear is directly accompanied by a researcher who has identified the animal to the hunter as a research bear.

"We recognize that in some situations a bear hunter may not be able to detect a radio-collar before making the shot," DonCarlos said. "We emphasize that taking a radio-collared bear is legal and ethical. We are simply asking for hunter cooperation to support DNR and private research efforts."

The bear season opened on August 21 and runs through October 14. So far this season, five radio-collared bears have been shot and registered by bear hunters. This loss of research bears is similar to recent years, in which the number of radio-collared bears shot during the bear hunting season has ranged from four to six.

"Unfortunately, one of the five collared bears lost this hunting season was a key study animal," DonCarlos said. "Although we will be able to replace this bear by collaring another, we've lost a substantial research investment in this bear."

Hunters who shot radio-collared bears this year have indicated that they were unable to see the collar before they shot. Most bears are taken in the evening under fairly low light conditions.

"During the winter our bear research team will go to the dens of these bears and put on more brightly-colored collars, so they'll be more easily seen by hunters next year," DonCarlos said. "In the meantime, we're hoping to get the rest of them through the season, while at the same time we're hoping to get a relatively high harvest."

Any hunters that do shoot collared bears are requested to call the Minnesota DNR Wildlife Research Office in Grand Rapids at 218-327-4146.

There are about 30 remaining radio-collared bears in Minnesota this year, mostly in the north-central and northeastern parts of the bear range, or quota areas 26 and 31.

Minnesota's bear population is currently about 30,000, a record high, and continues to grow at a rate of 6 to 7 percent per year. This year, for the first time, each licensed bear hunter is allowed to take two bears. The two-bear limit may help curb the growth of Minnesota's burgeoning bear population without increasing hunter numbers and adding to the overcrowded conditions noted by some hunters. Without additional harvest, DNR wildlife managers are concerned that bear-human conflicts will occur at unacceptable levels in years of natural food shortages.

Hunter safety being stressed

■ DNR offers special tips for waterfowl season

Boats were repainted, missing decoy anchors replaced and a faint bouquet of Hoppe's Number 9 was detected in the basement as hunters prepared for the 2001 Minnesota waterfowl season that began Sept. 29. Some, however, may have forgotten an important detail.

"I wonder how many hunters have forgotten to pack their life jackets," said Tim Smalley, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources boating safety specialist and life-long duck hunter. "Ever since 1988 when life jackets were first required on board duck boats, the lack of flotation devices is one of the most common violations found by DNR conservation officers while checking waterfowlers."

DNR records indicate that even though some hunters still forget to carry life vests, the law is working. In the 13 years since life jackets were first required, five hunters have drowned in boating accidents. "That's certainly five too many, but in the bad old days before duck hunters were required to have life vests, sometimes six or eight hunters would drown in boating accidents in a single season," Smalley noted.

Last year a 31-year-old duck hunter died in early November when a 15-foot boat carrying four hunters and their equipment capsized in strong winds and choppy waves in Wood Lake near Russell in southwestern Minnesota. According to official reports he was not wearing a life jacket.

The law requires that there be a readily accessible U.S. Coast Guard approved wearable life vest for every person on board duckboats. For boats 16 feet and longer, there also has to be one USCG approved throwable device (seat cushion) in the boat.

Seat cushions are no longer approved as primary flotation devices, though, so everyone in the boat needs a wearable personal flotation device of the proper size and type. Of course, having a life jacket doesn't do any good if its stuffed under the boat seat when the accident happens.

"Trying to put on a life jacket during a boating accident would be like trying to buckle a seat belt during a car crash," Smalley said. "You just don't have any warning that a boat accident is going to happen, so the smart thing to do is wear a life vest on the way to and from the blind."

There are new inflatable flotation devices made with the duck hunter in mind that have been approved by the U.S. Coast Guard.

"The advantage to an inflatable life vest is that you can wear one and you almost forget you have it on because they are so comfortable," Smalley said.

Most common fatal duck boating accident is a capsizing or fall overboard from a small overloaded boat. The DNR advises hunters to take several trips to and from a blind, rather than overloading the boat, and avoid cutting across large expanses of open water. "If you do capsize closer to shore, you have a much better chance of being seen by potential rescuers," Smalley said. "You are better off staying with the boat rather than trying to swim to shore, even if you have to climb on top of the boat when it is overturned.

"There is a saying in water safety that you only have a 50-50 chance of being able to swim 50 yards in 50 degree water," Smalley noted. "Just try holding your hand in a bucket of ice water for three minutes. It just about can't be done. Now imagine having your whole body immersed in water that cold."

Contrary to common belief, waders won't flip the practiced wearer upside down, according to Smalley. "By bending your knees to keep the air trapped in the boots' shins, you can trap enough air to stay afloat for long enough to return to the boat, Smalley said. "We have heard from hunters who survived by following that simple procedure."

Many bodies of drowned duck hunters are recovered with waders pulled halfway down. "When the waders are pulled down, all the air trapped inside is released and the victim has a more difficult time staying afloat," Smalley said.

Taking off waders in water requires a hunter to immerse the face and head in water, which can induce what drowning experts call the torso reflex. "The torso reflex is the automatic gasp for air that happens when your face is suddenly immersed in cold water," Smalley said. "If your mouth and nose are under water when the gasp occurs, drowning is the probable outcome."

Smalley advises hunters who wear waders to practice floating in them in warm, shallow water.

Minnesota DNR offers these tips to help make duck hunting trips safe and successful:

■ Wear a life jacket to and from the blind.

■ Don't overload your boat.

■ Learn how to float in waders and hip boots or don't wear them.

■ Stay near shore; avoid crossing large expanses of open water, especially in bad weather.

■ Let someone know where you are going and when to expect your return.

Minnesota DNR has a free publication about waterfowl hunting boat safety called "Prescription for Duckhunters," available by calling the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-646-6367, or order via e-mail from the DNR at info@dnr.state.mn.us.

Roseau River WMA notes low water level for Pool 1

Waterfowl hunters planning to visit the Roseau River Wildlife Management Area WMA this fall should be aware that water levels in Pool 1 West are very low this year. According to assistant WMA manager Randy Prachar, access to certain portions of the pool by boat were still very difficult during the third week of September.

"Except for the deep borrow ditch, which runs parallel to the dike, most of the pool is covered by anywhere from only a few inches to one or two feet of water," Prachar said. "The west access is functional, but mud flats are showing just beyond the east access. Boats cannot pass through to the main body of the pool from this access until rain is received and water levels increase."

Water was drawn off the pool in December 2000 to facilitate repairs on a portion of the Pool 1 West dike. This repair effort carried on into the summer of 2001. The pool was kept dry through the end of August to increase the amount and availability of food for waterfowl and shorebirds.

The dam was closed on Sept. 1 in order to capture runoff and provide adequate water to the pool for the fall hunting season.

However, the WMA and surrounding area have received less than one-quarter inch of rain since Sept. 1. Prachar said that about one foot of water has returned to the basin, but another 18 inches or so will be needed to provide navigable depths throughout the pool.

Waterfowl hunters are encouraged to call WMA headquarters at 218-463-1557 before arriving to hunt, for an update on water levels on Pool 1 West.

Agassiz has trapping program

Furbearer trapping opportunities are available at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge near Middle River from Oct. 27, 2001 through Feb. 28, 2002. However, beaver season will go through April 30, 2002.

A total of eight trapping units will be awarded to qualified trappers through a sealed bid system. Applicants are asked to make a sealed monetary bid on one or all units. Only one unit will be awarded to each trapper. All successful bids require full payment by or on Friday, Oct. 26. Minimum bids are $25-per-unit. Applicants interested in bidding are not to include payment with their bid.

Applicants must have appropriate state trapping and small game licenses and a minimum of two seasons of trapping experience. Permittees are allowed one helper, who can trap only when accompanying the permittee on the refuge.

On the day before and during the firearms deer season, Nov. 2-11, trappers will be allowed to drive only on roads open to deer hunters.

Inspection of the trapping units is allowed and encouraged between the hours of 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Tuesday, Oct. 1-9.

Sealed bids must be hand-delivered or post-marked no later than 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 9.

Application forms, refuge regulations and refuge maps showing unit locations are available at refuge headquarters.

Successful applicants will be notified by Monday, Oct. 15. All successful applicants will be required to meet at Agassiz headquarters with Refuge Operations Specialist Gary Tischer or Dave Bennett prior to the first day of setting traps. An appointment must be arranged by the successful trapper to schedule a meeting time during regular refuge hours.

Species open to trapping include mink, muskrat, raccoon, skunk, red fox, beaver, and otter. Two otter per unit or trapper will be permitted during the otter trapping season. Otter and beaver trapping will be restricted in several areas. All other wildlife species are protected.

Additional information relative to special permit conditions should be obtained before bids are submitted by contacting the refuge operations specialist at 449-4115, extension 214 or 211.

Minnesota pheasant stamp contest...

State stamp done by Karlstad artist

Image of a hen and rooster pair painted by Nick Reitzel of Karlstad will be featured on the 20th Minnesota Pheasant Habitat Stamp. The painting was chosen as the winning design from among 27 entries in the 2002 stamp contest sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Reitzel has been a frequent finalist in DNR stamp contests. Reitzel's design is featured on the 2001 Minnesota Turkey Stamp and the 2001 Trout and Salmon Stamp. He finished second in last year's Pheasant Habitat Stamp contest.

Fifteen entries advanced into the semi-final stage of this year's Pheasant Habitat Stamp design contest, from which six finalists were selected during judging at the DNR headquarters in St. Paul Sept. 20. The other finalists were David Chapman of Minnetonka, second; Ron Iverson, Paynesville, third; Stanley Finnemore, Remer, fourth; and Kenneth Kylmanen, Waubun, and Matt Linz, Little Canada, tied for fifth.

Five-member panel of judges included Howard Vincent, chief executive officer, Pheasants Forever; Beth Mishek, editor of Wildlife Art Magazine; John Petersen, Minnesota Pheasant; Beau Liddell, DNR area wildlife manager, Redwood Falls; and Ron Lawrenz, Science Museum of Minnesota.

The Pheasant Habitat Stamp is required for all Minnesota pheasant hunters ages 18 through 65. Stamp sales generate between $500,000 and $600,000 per year for pheasant habitat management. The DNR offers no financial reward to the stamp design contest winner, but the winning artist retains the right to reproduce and market the design.

Bemidji, EGF win titles at TRF race

Perfect early-fall weather bathed runners, coaches, officials and spectators with bright sunshine and warm temperatures Monday during the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational high school cross country meet.

Bemidji boys and East Grand Forks girls ran off with team titles on the Thief River Golf Club course.

"What a fabulous day to run," noted Thief River Falls coach Chad Persons. "It was perfect weather for the runners and spectators."

Persons' Prowlers finished seventh in a field of 10 boys teams and ran eighth in the eight-team girls race.

"We ran well in areas, but we need to improve in others," said Persons. "Our varsity boys looked great, but fell behind when our No. 2 runner had a major side ache. If we get all five guys to go on the same day, we'll be very competitive. Our varsity girls ran hard and competed. I really appreciate them. I enjoy their outlook on the competition."

Brian Newton (16th) was the top Thief River Falls finisher in the boys' race. Janae Harlow (32nd) was the top runner for the girls.

"Brian came back from his injury and looked like he hadn't missed a beat," said Persons.

Kindergarten

On September 5, Alysa Kathleen Krueger of Plummer, enjoyed her first day of kindergarten. There are 16 children in the class this year. Mrs. Duden is the teacher and Alysa told Grandma, (Kathy Juneau) that Mrs. Duden had on a very pretty dress and that she is very nice.

Dennis and Edna Hyde, on a recent trip to Fargo visited Art and Helen Hagge of Brooks, who now live on Assisted living at Pioneer Memorial Home in Erskine.

DeeDee Egeland of Billings, Mt. and Cindy Nielson and daughter Katie of Westby, Mt. visited Bunny DuChamp when they were here for Marci DuChamp's wedding on September 15th.

Arlan, Gerda and Dean Koskela were last Tuesday evening visitors of Arne Kvaseger of Oklee.

Plummer Senior Citizens Club met on Thursday at the center with a potluck dinner at noon. Birthdays for the month were Howard LaFayette, Alice Tillman, Howard Greenwald and Harriet Norman. The birthday song was sung for the two Howards and was followed by table grace. After the meal, Howard Greenwald presided over the business in the absence of Anne Jaeger and led in the Flag Pledge. "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" was sung followed by the secretary and treasurer's reports by Inga Linder and Margaret Greenwald. It was decided to send a donation to LSS on a yearly basis and a thank you was read from Cindy Yerbich. The centennial planning committee will be meeting on October 15 and need two representatives from our club. A public meeting of the Senior Housing Committee is scheduled for October 1, regarding the recent grant proposal. A donation of $50 will be sent to the Red Cross for the victim's family's of the recent New York tragedy. Remember the election to be held at the next meeting on October 17. Door prizes went to Bunnie Byer and Howard LaFayette. Clara Hesse was in charge of entertainment which included an excellent reading by Lorena Westerlund, two by Clare, "Life Begins at 80" and "Mr. Potato". A quiz on common knowledge made us rack our brains over everyday things we take for granted.

Wedding

Bill and Tom Peterson attended the wedding of their niece, Kelly Fulton of Warren to Andrew Ladwig of Elbow Lake on Saturday at the United Lutheran Church of Elbow Lake. The reception was held in Detroit Lakes at the Holiday Inn with uncles Bill and Tom serving as hosts. The bride is the daughter of Rosemarie (Peterson, formerly of Plummer) and Don Fulton of Warren who attended as well as her aunts Mildred Klamar and Laura Klamar and their families from the Gatzke area.

Home council meets

On September 20, 2001 the Red Lake County Council (Homemakers) met at the Third Base Restaurant in Brooks. President Kathy Juneau opened the meeting with the Homemaker's Creed. On the agenda was the election of officers and they are: President-Kathy Juneau, Vice President-Terry Weiss and Secretary/Treasurer-Patsy Hagl. DeeAnn Leines, Extension Educator distributed the club's study packets for the coming year. They talked about the Christmas party which will be held in Red Lake Falls. It should be a great night. They would like all of us to join them and will keep us posted on time and date.

Lon Oberpriller and daughter Sara, also Brian Oberpriller of the cities visited over the weekend at the home of Rick and Arlene Froiland. They are bear hunters and were successful in bagging a large one. Sunday dinner guests of the Froilands were the above mentioned, Art and Avis Froiland and Ginger Froiland.

Sue Leo and daughters visited on Saturday at the Arlan Koskela home.

Sheena Greenwald and Hannah Schiele of Jamestown met Brent Nelson in Fargo where he attends school and came to Plummer to spend the weekend with her parents, Mike and Sandy Greenwald. Other visitors were Norm and Shirley Baune, now staying near Shelrack where he is hauling beets.

Lloyd and Linda Wallace were Saturday visitors of Art and Avis Froiland and by now are on their way to their home in Arizona.

The annual Firemen's Spaghetti supper was served on Saturday night at the community hall. A good crowd came to enjoy the supper, support the volunteer firemen and enjoy visiting with friends. This year 10% of the free-will donations was sent to the New York relief fund. Thanks to all who attended and helped in any way.

Luan Schuman brought Edna Hyde home from the Fargo hospital on Saturday and she will be getting therapy in Thief River Falls. Welcome back Edna! That evening Lavurne Sevigeny and Eleanor Hedgson came to check up on her. On Sunday Della Jenson of Erskine and her daughter Ardys Jenson of Crookston were visitors.

Edna Hyde had many visitors during her stay at Innovis Hospital in Fargo. One who was especially faithful was Harley Schiefert, who came to see her five times. She really appreciated all of their friends who visited and/or sent cards. Now we hope she is home to stay.

Peggy Hesse and Joann Brockopp attended the LWML workshop held on Saturday at Zion Lutheran Church of Detroit Lakes.

Rich Fossum of Chippewa Falls, Wi. and Jim Fossum of Wyoming spent some time with their parents, Art and Gloria Fossum. They spent a few days in Thief River hospital last week. Art came home but Gloria is in Hillcrest at the present. Just yesterday, word came that Art has been taken to a Fargo hospital. Remember them in your prayers.

OPINIONS

Thief River Falls
Minnesota

John P. Mattson
Publisher

David Hill
Editor

Editorial opinion published under this heading is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Unless specified otherwise, the editorials are written by Editor Dave Hill and do not represent opinion of other staff members. Opinions in items from other publications may not coincide with the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Air carrier service to Thief River Falls is vital to all of northwestern MN

A fellow editor and I were discussing our responses to various problems at our newspapers the other day, and we came to realize that it would sure help our attitudes if we had a real honest-to-goodness, no strings-attached, good news story to write about. Of course, we realize it is not our job to write only the good news. Good news happens just like bad news, but lately all the news appears to be bad — the terrorist attack on New York and Washington, agriculture losses, loss of our mail separating service, high heating fuel costs, rumors of high gas prices, and now the potential that we could lose our air service. If I were Charlie Brown I'd say "Good Grief!"

The announcement recently that we could lose our air carrier service in Thief River Falls appears to be another "bad news" stories. Some may think our community air carrier service, is a luxury we can afford to be without, but we can't, and it isn't just a luxury service. It's an economic necessity.

Our community air service is vital to the continued growth and economic development of the region

Thief River Falls has been identified by the federal government as a community that needs air service — this service is essential to Thief River Falls and the region's continued economic success.

It's true that Northwest Airlines isn't the only air carrier service in town. Loss of this service won't end all flights to the airport. Some freight, for example, is shipped on Northwest Airlines, but we have other air delivery services. They are separate from Northwest Airlines, and it appears that they are growing and will continue to grow. That delivery service, however, could be impacted by the elimination of the customer service provided by Northwest Airlines because losing this service would add to the cost of doing business in Thief River Falls. Losing this service would make our industries and businesses a lot less accessible to customers and investors.

Air service is vital to future development. Keep in mind that one of the first things a potential business or industry looks at when it comes to a community is its transportation infrastructure and specifically, its airport. Loss of this important element of our transportation infrastructure would greatly impact this community and the region's ability to attract new business.

Several times in the past several years, I have been told that we have take our good airport for granted. Our community air carrier service does many things for us. It brings families together and connects our community to larger world. It delivers parts for equipment, medical supplies and donor organs. It provides jobs for travel agents and representatives, city airport personnel, the flight-base operator, fuel companies, mechanics, machinists, service personnel and many more.

Our community air service carrier is vital.

If you'd like to express your opinion on the matter to someone who counts write to the following:

Local officials would also like to include stories from area residents about the importance of air service to them in their response to Northwest's request to terminate service. Without being more critical of another service we consider valuable, it might be wise to deliver your comments to the City of Thief River Falls.

If there's a silver lining to the dark cloud that appears to be hanging over Thief River Falls and the region, it would have to be the fact that we're still here, and still working.

One final thought — Northwest Airlines is not our enemy. If we wish them to continue to provide service, it's important that we treat them well and that we work together.

Without term limits congressmen play it safe

by Paul Jacob director of
U.S Term Limits

"The whole 'war on drugs' cries out for reexamination," opines David Broder in a recent Washington Post column.

Broder brings up the rear of a growing contingent of intellectuals, former policymakers and others — ranging from celebrity political commentator Bill Buckley to former Secretary of State George Schulz — who over the past decade and a half or so have raised sharp questions about the tactics and results in this most unending of conflicts.

Much of the public shares the skepticism.

In fact, a poll done last year by Rasmussen Research found that 29 percent of Americans believe that anyone over drinking age should be allowed to buy and use marijuana — and that 43 percent disagree with the idea of jailing pot smokers. An even larger number, 72 percent, think doctors should be allowed to prescribe marijuana for medical purposes. About the same large percentage agree that the government is "losing the war on drugs."

Poll numbers aren't always ironclad. But such sentiments have been confirmed by much other polling as well — not to mention the passage of a number of state and local initiatives legalizing the use of marijuana for medical purposes.

But while many Americans question the war on drugs and favor decriminalizing marijuana, not one of the 535 folks who represent us in Congress agrees. Or at any rates not one has introduced meaningful legislation or come forward to champion this cause. And while initiatives are legalizing marijuana for medical purposes and moving away from incarceration, federal penalties for drug offenses only get more and more Draconian.

My purpose here is not to express my own view of the merits or flaws of our nation's controversial drug policies. I'm simply noting that, yet again, we the people are being shabbily represented. On the national level, at least, the political system is stagnant — monopolized by career politicians eternally fretting about the next election, and hence eternally loath to take the political risks that are necessary to build support for the solutions they believe in. Instead, they take the road most traveled by and play it safe.

Right now, even despite the wide public skepticism, national drug policy is still too much of a hot potato for our political "leaders" to touch. It would jeopardize that next term.

An exception is New Mexico Governor Gary Johnson. Johnson is willing to push for changing the drug laws even though he knows it is not an immediately safe and popular stand. He even admits to large audiences that he once smoked pot (and without any Clintonesque addendums about having failed to inhale).

"I was elected in 1994, and I have been re-elected but cannot run for a third term under our term-limits law," Johnson told Rolling Stone. "I'm living evidence of why term-limits should be in effect. Would I have brought this issue out if I thought I could be elected to a third term? I don't know. In the first term, I talked about the failure of the Drug War and that arresting people isn't going to work. But it wasn't until the second term that I made a conscious decision to turn up the volume and search out some solutions."

Quite a telling admission. And whether or not you agree with Governor Johnson on the drug issue, surely you can agree there's something out of whack when the folks who are supposed to represent us perpetually decline to take principled but controversial stands . . even when the public is attentive, receptive, eager for a debate.

Is this any way to run a democracy?

This is a war against Capitalism

To the Editor:

This war is not against America; it's the war against Capitalism.

"Money, not your money, but someone else's money, is the source of all evil."

The process is jealousy!

There are many religions, they all have a direction for your future, and they all promise you the greatest sense of serenity, but only if you partake in their ideology.

While capitalism is not only the greatest physical attribute throughout the world, it has provided more employment, won more wars against evil, (including World War I and II), offered more freedom, created more opportunity for education, sent more money to the needy around the world, and in doing so, it respects the right for all to believe and worship as they choose.

There are those that believe that Capitalism is, (by not only the Muslim), but by several honest Americans, as the source of the World's problems.

Wake up America. It's time to respect the successful capitalist system. It is the cornerstone of not only America but for the entire free world.

Even though you may have not arrived there by your standards of success, you too, have acquired the great blessing of being a free American; and, by this standard alone, you are successful. Owning a yacht in the South Pacific is not required.

Remember that jealousy is the way of the loser and following that path, you will never win, or even be respected, and you too will then be a loser.

Jealousy is the foundation of all terrorists; it is not equated to right from wrong, it is jealousy and the destruction of honorable achievement. It is not only in the Middle East, it is worldwide, and it comes from the heart of man.

While there may or may not be life here after, many Americans have died for the right of a life they knew existed, a life for both you and me, right here in good old America. Let's not forsake those who made it possible.

Sincerely,
Norman L. Anderson

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stop complaining. The construction is not the problem!

Dear Residents, Shoppers, Visitors, Business owners and Managers of Thief River Falls:

Pessimism and complaining seems to be the trend these days in Thief River Falls. So, let me add a few more complaints since I like to follow the trend.

I am tired of hearing people complain about the road construction in this town. Yes, we have been affected immensely due to the construction in this town but life goes on and things could be much worse. look at other areas of our country and we have NOTHING to complain about. WE KNEW that THIS inconvenience was going to take place and WE KNEW it would carry in to the fall. This was not a few weeks or a few months project. I have witnessed the progress on a daily basis and I believe the construction has progressed according to what I have been told. I know there were some unexpected disturbances as the construction developed, like finding several stairwells and windows under sidewalks and buildings in the downtown businesses, some of the new curbs needed replacing due to human error on an engineer's part and a pipe or two may have been dug up, but we are not a perfect world and people do make mistakes. So let's get on with it and think of how nice our highway will be when it's done.

Business has been greatly affected by this construction in a negative way and I do hope business will soar when our road is open and I am confident that it will. Even though this construction has been an inconvenience for residents, visitors, customers, owners and employees this down time should have given owners and employees different areas to focus on. I feel many businesses need to take a step back and look at what your customers see. If they see we are negative and pessimistic, that will affect business too. We all need to stay upbeat for our customers and visitors of this so called, "Star City"! If customers have a pleasant experience in your store or business they will come back, road construction or not! How many business owners and employees actually look at their business how the customers view it? Do you have a "WELCOME MAT" at your front door, do you have a clean store or business, are you friendly and do you acknowledge people when they walk in to your business and do you service them as they shop or are doing business with you? Do you want them to come back? I have seen many businesses in this town that need to take a step back and look through the eyes of a customer and a visitor. SO WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR? The construction to be done so your mood can be lifted? I certainly hope not. Hey, Julie, maybe The Chamber of Commerce should have a secret shopper that visits every business in town and survey them on what is good and what needs improvement in their business and let them see first hand what the customer's view is.

We should all be giving customers and visitors a reason to come back and a reason to talk about their GREAT experience in your business so others will come to our town too.

I am glad that I work for a company that has goals and expects us to make goals for my associates and myself as a manager. Employees, ask your managers what your goals are if you do not know, it does not have to be a dollar figure, it could be a customer service goal or a task that needs completion. Owners and managers if you do not have goals start today and don't stop.

About a month ago, after it seemed like this construction was taking forever, I asked Bill (Gladen Constructions foreman) "how many more weeks before we are done?" (I also have a district manager and a regional manager that wanted to know when we could expect business to pick up again. I had forewarned them in April about the construction because I knew we wouldn't be making our goals.) At that time Bill told me to expect the pavement to be done the last week in September and the completion of the project by the third week in October, so Commissioner I believe your petition was a waste of your time because we already knew the pavement was going down the last week in September. Did anyone actually ask the right people?

We need to quit complaining and give more credit where it is due. How many of you know that some of the construction workers worked on the 4th of July? Sure, I think they should work around the clock too, after all this is Minnesota and we only have few months to get these projects done before the snow flies but, I know they have put in some VERY long days — 12 - 14 hours some days. They do need to recharge for a few hours now and then. There are some very dedicated workers out there trying to get this project done and they should not have to put up with the verbal slams from this community, and shame on anyone for pointing fingers if something hasn't gone perfectly.

Mr. Hill maybe your paper should do an article on the life of a construction worker or heavy equipment operator and open the eyes of these people who love to complain. Many people do not understand the long hours and the dedicated workers they are, they say it is an illness to work so hard, but at least it isn't doing anyone else harm. I am married to a housing contractor and he also puts in those long, hard, literally back-breaking days (no pun intended Geno) and it is very hard to understand from their perspective why more people do not have this illness.

The residents and business people need to quit complaining and have a better attitude on what is good about this community and do something to make it even better. Commissioner I would like to suggest you get a petition together on having our economic development committee focus on getting more retail businesses into this "Star City," but that is a topic for another day.

Let's move into the holiday season with clean stores, happy employees, awesome customer service and an optimistic attitude and we will look as good as our soon to be completed Highway.

Resident, manager, and customer of Thief River Falls,
Marcia Kalinowski

ECHOES

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • OCTOBER 3, 1951

Three Local Firms Move This Month

"The Larson company, Hall's Flower and Gift Shop and the L. N. Bennes Insurance agency shortly will occupy new and enlarged quarters as a result of a series of moves scheduled to get under way late next week.

"Justus Larson announced that the Larson company will move October 15 to the space in the Meehan block recently vacated by the B & W Supermarket. The new quarters, now being remodeled, will provide approximately 50 percent more space than the present location. Offices and service department are now being partitioned off at the rear of the store.

"Orrin Hall, proprietor of Hall's Flower and Gift Shop, stated that the shop will be moved shortly after October 15 from its present location on Third street East to a larger space in the Main avenue frontage of the building being vacated by Larson's. The enlarged quarters, he said, will provide room for increased stocks of gift items, flowers and related lines, while the north side will be devoted to a soda fountain and coffee bar with horseshoe-shaped counter and with booths at the rear end.

"Lloyd N. Bennes will move his insurance office November 1 from its present location on the second floor of the Northern state bank building to ground floor quarters in the Second street frontage of the building being vacated by the Larson company."

School Board Buys New Bus Friday

"The Thief River Falls board of education at an adjourned session last Friday evening voted to accept the bid of C. Gustafson & Son to supply an International chassis with a 42-passenger Superior bus body on its base bid of $5,215. A $700 allowance was made for a 1944 model bus turned in on the deal."

St. Hilaire Actors Perform Friday In Home Talent Play

"'The Womanless Wedding,' a hilarious farce, will be presented by an all-male home talent cast of St. Hilaire community residents Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the St. Hilaire school auditorium. Sponsored by the Commercial club, the large cast included such stellar performers as Gust Mundinger as the parson; Arnold Krause as the bride; Ben Rosendahl, groom; John Kruse, butler; Willis Johnson, old maid; Bob Black, jilted bride; Myles Jackson, aunt; and Wendell Corbet, uncle.

"Others in the play are Conrod Swanson, Ruy Grumbo, John Maney, Herb Hartje, Thomas Korolewski, Johnson Bros., Ed Charlson, Harlan Olson, John Uggerud, Mel Peterson, William Aitchison, and Merle Rafteseth."

City Turns Over $15,140 To County Court House Fund

"City Clerk P. G. Pederson during the past week delivered to County Auditor A. M. Senstad the city's check for $15,140.28, representing 15 percent of the net profits from the 1950 operation of the Thief River Falls municipal liquor dispensary. The check is being deposited to the credit of the court house building fund."

A SURE THING
The Creamery Will Be Built at Tweet.

"James Graslie, father of Cashier Graslie of the First National Bank, was out to Tweet last Saturday afternoon and addressed the members of the co-operative creamery. Mr. Graslie has had a great deal of experience in this matter and was able to give the farmers many pointers which will greatly benefit them. The foundations for the creamery will be built this fall and next spring it will be in running order."

DEER PLENTIFUL

"Executive Agent Fullerton of the state fish and game commission says that deer are more plentiful in Minnesota this year than they have been for years. The absence of snow during the open season last year made it difficult to track and kill animals and this accounts for the large number in the woods this year."

Mrs. Arnold Larson • 874-4331

Tuesday morning, Arnold and Varnice Larson left for DeGraff to visit with Jim and Mary Kay Matthews and were overnight guests there.

Thursday afternoon, Roy and Laura Roppe and Rick and Geraldine Dalbey and Jill went to Warren to visit with Frank and Harriet Kujava.

Wednesday afternoon visitors at the Hanna Moen home were Kathy Herstad, Evelyn Albough and Diane Nelson.

Friday morning, Arnold and Varnice Larson accompanied Jim and Mary Matthews to an Army reunion at the Wisconsin Dells. When they got there, they met a lot of our friends and did a lot of visiting with them. It sure was nice to see them again.

Friday, Roy and Laura Roppe, Rick and Geraldine Dalbey and Jill went to Fargo where Jill took a plane to Atlanta, Georgia where she lives. The rest of them went on to visit with Orland and Laura Rappe and enjoyed supper there.

Sunday afternoon, Alvin and Mildred Rondorf visited with Lillie Olson.

Saturday, Arnold and Varnice Larson met their friends and went out for breakfast. Afterwards, they had their meeting and then went on a boat ride to the upper Dells. Later that night, they had their banquet. It was very nice with very good food. Afterwards, they just sat around and visited and a small group of children entertained them with singing and playing. They enjoyed a very good time.

NOTICE OF HEARING
BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Earl D. and Loreen B. Olbson, have applied for a Variance to the Land Use Regulations (Zoning) which govern the Side Yard Setback Requirement for structures in the Suburban Residential District (R-1). The property is legally described as Lot 9 and the Northeast corner of Lot 10 in Block 4 of Sherwood Forest Addition.

The Olbsons propose to construct a 12' x 20' sunroom addition onto the southwest corner of the existing garage and residence. The existing garage has a Side Yard Setback to the roof overhang of seven feet. The proposed sunroom addition would extend to the southwest twelve feet and would have the same Side Yard Setback as the existing garage. As proposed, the sunroom addition would require approval of a three feet Variance to the ten feet Side Yard Setback Requirement of City Code, Sec. 11.31, Subd. 5.A., for the Suburban Residential District (R-1).

Notice is further given that the Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a Hearing on the Variance Request at 8:30 p.m. on Monday, October 15, 2001, in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, 405 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All persons wishing to comment on the Variance Request will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Hall, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

If you have a disability and need an accommodation in order to attend this Hearing please contact the undersigned as soon as possible or at least three working days in advance of the Hearing at the above telephone number.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that the Occupational Development Center, Inc. (ODC), P.O. Box 730, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, has requested that the zoning of the following described properties be amended from Light Industrial District (I-1) to General Industrial District (I-2): Lots 3 through 9 in Block 1 of Oxbow First Addition.

Lot 3 is owned by the ODC. Lots 4 through 9 are presently owned by the City of Thief River Falls, c/o Roger DeLap, City Administrator, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. These properties are located on the east side of Minnesota Highway No. 32 South between the Dean Foods (Bridgeman) Distribution Center and Mark Boulevard (aka, Davidson Drive).

Subject to approval of the Zoning Amendment Request, the ODC proposes to purchase Lots 4 through 9 from the City and to develop a two-phase expansion of wood processing facilities. Phase I would include construction of a band saw mill operation to process specialty wood parts for industrial crating. This phase of the development would be constructed in 2002. Phase II would include the construction of an industrial crate assembly plant, which would replace the present plant located at 901 Dewey Avenue.

Site improvements, in addition to the proposed buildings and structures, would include signage, lighting, landscaping and buffer plantings, and excavation and aggregate backfill of parking lots and raw material storage and handling areas. The ODC will continue to manage their operations from the existing Administration Building, 1520 Highway No. 32 South, which is located on lot 3.

Notice is further given that the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing on the proposed Zoning Amendment Request at 8:10 p.m. (CDST) on Monday, October 15, 2001, in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, 405 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All person wishing to comment on the proposed Zoning Amendment will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Hall, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

If you have a disability and need an accommodation in order to attend this Hearing, please contact the undersigned as soon as possible or at least three (3) working days in advance of the Hearing at the above telephone number.

CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 11 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Midwest Minnesota Community Development Corporation, c/o Kevin Shipley, Vice President, P.O. Box 623, Detroit Lakes, MN 56501, and Rebecca J. Hilderbrand, P.O. Box 1277, Westwood, CA 96137, have submitted a Preliminary Plat for review by the City of Thief River Falls. The property being platted is Part of Government Lots Three and Four and the South Half of the Northwest Quarter of Section Four, Township 153 North, Range 43 West of the Fifth principal meridian, containing 25.50 acres, more or less.

Midwest Community Development Corporation (MMCDC) and Rebecca Hilderbrand have submitted a "Preliminary Concept Plan and Plat for Oakland Park Third Addition." The properties lie west of Oakland Park Road, south of Oakland Park Second Addition, and east of Minnesota Highway No. 32. The Hilderbrand property is contiguous to, but lies outside of the City Limits.

As submitted, the acreage being platted at this time would be subdivided into 45 residential lots and 2 commercial lots, which abut the Stack Cat and Best Western properties. A portion of the property lying adjacent to property owned by the City will be deeded to the City for park, recreation and/or greenspace uses. The Preliminary Concept Plan indicates that the approximate westerly one-third of the MMCDC property could be platted and developed in the future for a mixture of commercial, single-family residential, and multi-family residential uses.

Small portions of the MMCDC property being platted are presently zoned General Business District (C-2) and Multi-Family Residential District (R-4). Following approval and recording of the Final Plat, MMCDC will request that the zoning of these areas be amended to provide for the development of lower density residential uses. The area to be deeded to the City will be rezoned to Park and Recreation District (PR).

The Hilderbrand property is presently zoned Agricultural (AG). If the property is not annexed into the City and before it could be developed, a request to amend the zoning to Urban/Rural Residential under the Rocksbury Township Joint Zoning Ordinance would have to be made and approved. If annexed into the City, the zoning of this property would be amended to provide for the development of lower density residential uses.

Notice is further given that the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing on the Preliminary Plat at 8:30 p.m. (CDST) on Monday, October 15, 2001, in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, 405 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All person wishing to comment on the Preliminary Plat will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Hall, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

If you have a disability and need an accommodation in order to attend this Hearing please contact the undersigned as soon as possible or at least three (3) working days in advance of the Hearing at the above telephone number.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PLANNING COMMISSION
CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 12 of the Thief River Falls City Code, that Arthur M. and Betty J. Erickson, Route 3, Box 30A, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, have submitted a Certificate of Survey, as prepared by Gary L. Thompson, Registered Land Surveyor, dated 7-02-01, for review and approval by the City of Thief River Falls. The property to be conveyed is owned by Bettie I. Nelson, 4545 Arrowood Lane North, Plymouth, MN 55442. The property is legally described as follows:

That part of the Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter (NW1/4, NW1/4) of Section Ten (10), Township One Hundred Fifty-three (153), North of Range Forty-three (43) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian described as follows: commencing at an iron monument at the northwest corner of the said Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter, thence South 00 degrees 56 minutes 37 seconds West, assumed bearing, along the west line of the said Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter a distance of 533.00 feet, thence South 89 degrees 03 minutes 23 seconds East 352.00 feet to an iron monument, being the point of beginning of the parcel to be described; thence continuing South 89 degrees 03 minutes 23 seconds East 100.00 feet to an iron monument, thence South 00 degrees 56 minutes 37 seconds West, parallel with the West line of the said Northwest Quarter of the Northwest Quarter a distance of 550.00 feet to an iron monument, thence North 89 degrees 03 minutes 23 seconds west 100.00 feet to an iron monument; thence North 00 degrees 56 minutes 37 seconds East, parallel with the said West line 550.00 feet to the point of beginning, containing 1.26 acres, more or less.

The property described above is a tract of land one hundred feet (100') wide, east to west, and five hundred fifty feet (550') long, north to south. The west line of this tract of land lies three hundred fifty-two feet (352') east of the west line of Section 10, which is the approximate centerline of Pennington County State Aid Highway No. 17. Approval of the Certificate of Survey by the City of Thief River Falls and its recording with Pennington County would allow Bettie I. Nelson to transfer ownership of this tract of land to Arthur and Betty Erickson.

Notice is further given that the Planning Commission will conduct a Hearing on the Request for approval of the Certificate of Survey at 8:00 p.m. (CDT) on Monday, October 15, 2001, in the City Council Chambers, City Hall, 405 Third Street East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. All persons wishing to comment on the Certificate of Survey will have the option to be heard at this time. Persons who wish to submit written comments prior to the Hearing or who have questions should address them to the Office of the Community Development Director, City Hall, P.O. Box 528, Thief River Falls, MN 56701, or telephone 218-681-2500.

If you have a disability and need an accommodation in order to attend this Hearing, please contact the undersigned as soon as possible or at least three (3) working days in advance of the Hearing at the above telephone number.

Tempers flare on picket line

■ Police involved in two incidents

Two incidents have marred strike activities in Thief River Falls.

On October 8, 6:58 a.m., the police department was called to a disturbance at a business parking lot involving state strikers and employees. Upon investigation Bart Allan Anderson, 28, Fridley, was cited for obstruction of legal process, and Eric Marshall Halvorson, 32, Brooklyn Park, was cited for obstruction of legal process and assault. The two were picketing, when Halvorson allegedly grabbed the arm of an employee who was crossing the line.

In another complaint filed, the police department is investigating an alleged motor vehicle accident, which occurred on October 8, 8:26 a.m. A MnDot van was backing out of a garage, southbound, onto Zeh Street. The van allegedly brushed the right side of a striker. No injury was reported. The case remains under investigation.

Heather Hauschild, public relations representative for striking employees in Thief River Falls, said she had heard the rumors of the incidents at the downtown site, and called it a very unfortunate situation.

Hauschild said that they haven't had any problems at the strike site near Northland Community and Technical College. She said for the most part support has been very high.

She explained that some employees did cross the picket line and that weighs heavily on the emotions of those employees still on the picket line.

Hauschild said the Unions do not condone violence.

While these incidents seem to dampen spirits, Hauschild said striking employees are very encouraged by the fact that the Unions and the State are going back to the negotiating table.

Hauschild said striking employees were also encouraged by the fact that Sen. LeRoy Stumpf visited with them on the picket line last week. Sometimes, Hauschild said, we feel that we're a bit isolated from what's happening at the capitol. It seems, she said, important information is a little slow in getting to us.

Hauschild said the the unions and the state are not that far apart — about $4 million, she said, and we hope that as that information gets out people will be ready to talk and settle.

Grandstand seating completed at County Fairgrounds

▲ Construction crews completed the new grandstand at the Pennington County Fairgrounds recently. The new grandstand will seat over 2,500. CBS Contractors were contracted to build the grandstand. Officials are looking forward to the events that will be held in the near future at the fairgrounds. Events will include concerts, sno-cross races, other races, and the annual Thunder on Hooves.

◀ The new grandstand at the Pennington County Fairground was completed Thursday morning. Floyd Erickson, former President of the Pennington County Fair Board, current President Mike Sorteberg and Treasurer Ray Safranski did a walk through inspection of the structure the same morning.

Grandstand sees completion

■ Final walk-through inspection of grandstand completed last week

Talk of building a new grandstand at the Pennington County Fairground, which began over a year ago, has turned into more than words.

A final walk-through inspection of the completed grandstand was done on Thursday morning, October 4. President of the Pennington County Fair Board, Mike Sorteberg said it was a chance for the board to look over the new structure and see if anything needed adjusting. He said CBS was very meticulous in their work and did "a first class job."

CBS Constructors were contracted to build the grandstand. Sorteberg said other construction companies that had experience in building grandstands were looked into, but CBS made the best offer. He said the dollars spent on the project were used in the best possible way. A grandstand was needed that was virtually maintenance free, and this structure provides that option.

Despite past donations given by individuals and businesses, $50,000 still needs to be raised to pay the $400,000 bill.

"I think people have been watching the construction," said Sorteberg, "and its exceeded most expectations, from what I've heard."

The use of the Sentenced to Serve crew shaved off extra dollars that would have been used if CBS had brought their own crew. Sorteberg said he was impressed with the work the STS crew did and stressed the positive impact they had on the project.

"These guys have never built a grandstand and neither have the STS crew leaders," he said. "But they completed it in less time than CBS had estimated."

STS crew leader Scott Peters said there was a great working relationship between the STS crew and the contractors.

Plans for building the new grandstand began right after the 1999 Pennington County Fair. The old grandstand didn't have the necessary seating capacity or event space needed to effectively house events. The completion of the grandstand will allow for more events to be scheduled.

Sorteberg said seating "has maxed out" for the Thunder on Hooves bull ride the last couple of years. It is hoped a larger seating area and a potentially larger attendance will attract more sponsors to the event.

Possible events include concerts and additional sno-cross races. Sorteberg also said there has been talk of building a race car track.

Local woman faces charges

■ Letters threaten terrorist attacks on school events, activities

According to the Pennington County Attorney, felony charges will "probably" be brought against Wendy Louise Lehrer, 47, Thief River Falls, for terroristic threats. Lehrer has been under investigation after parents, school officials and local businesses began receiving anonymous letters with threatening messages.

Thief River Falls Police report receiving numerous complaints and copies of the letters that were sent to local citizens, businesses and school officials. One recent letter threatened a surprise attack during an October 17 high school football game between Thief River Falls and Hibbing. It stated that "something very serious is planned" for the football game scheduled to be held at Hibbing. It specifically stated, "a group of very dangerous persons were motivated by the WTC (World Trade Center) fire and plan to make their mark at that game." (A copy of this letter was mailed to The Times.) The letter stated that these persons are Afghani supporters, and have plans of "using bottle bombs, guns or whatever it takes."

The letter went on to state its author is not one of these people, and that she is only offering a warning. It was also stated that the game should be moved to Thief River Falls or cancelled.

Pennington County Attorney Al Rogalla said he is waiting for a statement issued by Lehrer before charges are brought, and she will "probably be charged on October 10."

Earlier, officials said they were investigating the incidents, and in the context of events that took place recently, had to take them seriously. As many as 20 letters of varying content are being investigated. Officials say the letter-writing began in May.

The incidents remain under investigation by Thief River Falls Police. Hibbing police were also notified and are involved in the investigation. Officials at both schools were also notified of the letters. Because of the content of the letter, the FBI was also contacted.

TRF Concert Association kicks off 2001-2002 season on October 18

Dressed in brilliant costumes, the multi-cultural Shangri-La Acrobats will kick off the 2001-2002 entertainment series of the Thief River Falls Concert Association on Thursday, October 18.

Series tickets are still available and can be purchased at The Times, Kezar Music, Super One, Hugo's or by calling Chuck Smith at 681-8000, ext. 1005. They can also be ordered from the Thief River Falls Concert Association, P.O. Box 312, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

The ticket price is good for the five performances which will be held throughout the season. Cost is $25 for adults, $60 for families and $10 for students.

Other performances will include the Hollywood Festival Orchestra and Singers on Friday, November 30; Marcoux Corner on Thursday, February 14; Tom Prin Trio on Friday, March 8; and Foothills Brass on Thursday, May 2. All of the performances will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln High School Auditorium.

The Shangri-La Chinese Acrobats will offer more than a glimpse into the fascinating Orient during their performance on October 16.

The program will include sensational Chinese acrobatics, balancing feats, Kung-Fu and much more — a true Oriental spectacular and show for all ages.

While the grace and precision of the acrobats are the triumph of years of dedicated training and discipline, their art was formed by centuries of tradition. Chinese acrobatics are, in fact, more than just a series of stunts. Most of these acts clearly demonstrate the achievement of perfection through finding harmony between mind and body — an ancient concept of the Orient.

This group has performed throughout South America, Central American, Southeast Asia, South Africa, Zimbabwe, Europe, Canada, New Zealand, Israel and the United States. It appeared with Liberace for four years, performing in Las Vegas, Lake Tahoe and Reno.

In addition to appearing on the Liberace NBC television special, the group has also been seen on the Family Channel's "Home and Family Show" with host Christina Ferrari, KTLA's "Good Morning, LA," New York One Network, CNN, The Wide World of Sports, "The Merv Griffin Show," "Oinah," and "That's Incredible," to name a few.

Two charged with obstruction of legal process

Law enforcement responded to a variety of incidents during the past week.

DWI. On October 3, 12:53 a.m., Joseph Ellis Weathers, 20, Thief River Falls, was cited for a first-degree DWI.

On October 7, 1:52 a.m., the Sheriff's Department cited Joel Montes Sanchez, 39, Warroad, with a third-degree DWI.

Consumption under age. On October 3, 12:53 a.m., Travis Glenn Morse, 20, Thief River Falls, was cited for consumption under 21.

Theft. On October 1, 2:26 p.m., police received a report of gray Nike football gloves taken from the mens' locker room at Northland Community and Technical College.

On October 2, 10:53 a.m., police received a report of two $100 Scheels gift certificates taken from the complainant's purse at Northland Community and Technical College.

Trespassing. On September 3, 8:20 p.m., Decolbie Jamar Esco, 19, Thief River Falls, was cited for trespassing.

Terroristic threats. On September 3, 7:20 p.m., a 17-year-old male from Thief River Falls has charges pending for terroristic threats.

Disorderly conduct. On October 3, 7:21 p.m., charges are pending against a 17-year-old male, Newfolden, and a 17-year-old male and two 15-year-old males from Thief River Falls, for disorderly conduct.

Accident. On October 6, 11:01 p.m., police responded to a motor vehicle accident at the 300 Block of Riverside Avenue South. Ross Allen Pederson, Thief River Falls, driving a 1987 Oldsmobile Coupe, was northbound on Riverside Avenue. While lighting a cigarette, Pederson ran into a 1991 Ford Probe owned by Troy David Fingalson, Thief River Falls, which was legally parked. Damage to Fingalson's vehicle is estimated at $1,000. Damage to Pederson's vehicle is estimated at $800.

Assault. On October 7, 4:15 p.m., Timothy Mark Beito, 41, Thief River Falls, was charged with fifth-degree assault after allegedly slapping a 13-year-old male.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Family Support Group meets Tuesday, Oct. 16

Parents, grandparents, teachers and day care providers are invited to a program featuring Deidre Jenson of Once Upon A Story at the October 16 meeting of the Family Support Group.

The meeting will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. Child care for registered children is available on site by calling 681-6259 or 681-6108.

Jensen will bring a wide variety of toys and products that teach through sharing and exploration. Subjects include science, math literacy and language. She will also display resource materials and classroom items for parents and teachers.

Family Support Group is for families of children with disabilities or special needs and provides an opportunity for families to network, share concerns, gather information and get to know one another. Currently, plans are being made for future support group activities.

For more information, call 681-6259 or 681-6108. Family Support Group is sponsored by Region 1 and 2 Directors Association.

Great Plains EMS in Thief River Falls and Crookston has changed hands. Friday, Tom Klyve (left), president of Great Plains EMS, announced the sale of the ambulance service to Brian Holmer of Crookston (right).

Great Plains EMS opens under new owner

Great Plains EMS in Thief River Falls and Crookston has changed hands. Friday, Tom Klyve, president of Great Plains EMS, announced the sale of the ambulance service to Brian Holmer of Crookston.

Great Plains EMS has served surrounding communities and counties as the ambulance provider since 1996. Holmer has been in emergency services since 1992 and eventually was employed by Great Plains EMS.

"Brian has worked in all areas of EMS, from First Responders to advanced level ambulance services. He has worked for me for many years and I am confident in his knowledge of the ambulance business. He will do a very good job of operating this company and providing continued quality care to the people of the area," said Klyve.

Holmer said Friday that he doesn't expect anything to change. Residents can still expect the same great service. Eventually, Holmer said he plans to start providing training to area residents in such areas as CPR, First Aid, and training for EMT and First Responders.

Access for an ambulance will still be through 9-1-1 or a local non-emergency dispatch number. Holmer said they will continue to operate paramedic-level ambulances in and out of stations in Crookston and Thief River Falls.

The business office for Great Plains EMS will be located at the EMS station in Crookston. A complicated part of business for all medical providers is the billing for service rendered and communication with insurance companies and government programs (Medicare and Medicaid). Holmer said Great Plains has used an outside billing firm, Star Claims, and will continue to use this billing service. Star Claims is a division of The Orion Group, Inc. Holmer says Orion is an EMS consulting, management and employee leasing company operated by Klyve with his partners in this business, Dr. Mark Lindquist of Detroit Lakes, O.J. Doyle Jr. of Apple Valley, and Gary Wingrove. Holmer noted that, although the billing office is not locally based, the local phone number for the EMS billing office is connected to Star Claims without a toll charge to the customer. The office staff at Star Claims has been handling the bill processing for many ambulance services for years and knows the business very well.

Holmer lives in Crookston, but will probably spend a great deal of time between Crookston and Thief River Falls. He is originally from Frazee. He has spent over nine years working and training in the emergency medical field.

Great Plains EMS has been and continues to be a privately-owned firm, which provides one of the three essential public safety services (police, fire and EMS) in the counties of Polk and Pennington and has done so without county subsidies since Klyve began to operate the services.

Klyve expanded his operation from Detroit Lakes to Thief River Falls in 1992. In 1995, two partners joined the business, Dr. Mark Lindquist of Detroit Lakes and O.J. Doyle, Jr. of Apple Valley. Klyve, the largest shareholder, has been an operating partner. In July 1995, Great Plains expanded and began to provide service in a portion of Polk County, including Crookston.

Klyve began his ambulance career in 1972 in Benson. In his nearly 30 year ambulance career he has worked as an EMT in Benson and Alexandria, a paramedic and supervisor in Fargo-Moorhead, a paramedic and operations director in Minneapolis-St. Paul and Detroit Lakes. He bought the ambulance service in Detroit Lakes in 1992.

Fatal roll-over near Baudette

The Minnesota State Highway Patrol reported a fatal vehicle roll-over accident on Highway 11, near Baudette, on October 5, 3:55 p.m.

Leslie Janine Campbell, 44, Baudette, driving a 1995 Chevy Blazer, and passenger Roxanne Campbell, 12, Baudette were west-bound on Highway 11. The vehicle, upon entering the west-bound ditch, was over-corrected, and then rolled three times. Both were ejected from the vehicle, and taken to Lakewood Health Center in Baudette for treatment. Leslie Campbell sustained fatal injuries. Roxanne Campbell received a broken arm. Neither party was wearing a seat belt.

Correction

In the October 3 edition of The Times, it was reported that the Marshall County Sheriff's Department confiscated two pounds of methamphetamine from a residence in Middle River. The article stated that the estimated street value of the confiscated drugs was $1 million. The correct estimated value is $100,000.

The Times regrets the error and any harm it caused.

Grandma Hugs takes charge of the show

■ Annual Fall Craft and Bake Sale will be conducted October 10-11 in TRF

Mae Howe is 94-years young today

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

"I don't think we could do it without her," Lois Bray says of her friend, Mae Howes.

Mae is the steamroller behind the annual fall craft and bake sale being conducted today (Wednesday, October 10) and tomorrow at the Seventh Day Adventist School gymnasium in Thief River Falls.

The Seventh Day Adventist School is located at 1004 Tindolph Ave. North. Sale hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow. Lunch will be served both days from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For more years than she can remember, Mae has organized the annual sale. However, she can tell you about a lot of years as October 10 is special for another reason. Mae Howes is 94 years young today.

One of the keys to her longevity appears to be hard work. In addition to organizing the annual fall sale event, Mae has provided many of the baked goods and crafts that are offered for sale.

"I thought there were 60," she said when referring to the 58 loaves of zucchini and pineapple bread that were wrapped and ready for sale at the school on Monday afternoon. She had also made a half dozen angel food cakes, 10 loaves of hobo bread, 10 dozen cookies, several packages of treats labeled for diabetics and more.

Mae's contributions to the sale didn't stop in her kitchen either. She has also made several holiday wreaths, complete with lights, and numerous crocheted items, including hot pads, doilies, dish clothes and the nylon pot scrubbers that she sells as fast as she makes.

Her sense of humor is evident in boxes of what Lois Bray calls Mae's "clever little crafts." Among those items are some cute loon magnets made of peach pits, "Don't Bug Me" fly swatters made of plastic canvas, portable washers and dryers fashioned from washers and clothespins, "prayer rocks" encased in a crocheted hearts with a clever, yet meaningful, poem and numerous other items, including Mae's favorite, her "cow herd seeds."

It's no wonder, Lois doesn't know if the sale would be possible without Mae.

Good genes may also be a contributor to Mae's longevity. She was born in 1907 in Argyle and says that her mother lived to be 86, her dad lived 97-1/2 years and "many" in her grandmother's family lived to be almost 100. Mae is of Swedish heritage with, she says, "a little itty bit of German."

When asked how many pills she takes each day, an incredulous look crosses her face as she tells you that she takes a vitamin every day. "I don't need any pills," she said. Mae's health history doesn't include any pill-taking either, and the only malady she reports is a broken ankle suffered when she went sliding in Duluth in the early 1940's when her children were young.

It's said Mae is healthier than her three children, too, a fact that doesn't necessarily please her. Daughter Ilene Ventrella is currently visiting from her home in Hoyt Lakes where Mae's son, Don, also resides. Son Marland lives in Anoka.

The children call their mother every week — Don on Wednesday evenings, from Marland, Mae says, at "8 a.m. sharp" on Sunday mornings and Ilene later in the day on Sundays. Don and his family visited last week, too, and had an early birthday celebration for Mae.

Mae's family tree also includes 11 grandchildren, 20 great-grandchildren and "finally," she says, one great great-grandchild. Mae's husband, Gene, died, she says, "14 years and two weeks ago."

Prior to moving to Thief River Falls 33 years ago, the family lived in Duluth, Grand Rapids and International Falls.

She's the first one at church on Saturday's and serves as the congregation's greeter. Everyone calls her Grandma Howes or Grandma Hugs, because hugs are her specialty.

The hugs are extended beyond church, too, and it's said it takes several extra minutes to get Mae out of the grocery store. Several cashiers and other workers at Hugo's, both female and male, get in line to get their hugs, a gesture that's obviously appreciated as evidenced in the bouquet of flowers Mae received from them for her birthday.

For more than 25 years, Mae was the leader of the Community Service Center and continues to work there several hours each week, sorting, mending and washing donated clothing.

She also mails church bulletins to missing church members every week and sends sympathy cards to the bereaved and new baby greetings to those who are celebrating the birth of a child.

Every Saturday afternoon, she visits her "old people" at Valley Home, Oakland Park and, if time, the CNC Unit at Northwest Medical Center. Of course, she brings homemade treats to share.

Mae keeps her own house, plants tons of flowers and has a garden. She cans produce and raises the zucchini she uses to make her breads. She also does baking for neighbors and friends, providing cookies and treats for the children of single parents, widowers and countless others.

Up until this year, Mae used a push mower to mow her lawn and, while she didn't give it up because she had to, she did relinquish the task to a youngster who, she says, wanted the job.

She drives during the warm weather months, and parks her car during the winter. As the weather gets colder, Mae will wait for the arena to open where she will walk two or three times a week. Eight trips around the building are equivalent to a mile, and while she doesn't walk fast, she keeps moving.

She's early to bed and early to rise and takes an early afternoon nap, turning off her phone so as not to be disturbed. Quiet times are spent with her daily devotions and reading books as fast as friends loan them to her.

Mae's contributions have not gone unnoticed as she was named Pennington County's Outstanding Senior Citizens some time, she thinks, during the 1980's. A modest lady, Mae's daughter says she was as hesitant to accept the award then as she was to do a story now. It was only with the pretense of promoting the craft and bake sale that she consented to an interview.

All of the funds raised by the craft and bake sale go to missions, a cause Mae believes in, although she now questions if we don't need to keep missionaries right here to do their work in the United States rather than send them to foreign countries. Her popular pot scrubbers are in demand from coast to coast and their sales and the sales of other items have already amounted to $134, all of which will go to missions.

> If Mae could be granted one wish it would be that "everyone love each other and be ready when Jesus comes."

If Mae could be granted one wish it would be that "everyone love each other and be ready when Jesus comes."

While she doesn't need it, a rocking chair has been brought to the Seventh Day Adventist School for Mae to sit in during the two-day sale. Chances are she won't be in it much, however, as she'll be sure to oversee those who are making fresh lefse and doughnuts and baking bread on site, serving the soup and sandwich lunch and manning the cash register. Had she not had a willing volunteer, she would have been on a ladder hanging the homemade decorations that adorn the sales area.

Mae says she doesn't know if she'll organize the event next year or not. "You say that every year," says Lois Bray, one of this inspirational lady's ardent fans.

The truth is the ladies of the Seventh Day Adventist Church might be able to pull off the sale without her, but it's doubtful that they would want to. No one, after all, distributes embraces like Grandma Hugs.

Mae Howes will spend her 94th birthday today (Wednesday, October 10) overseeing the annual craft and bake sale at the Seventh Day Adventist School gymnasium. It's a job Mae has had for more years than she can remember. In addition to organizing the event, Mae has made numerous loaves of bread and other baked goods along with many, many handcrafted items. Getting ready for the sale is a year-round affair for Mae, who, through her many activities has earned the nickname "Grandma Hugs."

Robin Bollesen and Jason Engen vows exchanged August 4 in TRF

Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls was the site of the August 4 nuptials of Robin Elizabeth Bollesen and Jason Lee Engen. Rev. Gary Johnson officiated at the 5 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Robert and Nona Bollesen and Jerome and Deb Engen, all of Thief River Falls.

Jackie Dennin, aunt of the bride, served as the pianist, performing "Cannon in D Major" by Johann Pachelbel for the processional and "Wedding March" by Felix Mendelssohn for the recessional. The groom's cousin, Stephanie Henney, was the reader.

The bride's sister-in-law, Kim Bollesen of Farmington, served as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Lezlie LaVoy of Milroy, sister of the groom; Elizabeth Pillai of Burnsville, cousin of the bride; Carisa Novak of St. Cloud, friend of the bride; Jennifer Risk of Eagan, friend of the couple; and Lisa Kiedrowski of Burnsville, friend of the couple.

Emily Engen, niece of the groom, was the flower girl, and Avery Hamre and Brady Hamre, friends of the bride, served as the miniature bride and groom.

Jennifer Nolan, friend of the couple, was the bride's personal attendant.

Jeremy Engen of Dilworth, brother of the groom, was the best man. Groomsmen were Russ Bollesen of Farmington, brother of the bride; Brendon Engen of St. Cloud, brother of the groom; Chris Tvietbakk of Minneapolis, friend of the couple; Kirk DeMerchant of Roseville, friend of the couple; and Wayne Iverson of Eagan, friend of the couple.

The guests were ushered by Ryan Iverson of Eagan, Justin Kempart of St. Cloud, Kent Larson of Minnetonka and Tony Miramontes of Thief River Falls, all friends of the couple.

Honored guests included the bride's grandmother, Helen Oennin of Litchfield, and the groom's grandparents, Lorena Lasha and Ron and Marie Engen, all of Thief River Falls.

Hosting the reception were Dona and Nealna Gylling, uncle and aunt and godparents of the bride, and Gary and Bobbi Jordet, uncle and aunt of the groom. The guest book was attended by Trisha Holland, cousin of the bride.

Serving punch and kransekage were Mike and Becca Jordet, cousins of the groom. Coffee was served by Claire Bollesen, cousin of the bride, and Renae Henney, aunt of the groom. The bride's godmother, Lenne Holland, served cake. Champagne was poured by Neil and Jackie Dennin, uncle and aunt of the bride, and Mike and Tracy Kloety, cousins of the groom. Waitresses included Katrina Johnson, Kristina Johnson, Kara Larson and Michelle Johnson, all friends of the bride.

Others assisting with the ceremony and reception were gift attendants Mike and Lenne Holland, godparents of the bride, and Michelle Lasha and Brad Curran, aunt and uncle of the groom; Paul Johnson, friend of the bride, who video taped the event; candid photographers, Tristan Holland and Vern Bollesen, both cousins of the bride; Geno Johnson, friend of the bride, who designed the programs; Melissa Green, friend of the couple, who served as flower attendant; and Petra Tvietbakk, friend of the couple, who assisted the bride with her makeup.

Robin and Jason are at home at 1780 52nd St. East, Apt. 304, in Inver Grove Heights.

A Special Letter of Thanks
We would like to thank everyone for the cards, memorials, flowers and gifts of nourishment extended to us as we grieve the loss of Keith.
We are comforted by your thoughts, hugs, prayers and your presence to help us through this tragedy.
Also a special thanks to Pastor Dennis Raymond for his comforting message, and to Pastor Gary Johnson for his help on Saturday.
Our thanks and gratitude to the ladies of Zion Lutheran Church for the lunch, and to Green-Johnson Funeral Home for their professional services, especially Erling, who guided us through this most difficult time.
GOD BLESS EVERYONE!
In loving memory

TRF Community Ed Dept. offers fall schedule

Variety describes the fall programs and class offerings of the Thief River Falls Community Education Department of Independent School District 564.

Latch Key is a child care program at Challenger Elementary School for children who are enrolled in grades K-5. The program opened September 4 and will continue through May 31, 2002 from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. and 3 to 6 p.m.

During these before and after school hours, children of working parents come through the doors to find warmth, companionship, nutritious food and safety. They are able to visit with their friends, get help with their homework, utilize the computer room, play in the gymnasium, enjoy art activities or outdoor activity.

The fee is $1.75 per hour for one child and $1.50 per hour for second, third and fourth children in a family. Registration forms are available at the Challenger office, Challenger Preschool office or Community Education office at the District Service Center. For more information, call 681-2362.

The Franklin Middle School After School Program began Monday, September 17. The program is currently funded by a grant and is available to all students at no cost. It offers an afternoon snack and a safe, structured, supervised and caring environment for sixth, seventh and eighth grade FMS students.

In addition to an opportunity for study time, the program offers a variety of recreational activities such as ping pong, foosball, board games, craft projects, computer time and access to the gym for basketball and volleyball.

Parents are encouraged to register their children for as much or as little supervised time as needed by individual children, depending on their activity schedules. Parents are also encouraged to use the program as an alternative to waiting in the school commons area for rides or sporting events to begin.

For more information, call Marsha Kezar, program coordinator, at 681-8813 (work) or 681-4889 (home).

SHARP (St. Hilaire Area Recreational Program) is a safe, structured, supervised, recreational-based program for students ages seven and up who live in the St. Hilaire area. The program is being offered at no cost to students and is currently funded by an After School Enrichment Grant from the Minnesota Department of Children, Families and Learning.

SHARP activities for the 2001-2002 school year will be organized in October. For more information, contact Stacy and Sean Mylirer, program directors, at 964-5093.

Big Brother/ Big Sister program continues to need adult mentors to match with the children on its waiting list. For more information, contact Yvonne at 681-8711, ext. 241.

Community Education offers a number of classes in the Home and Hobby category. Participants can register either by mail or in person at the Community Education office at the District Service Center.

Embossing with Brass for Beginners will be offered from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, October 16, in the Home Economics classroom at Franklin Middle School. Cost of the class is $10, and the required starter kit will be available at the class for $10. Martina Johnson is the instructor.

An Embossing with Brass Workshop for those who have had experience embossing with brass on paper will be held on Tuesday, October 23, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the Home Economics classroom at Franklin Middle School. Cost of the class is $10, and the $2 supply fee, payable at class, will pay for a set of eight cards and envelopes and other supplies. Martina Johnson will be the instructor.

Investing in the New Millennium will offered on Tuesdays, November 6-20 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Conference Room B at the District Service Center. While there is no fee for this class, pre-registration at the Community Education office is required so that materials can be prepared. Jay Stibbe of Edward Jones Investments will be the instructor.

Orchestra lessons will be available in scheduled six-week sessions for individuals, beginners to advanced, on violin, viola, cello and bass. The lessons will take place once a week between 3:45 and 5:45 p.m. in the Orchestra Room at Franklin Middle School only after registration and the $54 fee has been received. Derek Oruse is the instructor. Make up lessons will be available.

Bonnie Hallett will be the instructor for Group Guitar, a class designed for youth ages 12 and up and adults, on Fridays, October 12-26 and November 2-16, from 4 to 5 p.m. at Franklin Middle School. Cost for the class is $25.

Hallett will also be the instructor for Fiddle Faddle: Learn How to Fiddle on Fridays, October 12-26 and November 2-16, from 4 to 5 p.m. at Franklin Middle School. Cost for the class is $25.

Internet will offer participants the opportunity to learn about the Internet and how it works on Tuesday, October 25, from 6 to 9 p.m. in the Challenger Computer Lab. Cost is $20, and Ken Wiggs will be the instructor.

Riding the Internet Tidal Wave is designed to give parents information and access to the Internet. Special focus will be provided for parents with children with special needs so that more information about a disability or potential intervention strategies can be found. The class will be held Thursday, November 15, from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Challenger Media Center and fifth grade computer lab. Presenters will be Ken Wiggs and Helene McCauley. Cost is $20.

Community Education will also offer a number of activities in the Fun and Fitness category.

An After School Archery League for Franklin and Lincoln students will be held Mondays, from October 22 through November 26 at the Indoor Archery Range at the Old Arena. Instruction will be provided, and the league will meet from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. There is no charge for participants, and equipment will be provided free of charge by the Thief River Falls Archery Club. The program is funded through the After School Enrichment grant.

Participants in the Lincoln High School Weight Program will have the option of paying $50 per quarter or a $2 lifting fee each time he or she participates. Times are from 6 to 7 a.m. Monday through Friday and 5:30 to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Fall quarter will run from September through November, and winter quarter will run from December through February. Tammie BlackLance is the supervisor.

Lucy's Step and Aerobics class is on-going from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at the District Service Center. A $30 punch card is good for 15 sessions. Lucy Stancyk is the instructor.

Emily Story will be the instructor for Classical Dance at the Lincoln High School cafeteria and auditorium. Two 12-week sessions, Tuesdays, October 9 through January 15, and Tuesdays, January 22 through April 9, will culminate with a recital which has tentatively been scheduled for April 12.

Participants will learn about the techniques and fundamentals of ballet, tap and creative movement. While dancers of all ages are welcome, only those participating in both sessions will be eligible for recital participation. Cost is $90 per session.

Several activities will also be offered at the Franklin Pool.

Youth Swim Lessons began on Monday, October 8 and will continue Mondays through November 19. Times are 7 to 7:45 p.m. for Levels 1 and 2 and 7:45 to 8:30 p.m. for Levels 3, 4 and 5. Cost is $30.

The Infant and Preschool Aquatic Program begins today (Wednesday, October 10) and will continue Wednesdays through November 14 from 6:30 to 7 p.m. The purpose of the program is to develop a high comfort level and readiness to swim in children between the ages of six months and five years. Cost of the program is $20.

Swim Aerobics is offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 to 7 p.m. A $30 punch card is good for 15 individual daily sessions.

A family or individual pass is required for Lap Swimming Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 6 to 7:30 a.m. and Monday through Thursday from 6 to 7 p.m.

Franklin Pool may also be rented by the public for any type of occasion. Cost is $30 which includes two lifeguards. To schedule a time, contact the pool director at 681-8065.

Northland Honor Choir Festival slated for Oct. 16

On Tuesday, October 16, over 100 high school students from 16 area high schools will come together as part of the Northland Community College High School Honors Choir Festival.

This will be the 9th annual vocal festival hosted by NCTC, a tradition started by Les Torgerson, a retired NCTC music instructor. The highlight of this year's festival will be the participation of clinician/composer Nancy Galbraith.

Schools and music directors participating in this year's event include: Badger, Sara Ellenson; Bagley, Steve Ragan; Clearbrook/Gonvick, Sharon Johnson; Fisher, Mary Jane Karpuis-Brock; Goodridge, Kathryn Nordine; Greenbush/Middle River, Deland Elseth; Grygla/Gatzke, Gene Lunsetter; Heritage Christian School, Leslie Widner; Lincoln High School, Darcy Reese; Marshall County Central, Sheila Nelson; Oklee, Linda Box; Plummer, Nancy Pearson; Tri-County High School, Kathy England; Warroad, Steve Wymore; and Win-E-Mac, Charity Salmonson.

Students are nominated by their choir directors to take part in the event. Music for the festival was selected by guest clinician Nancy Galbraith of Pittsburgh, Penn. and NCTC music instructor Linda Samuelson. Music for students to practice and perform the day of the event will include pieces composed by Galbraith.

Students will come prepared and rehearse with Galbraith for several hours before presenting what they have accomplished at the Choral Works Concert.

Pieces scheduled for the concert include: "Christ by Whose Death the Church on Earth was Born," by Galbraith; "Gabi, Gabi," a South African praise song that will be accompanied by various percussion instruments; and "Seasons of Love," from the musical, "Rent." The final piece will be the premiere of a composition by Nancy Galbraith written specifically to be performed by this choir. The composition is a setting of two poems written by Dylan Thomas when he was still in his teens.

The festival will begin at 9 a.m. and include a master class in which four high school students will have the special honor of working one-on-one with Galbraith. These students will bring pieces that they are working on for the fall solo contest with Galbraith offering suggestions for improvement.

A vocal workshop with NCTC vocal instructor Vanessa Anderson will also be held throughout the day, providing students the opportunity to receive individual assistance with prepared pieces.

The majority of the day will consist of honors choir rehearsals under the direction of Galbraith and Samuelson.

The culmination of the day's work will be presented to the public at the Choral Works Concert at 2:30 p.m. at Lincoln High School Auditorium. Catherine Hagen is the Northland ensemble accompanist who will be accompanying the Honors Choir during its rehearsals and performance as well as the other participating choirs.

The NCTC Chamber Choir, under the direction of Linda Samuelson, is slated to perform several pieces, including "Come to the Music" with piccolo and percussion accompaniment; "Sing Ev'ry Mornin' and Noon and Night," an upbeat a cappella gospel-inspired number; and "In Unity and Love," composed by Nancy Galbraith.

Also scheduled to perform is the community-based Masterworks Chorale singing "Missa Mysteriorum," composed by Galbraith for SATB choir and chamber ensemble accompaniment and the Trinity Senior Choir.

Admission for the Choral Works Concert at Lincoln High School at 2:30 p.m. on October 16 is $3 for adults and $2 for students.

For more information, contact Linda Samuelson, NCTC Music Department, at 681-0733.

UMC offers western riding skills course

The University of Minnesota, Crookston will offer a course in western riding skills beginning Thursday, October 18.

The class will cover grooming, handling, safety, identification of equipment, saddling, mounting, correct body position or equitation, cues and their proper uses, ground work and various riding techniques for the beginner or intermediate rider. The class will focus on proper equitation skills and techniques for riding and showing. The class will also provide time for personal instruction. Riders will provide their own horses and equipment.

The class will meet Thursday evenings, beginning October 18, and continuing through November 15. The course includes 10 hours of instruction, and upon successful completion, participants will be eligible for one Continuing Education credit (CEU) from the UMC Center for Adult Learning. All classes will meet in the UMC UTOC Arena on the UMC campus.

Course fees are $125 per participant, and class sizes are limited to 10 participants per section to provide for individual attention. Classes are targeted for beginning to intermediate riders 18 years of age and older. Younger riders wishing to participate may add their names to a waiting list and will be contacted to fill any remaining openings as the start of classes approaches.

For more information or to register, contact the UMC Center for Adult Learning at (218) 281-8681 or www.crk.umn.edu/cal/profworked or email steer003@mail.crk.umn.edu.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

At the finish of a Bach piece played on Minnesota Public Radio last week, the velvet-voiced host observed, "After a Bach piece, it is possible to think all is well with the world."

This past September 12, a cellist who lived near the World Trade Center set out carrying his instrument and a folding chair towards the smoldering wreckage of the twin towers. Guards let him through the barricades. The musician set up within earshot of resting rescue workers, where he played Bach's mournful Suite for Unaccompanied Cello.

Only the music of Johann Sebastian Bach could appear at such a place, at such a time, and seem not only appropriate, but enriching and uplifting.

With 100 channels of television, the Internet, radio and newspapers, it is possible—even out here in the woods during this charmed season, miles from anything that matters—to feel overwhelmed by the sadness of world affairs.

There soon comes a time to switch off the modern gadgets which funnel the troubles of the world into one's living room, and turn on a modern gadget which can soothe one's soul, a stereo. More specifically, a stereo tuned to the music of Bach.

One can drift off into other musical regions—into the light-hearted brilliance of Mozart, the demogogic bombast of Beethoven, the ragged rawness of the Rolling Stones, the twanging pangs of Hank Williams, Sr., or the mind-numbing vapidity of modern pop—but when an existential funk looms, it's back to Bach.

A picture is worth a thousand words, but great music speaks volumes. In fact, it is difficult to describe great music without coming across as pompous and pretentious. (Please refer to the previous paragraph.)

But I must try. Everybody knows some Bach. His music shows up in video games, on pinball machines, in television commercials, in movies, on cell phone ringers, at weddings. You can't miss it. It's everywhere.

Bach died in 1750. For the next 70 years, his music languished unplayed in his attic. One of Bach's sons sold about half of the sheets for fishwrap to support his beer-drinking habit.

Once his music was rediscovered, Bach's astounding genius became apparent. Today, his music is played well, played badly, played to sell toothpaste, played to scare movie goers, played at state funerals and royal weddings, played on every instrument from the bowunga to the bassoon, all over the world.

You can listen to a Bach piece hundreds of times, even play one from memory, without hearing or understanding all that is going on—yet, that same piece can charm a child. When performed well by warm-hearted and thoughtful musicians, the music of Bach leaves one with that same content feeling you get from downing a plateful of fluffy mashed potatoes.

But words fail. Purchase a Bach recording. My favorite disc at present is Stowkoski's Symphonic Bach, recorded by the BBC Orchestra. Listen to the recording 20 times. If you are not enriched by the old man's music, send the recording to me. The day I receive it, I will drop a crisp $20 in the mail to you, enclosed in a sympathy card.

Honor guards of American Legion Post 117, VFW No. 2793, and Minnesota National Guard, Company B 2nd Battalion 136th Infantry, Thief River Falls, participated in the "United We Stand Tailgate Rally" at the Prowler vs. Duluth Central football game held in Thief River Falls Friday evening. The event included dinner, performances by the Lincoln High School Choir and band, and a half-time ceremony. Organizers estimated that they will raise approximately $13,000 for the American Red Cross relief effort.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Brittany Larson, Lincoln High School

I wanted to write a light, frivolous column this week – I really did. Yet every time I tried, my thoughts were invaded by September 11 and all of the weighty consequences of that horrific day. Suddenly the ins and outs of high school life seemed so trivial. While I may only be 17, and don't have first-hand familiarity with the anguish resulting from Pearl Harbor or JFK's assassination, I am still an American . . . an American unable to ignore the anxiety and sense of violation that consumes our nation.

When I sleepily shuffled into the drama room that ill-fated morning, the television was already blaring. "Did you hear what happened?", someone asked me, eager to break the news. Dazed, I simply nodded – even though I was completely unaware. Unfortunately, I found out soon enough.

CNN replaced many lesson plans as the day dragged on in a barrage of breaking news. The television images were seared into our memories as we watched in disbelief, transfixed to the screen. Each report seemed more discouraging that the one before it. I almost wanted them to turn the television off – to escape the pain and sorrow. However, at the same time I felt compelled to watch the tragedy evolve . . . to see history unfold. When we did finally abandon the TV in choir, it was to join hands in a student-initiated, solemn and heartfelt prayer. Without the noise and hype of the media, the events of the day could be put into perspective. Sadly, what we had observed on television was not fiction, but real-life drama. How could a convoluted interpretation of a religion drive seemingly ordinary men to become terrorists?

Although America's future may be unclear just now, it does look as though war is on the horizon. I know that this triggers mixed feelings among many high school students, who often relate war with the blockbuster films, saturated with blood and gore. The thought of more innocent people perishing upsets many teenagers – a rational fear. A Washington Post journalist tries to dispel this concern by explaining, "The point is not to swat every mosquito, but to drain the swamp." In other words, the Taliban and al Qaeda are not sitting pretty. President Bush also amusingly assured, "When I take action, I'm not going to fire a $2 million missile at a $10 empty tent and hit a camel in the butt. It's going to be decisive."

Yet even if the planning is strategic, war is an experience that America's current high school students have only confronted once, when very young. That was the Gulf War, a conflict that resulted in less than 300 American deaths in a faraway land. Now, over 6,000 Americans have lost their lives . . . and it happened right here on our own soil. America has to reach back to the Civil War to find death tolls that compare.

I have never considered myself to be a flag-waving, freedom fanatic. But the rush of patriotism, both nationally and locally, has succeeded in sweeping me up, too. Since September 11, "The Star-Spangled Banner" has taken on a deeper significance. The words are so real now that I can't sing or hear them without getting goose bumps and a feeling of pride. No longer is patriotism simply an abstract concept. For the first time in my life, I understand what being an American is all about.

Brad Olson and Roger Shaffer were among volunteers serving up meals at the "United We Stand Tailgate Party" held Friday during the Prowler vs. Duluth Central football game at the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls. The event honored emergency and law-enforcement personnel, and raised money for the American Red Cross effort to help victims of the September 11 terrorist attack.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...This Is Not The Time

It was bad enough last week, before there was a war, but now I am really ashamed to be a Minnesotan.

First of all, I'll tell you, I am an advocate of unions. I firmly believe that average workers need someone to go to battle for them, especially in these smaller towns. Many of us here in Thief River Falls could use a little union help to get wages and benefits that would compare with some of the towns south of us. Some of us are low men (and women) on the totem pole and could sure use the union's help up here. I'd join one in a minute if I could.

But this is just not the time to have a strike!

Right now we are a country at war. Since September 11, we have been under siege, worried where the next terrorism would be. The strikes were postponed for a while after September 11. But now state employees are striking in Minnesota!

Shame on somebody! What lousy timing! You couldn't have chosen a worse time to strike. Wasn't there someone who dared speak up and tell the union that this was a bad idea? Someone should have jumped up and down and stamped around to get the union's attention and said, "Hey, guys - this is a really bad time to go on strike!" But I guess nobody did that.

The object of a strike is to gain public sympathy for your cause. Nearly any other time you might have had quite a few sympathizers, but now...sorry. Right now most of us in this state, throughout the country and in most other countries in the world, are not going to spend time thinking about Minnesota state workers. We are busy thinking about our military men and women and our country's leaders and citizens and our own families, because we still do not know where the next act of terrorism will be. We are busy feeling bad for the poor women and children and old people caught between the rock of the military might of the U.S. and the hard place of the Taliban government. We don't have any compassion left over for state strikers. We are using it all up on worrying about the state of the world.

Striking right now is just not the thing to do. It looks selfish - it looks like you don't care about anyone but yourselves - it looks like you are not good citizens. And it is making it look like all Minnesotans feel this way. Is this really the time to quibble about a few cents an hour or paying a few cents for health insurance? Let it go for now.

Tell the powers that be, the union representatives, that you are putting down your signs and postponing your petitions for a later date. Right now you and your union have more to think about than yourselves. Pick up the signs and the issues at a later date, after we have resolved this war.

Go back to work and put some of that energy into doing something for the families of the victims of the bombings, do something for the Afghanis who have been so mistreated, do something for the servicemen and women who are working so hard for us.

Walk up and down with signs advertising a spaghetti supper or a bake sale to raise funds for some of these worthy projects. Go down to the church basement and cook the spaghetti supper or bake the bars. Write letters to state and federal government officials to tell them you support what they are doing. Do anything to help the country and our state right now. People will think much the better of you for it.

But don't make us ashamed to be from Minnesota, ok?

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I plan to file for retirement soon. How do I go about it? What documents do I need?

A. Filing for Social Security retirement is a fairly simple process. Applications can be completed in SSA offices, by telephone, and on a limited basis, over the Internet.

For Internet applications, visit the SSA web site at www.ssa.gov. For applications in person or by telephone, call the SSA national toll free line at 800-772-1213 and make an appointment about two months or so before you want your checks to begin.

Local offices are informed of the appointment times and complete the application with you. During an interview which takes approximately 45 minutes, you are asked questions which will help representatives properly compute benefits, determine if you are eligible on the record of someone else, such as a spouse, or see if someone else is eligible on your record.

Representatives help you select the best month to begin benefits based on your actual retirement plans and explain overall Social Security requirements.

Documents need vary but routinely include an original birth certificate, your most recent W-2 form or tax return if self-employed and bank information for direct deposit.

Expect to be asked about marriage information including your spouse's name, birth date, date of marriage and Social Security number. This will include questions about multiple marriages.

Information about children will be required only if they are under the age of 19 or severely disabled.

You will be asked about military service, and sometimes, representatives will ask to see your DD-214 military record.

Applicants should be aware of definite retirement plans including the date of when you plan to retire and how much you expect to earn in both the calendar year before you retire and the year in which you actually retire. Include any part-time work you plan to do.

Of course, the interview is not a one-way street. Applicants are encouraged to ask questions also.

When an interview is conducted by telephone, the application forms will be mailed and returned with the needed documents. In all cases, documents are returned to the applicant.

Silver Creek to host annual turkey supper Oct. 14

Silver Creek Lutheran Church will hold its annual turkey supper on Sunday, October 14, from 4 to 7:30 p.m. at the Eagles Club in Thief River Falls.

The menu will feature turkey and dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, corn, lefse, rolls, cranberries, pickles and dessert.

Baked goods, crafts, needlework and garden produce will also be offered for sale.

Everyone is welcome. Ticket prices are $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under.

The event is co-sponsored by Silver creek Lutheran Church and Lutheran Brotherhood NW Minnesota Branch 8129 with matching funds from Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 9590.

Fall dinner at St. Bernard's church Sunday, Oct. 14

A fall dinner will be held at St. Bernard's Catholic Church on Sunday, October 14, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The menu will include Swiss steak, mashed potatoes, mushroom gravy, green beans, coleslaw, pickles, rolls, pumpkin dessert and beverages.

Tickets for the meal are $6 for adults, $2 for children 10 and under or $20 for a family.

The event will also feature bingo, a bakewalk and cash raffle drawings at 2 p.m.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Andrea Hagen, Lincoln High School

For my senior year of high school, I decided not to play volleyball. It was a tough decision for me because I have been in it since I was in third grade. When I broke the news to my parents, it didn't go over well. They asked me to reconsider my decision. After much debating, I agreed to play for my last season. I must admit it was primarily to make my parents proud.

Practice began at eight in the morning. I stepped into the gym and saw my teammates. I never really hung out with those girls, but they were all special to me in their own way. It didn't take me long to realize that I have grown apart from them. There was a camaraderie that I was no longer a part of. It was hard to believe how we all have changed over the past year, but the change was refreshing, and I realized that this was just the way our last year should be.

The weeks of hard work, sweat and tears went by. I noticed there was a difference between all the other seasons and this one. We all put our hearts into it. Not every practice went well, but everyone gave it their all. We had practiced with just as girls for a few weeks, then with the coaches for one week. I had two part-time jobs at the time, and with twice a day practices, I found the whole experience to be very trying. But it was try-out week that broke me. In my mind I kept regretting even going there every morning.

I should have seen it coming when they stopped observing me on the second day. I felt invisible. I was even put with the younger teams for our six-on-six scrimmages. Nothing against the younger girls, but when you see a junior or a sophomore put in your position with the team, it is not generally a good situation to be in.

The last day of try-out week finally came. We had just begun hitting lines when they started individually calling some of the seniors into a small meeting room. I convinced myself everything would work out for the best as I made my way down the hall. I sat down in the chair, which was still warm from whomever was before me.

There they sat. Three coaches on one side, me on the other. The moment I looked into their eyes, I knew. They apologized and gave me their reasons. The way they tried to justify what they were doing to me was almost humorous. I had participated in this sport for nearly a decade. All of the years build up to your senior year, and now I could not even take part in mine.

The thought of someone else having my number on her jersey still makes me sick, but that is just something I have to deal with. I haven't made it to a single game this season. Part of me wants to cheer on the girls I have gone through so many "heartships" with because I know this is in no way their fault. I wish I would have known it was going to turn out this way, though I still would have tried. It is just sad to me that any kid would have to go through being cut. I also realize that I have learned so much from this experience. I just don't know what yet.

PARENTING TIPS

Too Many Toys?

Eventually almost every child will have more toys than he/she can use or more than you have room for. When this happens, your child may drift from one toy to another for only brief or superficial play. One solution to this problem is to put some of the toys away for a while.

When you pack some of the toys away for a while, several things can happen.

- Fewer toys are easier to pick up and put away.
- Fewer toys encourage your child to be more resourceful and inventive in looking for ways to play with the available toys.
- When you rotate the toys, the "new" toys that are coming out of storage will be interesting and fun.

If your child is old enough, he/she can help decide which toys to put away and which ones to bring out. These periodic switches also offer a good opportunity for you to examine the toys. If repairs are needed, make them. If the toy is damaged beyond repair, discard it or salvage whatever may be reusable. A "junk" box of old toy parts can be a treasure chest to an older child who like to tinker with construction projects.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Name the toys that you are taking out of storage. Ask your child what he/she might do with each thing.

These Girl Scouts recently received the Girl Scout Silver Award, which is the highest award a Cadette Girl Scout can earn. It is symbolic of accomplishments in Girl Scouting and community activities. There are four requirements of the Silver Award: build skills, explore careers, gain leadership skills and make a commitment to improving themselves. The final activity is the Silver Award project, which reflects what the Girl Scout has learned in Scouting and be of benefit to others. These girls made gift packages for children being placed in foster care. Each kit contained gifts and toiletries. State cost-share funds available for organic producers

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) has announced that $35,000 is available through the Organic Certification Cost-Share Program this year. The Organic Certification Cost-Share Program helps defray production costs for Minnesota organic producers by partially reimbursing them for up to two-thirds of the cost for organic inspection and certification.

MDA Commissioner Gene Hugoson said the cost-share program fits well with the Department's goal of giving farmers flexibility to adapt to marketplace developments.

"Organic foods are the most rapidly growing sector of the retail food industry both in the U.S. and in Europe," Commissioner Hugoson said. "This innovative cost-share program helps Minnesota producers meet the increased demand for organic products, and it helps them stay competitive in the 21st Century global marketplace."

Applications are being taken through January 31, 2002, for certifications granted for the 2001 crop year. Producers are eligible for up to five years of payments, with a maximum annual payment of $200 per producer. Eligible applicants will receive pro-rated payments if demand for the program exceeds this total. Rules for administering this program were developed with input from organic industry representatives through the Department's Organic Advisory Task Force.

The MDA also asks organic farmers to complete a statewide organic survey to find out what MDA services and programs they would like to see offered in the coming years.

For an application, a survey or more information, contact the MDA's Sustainable Agriculture Program Supervisor Mary Hanks, at 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul MN, 55107. She can be reached by phone at 651-296-1277, or by e-mail at mary.hanks@state.mn.us or visit the MDA website at www.mda.state.mn.us.

Arena walking program begins on October 29

Thief River Falls Arena Walking program will begin its 15th year at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls on Monday, October 29.

The arena walking program was launched 15 years ago to encourage people to walk on a regular basis as part of their exercise and fitness program. Exercise and fitness remains its primary focus today.

The Arena Walking program is sponsored by the Dakota Clinic - TRF and Northwest Medical Center and is available to the community through cooperation with the City of Thief River Falls. Individuals interested in participating in the program may register at the front desk of Northwest Medical Center beginning October 24. The registration fee is $3. Participants will received a book for logging miles at the time of registration.

A series of awards has been developed to award walkers for their efforts. Upon reaching goals of 50, 100, 200, 300, 400 and 500, walkers are asked to contact Gail Holland at Northwest Medical Center.

The Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center is available for walking seven days a week, but certain time restrictions must be imposed to allow other activities to take place at the arena. Walkers are invited to use the facility daily from 7:30 a.m. to closing. Participants are discouraged from walking during hockey games, recreational skating and other activities using the arena. No walking will be allowed from 7:30 a.m. to noon on days after hockey games, which allows clean-up crews to complete their tasks. Walkers are asked to keep safety in mind at all times when walking. The City of Thief River Falls Parks and Recreation department is asking that all walkers treat skaters with courtesy, even if it means slowing down your walk in that area. Better yet, when recreational skating is in session, walk forward and back and avoid the front area altogether.

For more information about the program, contact Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at Northwest Medical Center at 218-683-4210.

Insurance carriers warned about using act of war exclusion

by Jim Bernstein
MN Commerce Commissioner

Since the tragic events of September 11, concerns have been raised that insurance companies may try to invoke an "act of war exclusion" in the insurance policies covering the loss of life and property that resulted from the horrific attacks. As Minnesota's insurance regulator, it is clear to me that these exclusions cannot, and should not, be applied in this case.

Act of war exclusions are rare in life insurance policies issued today, although they have been commonly used in the past during times of war or impending war. Some life insurers do use "terrorism exclusions," but only for individuals traveling to areas where terrorist attacks are common. War exclusions in property insurance are more common. However, based on our analysis it seems clear that the attacks in New York, or the Pentagon, or on the plane that crashed in Pennsylvania do not constitute "acts of war" as contemplated by the language of these exclusions. An "act of war" must be committed by a foreign government, a sovereign, or at least a recognizable authority utilizing military force.

The United States Congress has forcefully stated its position on this issue. Within days after the attacks, the chairs of the House Financial Services Committee and the Insurance Subcommittee signed a letter directed to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners declaring that "through necessity our government is expressing America's outrage through words of war. But this rhetoric reflects the passion and determination of our country, not the legal reality of Tuesday's destruction. Any attempt to evade coverage obligations by either primary insurers or reinsurers based on such legal maneuvering would not only be unsupportable and unpatriotic — it would tear at the faith of the American people in the insurance industry." I agree, as do other state insurance regulators.

Fortunately, the insurance industry has indicated that it has every intention of stepping up to the plate and fairly paying claims related to the terrorist attacks. Companies such as Chubb Corp., American International Group Inc., Hartford Financial Services Group Inc., and the St. Paul Companies have already stated that they won't invoke act of war provisions. In addition, at least two large Bermuda-based reinsurers, Ace Ltd. and XL Capital Ltd., have stated that they are proceeding on the basis that the war-risk exclusions are not applicable.

However, in the event that an insurer were to attempt to take unfair advantage of its policyholders by hiding behind an act of war exclusion, I will not hesitate to intervene. I will call upon every resource available to me to guarantee that every insurance company under the authority of this Department fulfills its contractural, moral, and patriotic obligations to those who suffered loss of life or property as a result of these tragic events.

What to do when your child is being bullied

MN Parent Center
a project of PACER Center inc.

Every day some children miss school or don't want to go because they are upset by or afraid of bullies. In many cases, children don't tell an adult about the bullying because they think it will only make things worse, or they believe adults will do nothing.

What can parents do? First they need to understand what bullying is, say PACER Center's Minnesota Parent Center staff. It is not friendly teasing, nor is it harassment, which is more severe and defined by law. State laws and Minnesota school policies protect against harassment.

Stopping bullies is difficult, and your child may need to try several ideas. The Minnesota Parent Center lists tips from experts that may help your child cope with bullies.

Survival tips for kids:

1. Stay with other children. It is harder to bully someone when they are in a group.

2. Think about why you are being bullied and if there is anything that you might do differently.

3. Learn to walk away, even if what a bully says upsets you. Most bullies pick on children who get upset.

4. If you decide to respond, practice what you will say to bullies. For example:

- Tell the bully you don't like what they are doing.
- Answer the bully with a joke. Most bullies don't expect a funny response.

5. Tell your family that someone is bullying you. They can give you ideas on what to do. Your family can contact the school and tell what is happening to you.

6. Tell an adult at school that you are being bullied. It is their job to help stop the bullying.

7. Find and join an activity that you enjoy such as a club or sport at school or at your community center. It will build confidence and help you make friends who will support you.

The Minnesota Parent Center will present a program on preventing bullying on Tuesday, October 9, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Anwatin Middle School in Minneapolis. It will involve Peter Yarrow of the folk group Peter, Paul and Mary. Admission is free. To register call the Minnesota Parent Center at PACER Center at 952-838-9000, toll-free at 1-800-537-2237 or register online at www.pacer.org.

Carlson elected alternate angus delegate at event

Charles Carlson of Thief River Falls has been elected as an alternate delegate to the 118th annual meeting of the American Angus Association, November 12, in Louisville, Ky.

Carlson, a member of the American Angus Association with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo., is one of 336 Angus breeders who have been elected by fellow members to serve as an alternate state representative at the annual meeting. Representing 46 states and Canada, the state delegates will participate in the business meeting and elect a new president, vice president and five directors to the American Angus Association board.

The annual meeting is held in conjunction with the annual banquet, and the Super Point Roll of Victory Angus show, November 11-13, during the North American International Livestock Exposition.

The American Angus Association has more than 35,000 active members and is the largest beef breed organization in the world.

Franklin parent/teacher conferences

Franklin Middle School will once again be taking phone calls for the scheduling of parent/teacher conferences. Starting on Wednesday October 10 and again on Thursday, October 11 from 4:30 to 8:00 p.m., volunteers will be on hand to help with the scheduling of conferences. We ask that you please call 681-8813 between the hours listed and let us know which day you would prefer, Monday October 15 or Tuesday October 16. The call will then be transferred to the appropriate volunteer.

Conferences will be scheduled only via phone calls. Please do not come into the office to do your scheduling. We under stand that calling can become a long process due to the number of the phone calls that will be coming in. We would like to ask for your patience as there is only one volunteer per scheduled day of conferences. All calls will be taken in the order that they are received. Thank you again for your patience and understanding. The staff at Franklin looks forward to visiting with each and every parent/guardian during conferences this year.

Gift packages, containing a variety of toys and toiletries were donated by Girl Scouts of Troop 81 in Thief River Falls recently to representatives of Pennington County Human Services. The packets will be given to children being placed in foster care. For their hard work and dedication, the Girl Scouts were awarded the Girl Scout Silver Award. Motorcycle training needed

Following a surge in motorcycle popularity, motorcycle crashes are again on the rise. After declining from 3,308 in 1980 to 971 in 1997, motorcycle crashes have been increasing again. There were 1,135 reported crashes in 2000. The majority of these were "single-vehicle" incidents where the rider fell down or collided with a fixed object. Safety training could have helped avoid many of these crashes.

Recipients of the Girl Scout Silver Award and members of Troop 81, enjoyed putting together packets for children who will be placed in foster care.

Since the mid-eighties, the Minnesota Motorcycle Safety Center has been training motorcyclists in the mental and physical skills necessary for safe riding. In 1985, the MMSC trained about 400 riders. The program has grown at an annual rate of about 15 percent. Last year they trained almost 6,000 beginning and experienced riders across the state. While these figures are encouraging, they pose a new problem: finding and training enough qualified instructors to handle the workload.

According to Karen Kadar, Training Director for the MMSC, many of the instructors don't teach motorcycle safety because they need the money, they do it because it's fun.

"Most of our instructors have full-time jobs and plenty of other responsibilities," said Kadar. "Teaching gives them an opportunity to give something back to motorcycling. Besides, it's good work. The pay is good, and they get to be out in the fresh air doing what they love best, talking about motorcycles."

Classes typically run evenings and weekends from April through October, and instructors are asked to teach five classes per year. Until recently, the MMSC has been able to keep up fairly well with the demand. But with 20,000 new riders last year and 10,000 more bikes on the road, the demand is outstripping the supply.

The MMSC is looking for people to teach safety courses, especially in greater Minnesota. Instructor candidates go through intensive training and are certified by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation. New Instructors can go on to teach the Experienced Rider Course, Dirt Bike School, In-Traffic Training, and the Sidecar/Trike Education Program. Anyone interested in learning more should contact the MMSC at 800-407-6677 or visit www.motorcyclesafety.org.

High school instrumental solo contest held et NDSU

The Twenty-First Annual Young Artists Solo Competition will be held at the Reineke Fine Arts Center, North Dakota State University, Fargo, N.D., on Saturday, January 5, 2002 at 1:00 p.m.

The competition is open to all students in grades 10 through 12, living within 150 miles of Fargo-Moorhead. The students may play any musical instrument, but repertory must be from an approved list of pieces.

Cash awards of $500, $400 and $300 will be offered for first-, second- and third-place winner. Scholarships from all three of the area colleges will be offered to the first place winner, and will receive the Musical Arts Award. Parent will escort the winner on an exciting two-night Twin Cities arts event. The top performer will also have the opportunity to give a solo performance with the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony during its Family Concert on February 7, 2002, at the discretion of the music director.

Applications and fees must be received in the KCCM office on the Outreach Center at concordia College in Moorhead, no later than 5:00 p.m. on Friday, November 30, 2001.

Applications, repertory lists and posters have been mailed to area music teachers and others. Additional copies may be obtained by writing to Young Artists Solo Competition, KCCM 91.1 FM, 901 Eight Street South, Moorhead, MN 56562; or by calling 218-299-3666.

The event is sponsored by KCCM 91.1 FM, Minnesota Public Radio, and the Fargo-Moorhead Symphony Guild.

Wells Fargo give aid to the Red Cross

Together Wells Fargo team members, customers and other individuals have contributed over $2.9 million to the American Red Cross disaster relief fund in support of efforts to assist victims and families of the September 11 national disaster. This is in addition to the $1 million dollar gift that the corporation made on behalf of all 120,000 team members immediately after the September 11 terrorist attacks.

"We've seen tremendous outreach from everyone during the past few weeks," said Lenae Iverson, community banking president of Wells Fargo in Thief River Falls. "Customers and other individuals have donated $2.6 million through a Wells Fargo Red Cross account set up at local Wells Fargo banking stores across the country. Another $285,000 have been funneled through WellsFargo.com to the Red Cross.

Wells Fargo is one of only five Internet sites authorized to accepts donations on behalf of the American Red Cross and the only site authorized to accept e-check donations.

"Hopefully this gift of nearly $4 million dollars will make life a little easier for the victims of this tragedy and we continue to accept donations to the Red Cross Relief Fund," said Iverson.

Brianna Drevlow, Brianna Sandeen and Meura Nelson were among those who enjoyed visiting with Miss Minnesota, Kari Ann Knuttila, at the Prowler/Detroit Lakes volleyball game last week. Kari's hometown is Detroit Lakes and she is currently a senior at the College of St. Benedict.

Miss Minnesota visits TRF

Kari Knuttila, the reigning Miss Minnesota, was in Thief River Falls last week to attend the Thief River Falls Lincoln High School volleyball game versus Detroit Lakes.

Kari is a native of Detroit Lakes and the niece of Marcia Knuttila of Thief River Falls. The 21-year-old is currently a student at the College of St. Benedict. She is employed as a private piano teacher, church and choir accompanist and hostess at a supper club. Hobbies include collecting spoons, travel, sports and reading.

Last month, Kari represented Minnesota in the Miss America Scholarship Pageant in Atlantic City.

The following is an excerpt from the souvenir program:

"My parents always told me I can accomplish anything if I set a goal and take steps to work toward it," says Kari. "That is the lesson I take with me with all I do in life." Kari opened her own piano studio at the age of 15. She says, "To be able to share my passion of music with my students and have an impact on their lives has been a dream come true." Her aunt and piano teacher is her most valued role model. "I admire her gift of teaching and her gift of spirit," says Kari. "I teach the way I do because of her."

-Marcia Knuttila is, of course, the very proud role model Kari speaks of. Her pride, Marcia says, extends beyond Kari to include her sisters, Kimberly, 23, and 14-year-old Kathryn, and the young women's parents, Steve, an investment representative, and JoAnne, a religious education director.

Kari's future plans - include obtaining a degree in music education and becoming a motivating high school choral directing and having a private piano and voice studio.

Women's Hall of Fame nominations sought

Nominations will be accepted until December 1 for women to be considered for induction into the Northwest Minnesota Women's Hall of Fame.

Recipients will be inducted into the Hall of Fame on March 2, 2002 at the opening celebration of Women's History Month at Bemidji State University. Inductees have an original oil portrait commissioned for display in the permanent Women's Hall of Fame exhibit in the A.C. Clark Library on the BSU campus.

Nominees, living or deceased, must have demonstrated a connection to the area of northwest Minnesota that includes the counties of Beltrami, Cass, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

"The women in the Hall of Fame are exemplary role models who have had a positive and significant impact on the social fabric of northwest Minnesota," said Dr. Patricia Rosenbrock, director of Women's Studies at BSU. "Each has left a legacy that will endure far into the future. It is with pride that Bemidji State University and the Northwest Minnesota Women's Fund have made a long-term commitment to co-sponsor this project."

A selection board will review the individual nominees based on each person's significant contribution to art, athletics, business, government, philanthropy, humanities, science or education. In particular, the nominee's achievements and contributions must be of enduring and lasting value to society, significant groups within the region or to the progress and freedom of women.

In addition to the nominee's name and contributions, the nomination should include the person's accomplishments, biographical data, educational background and awards. Additional items showing evidence of a lasting legacy and impact in the region are encouraged and might include news articles written either by or about the nominee and letters of support.

Previous inductees are Coya Knutson of Oklee, Helen Gill of Bemidji, Hazel Wahlberg of Roseau, Ruth Edevold of Bagley, Gretehen Beito of Thief River Falls, Margaret Marvin of Warroad and Esther Home of Naytahwaush.

Individuals or groups wishing to recommend outstanding women for this award may receive application materials by contacting the Northwest Minnesota Foundation at (218) 759-2057 or 800-659-7859 or on its web site at www.nwmf.org/WomenHoF.htm.

Completed forms and supporting material can be mailed to the attention of Lisa Peterson, Northwest Minnesota Foundation, 4225 Technology Drive NW, Bemidji, MN 56601 or transmitted by facsimile to her attention at (218) 759-2328.

For additional information, contact Dr. Patricia Rosenbrock, director of Women's Studies, Hobson Memorial Union, Bemidji State University, 1500 Birchmont Drive NE, Bemidji, MN 56601-2699, (218) 755-2766, or patr@bemidjistate.edu.

Horsemanship Clinics at UMC

The University of Minnesota, Crookston is offering a series of clinics for area 4-H participants and equine enthusiasts. Beginning in November, UMC students, faculty and staff, along with area professionals, will provide instruction and demonstrations on a variety of topics including safety, ground driving, hunt seat equitation, western horsemanship and dressage.

Participants are encouraged to bring their horses and ride in UMC's heated indoor arena. Riding opportunities are limited to the first 20 4-H participants to register. Non-riding 4-H and general public participants are encouraged to come without a horse and enjoy the informative lectures and demonstrations.

All sessions will be held at UMC University Teaching and Outreach Center. Pre-registration is required for all riding participants. Registration fees are $20 per session or $50 to attend all four sessions. Non-riding participants may audit the clinics for $5 per session and register at the door.

Riding participants will be divided into two groups based on riding experience. Beginning riders are those in the third grade and up with limited riding experience. Advanced riders are those in the seventh grade and up who are comfortable and confident looping while in control of the horse or demonstrate proven performance experience. One parent is required to be in attendance for each riding participant and may attend the session free of charge.

The 4-H horsemanship clinics are scheduled for the first Saturday in November, December, February and March as follows:

November 3 - Safety, ground driving and driving;

December 1 - Hunt seat equitation and jumping;

February 2 - Western horsemanship, show management and a reigning demonstration;

March 2 - Dressage demonstration.

For more information, or to register, contact the UMC Center for Adult Learning at (218) 281-8681 or www.crk.umn.edu/cal/profworked or email steer003@mail.crk.umn.edu.

National Fire Prevention Week October 7-13

In the year 2000, 51 Minnesotans died in fires. Statistically, a Minnesota fire department responded to an alarm every four minutes.

Thus far in 2001, 28 people have died in fire, ten of them were children under 12. The numbers are alarming, but there are effective steps we can take to reduce fire dangers. National Fire Prevention Week, October 7-13, gives Americans a special time to think and plan to avoid the dangers related to fire.

Each year, the National Fire Protection Association sponsors the event, and develops a theme to assist fire departments in getting important safety messages to the public. This year's theme is "Cover the bases and strike out fire," with a logo depicting a baseball diamond shape with four major safety targets representing cooking safety, heating safety, electrical safety, and home escape planning.

To cover all the bases, the Minnesota State Fire Marshall's Division suggests the following tips.

Practice safe cooking behaviors Wear snug-fitting clothing when cooking, and make use of oven-mitts and pan holders. Keep the stove free of grease buildup, and don't leave it unattended while cooking. Smother a pan fire with a lid, and do not use water on a grease fire.

To heat a home safely check to see if space heaters are UL-listed, wiring is adequate for its current load, and all combustible items are kept at least three feet from the heater. A fireplace chimney should be clean, and its flue and damper in good working order. The fire screen should be in place to prevent flying sparks, and only dry, seasoned wood is safe to burn. Wood stove users should check the chimney, damper, and pipes for leaks, and be sure it sits on a fire-resistant base. Furnaces and and other gas appliances should be checked annually. Carbon monoxide cannot be seen, smelled or tasted, but it can kill in less than three minutes.

Installing a residential sprinkler system will lower insurance rates, raise life expectancy, and be surprisingly inexpensive.

Planning for awareness and escape in the event of a fire is also essential. A working smoke detector on every level of your home doubles your chances of surviving a fire, but detectors must be maintained. Check the test button monthly and replace the batteries twice a year.

Along with planning family fire escape routes, children should be taught safety behaviors. These include feeling a door for heat before opening it, and crawling beneath accumulated smoke.

Fire Prevention Week has its roots in the Great Chicago Fire of October 9, 1891, when more than 250 people died in a blaze that left 100,00 people homeless and destroyed more than 17,400 structure. In 1922, President Warren Harding made it official.

Bemidji Women of Today to host benefit concert

In a local effort to fund domestic violence awareness and prevention programs and support direct service, the Bemidji Area Women of Today will sponsor a benefit concert on Saturday, October 20.

The concert will feature The Jayhawks, a nationally-know country rock band, performing at the Forste By Theatre.

Donations received will receive thanks and mention in the concert program, and any company giving $200 or more will receive mention as a Gold Team sponsor. Donations can be sent to Bemidji Area Women of Today, P.O. Box 61, Bemidji, MN 56619.

The organization is also asking people to become aware of thisissue in the community and contact the police should one hear a violent fight in your neighborhood. Also, it encourages citizens to be aware of how children are doing and help families by demonstrating respect for women at every opportunity.

Domestic violence is the number one cause of emergency room visits by women. Each year, 4 million American women are assaulted by their partners, and every day, husbands or boyfriends murder four women.

Domestic violence affects us all sooner or later, and the amount spent to shelter animals is three times greater than the amount spent to provide emergency shelter to women from violent situations. Any downturn in the economy brings with it more domestic violence. A plight not restricted by race or class, domestic violence is a human problem that the Bemidji Area Women of Today feels must be acknowledged and eradicated.

Gospel Team to appear at Viking church October 14

Gloryland Gospel Team of Gully will present a program of gospel music and message on Sunday, October 14, at 3 p.m. at the Viking Covenant Church.

The team includes Rev. Gary and Lais Johnson and Rev. Oavid and Brenda Johnson and their families. They have been ministering since 1969 and have enjoyed a wide range of experiences.

The team's easy listening-style music includes original compositions as well as the more familiar gospel songs and hymns of the church. Accompaniment includes an electric guitar, pedal steel guitar, bass guitar, omni-chord and drums.

The public is welcome to attend. A freewill offering will be received.

Area athletes compete in Twin Cities Marathon

Several area athletes participated in the Twin Cities Marathon on Sunday, October 7. Cool temperatures at the start hindered performances of many of the runners.

Though remarkable because of his age, the overall winner this year, Joshua Kipkemboi, 41, Mass., finished the course in 2:14:07, which is considered relatively slow. Last year's winner, Sergey Fedotov, Russia, finished behind Kipkemboi in a time of 2:14:13.

The overall women's runner, Zinaida Semenova, 36, Russia, finished in a relatively quick 2:26:51, which shattered the course record.

There were several outstanding or notable aspects of this year's marathon. The Twin Cities Marathon, for example, donated $1 for every entry in the marathon, 10-mile, 5-kilometer and children's events, to the Twin Towers Fund, which assists families of New York City fire, police and other emergency personnel who lost their lives or were injured during the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11. About $14,000 was donated to the cause

Another notable event this year was led by Keith Brantly. Brantly, 39-year-old Florida, former top-ranked U.S. marathoner, raised a large amount of money for charity. At the pre-race marathon dinner, Brantly explained that after the U.S. Olympic trials he had set aside his racing, but after several months he decided he needed to get back in to the sport, but needed some extra motivation to do so. He approached General Nutrition Centers and they agreed to help him. The agreement they reached, however, requires Brantly to start each marathon race at the very back; and, for every person he passes General Nutrition Centers donates $1 to the charity of his choice. Sunday, Brantly finished the Twin Cities Marathon in a time of 2:56:44, passing 6,396 runners. Brantly chose Bolder Options, Second Harvest Food Bank, the Twin Cities Marathon scholarship program, and the National Attention Deficit Disorder Association, as recipients of the donation.

Local and area athletes participating in this year's Twin Cities Marathon included:

Pat Brickson, 32, Thief River Falls, 3:43:24; Oe Larson, 57, Thief River Falls, 4:52:37; Jan Puttbrese, 45, Thief River Falls, 4:32:39; Oave Hill, 41, 3:13:36; Brad Cota, 25, (formerly Thief River Falls) Grand Forks, N.O., 3:53:10; Tom Ronchetti, 48, (formerly Thief River Falls) Aurora, 4:09.40, Aaron Tofte, 30, (formerly Thief River Falls) Maple Grove, 4:38:45; Perry Coma, 29, Roseau, 3:44:09; Joseph Corser, 44, Bagley, 5:07:09; Laura Corser, 20, Bagley, 5:07:09; Lynn Erikson, 32, Warroad, 4:11:48; George Marvin, 51, Warroad, 4:12:47; and Mary Marvin, 51, Warroad, 4:02:49.

A total of 8,500 people registered for the event, but 6,589 started on the day of the race and 6,356 finished.

Sons of Norway Snorre Lodge 070 meets October 17

Sons of Norway Snorre Lodge 070 will meet at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, October 17, at Dee's Kitchen in Thief River Falls.

Members will enjoy a free Swiss steak supper. For reservations, call Colleen Holen at 581-6984 by October 12.

Our Saviour's church to host Bible conference

Our Saviour's Lutheran Church will host a Bible Conference October 14-17 with services beginning each evening at 7 p.m.

The theme for the conference will be "Back to the Basics of the Christian Life" with area pastors addressing the Biblical beliefs necessary for true and living faith.

Speakers will include Rev. Bruce Oalager of Grand Forks on Sunday, October 14, "Why Are the Ten Commandments (The Law) Necessary?;" Rev. Phil Rokke of Newfolden on Monday, October 15, "Why is the Gospel of Jesus Christ Necessary?;" Rev. Ken Hart of Greenbush on Tuesday, October 16, "Why is the Assurance of Salvation Necessary?;" and Rev. Many Horn of Fosston on Wednesday, October 17, "Why is Commitment to the Lard (Sanctification) Necessary?"

Everyone is welcome to attend. For more information contact Rev. Terry Olson at 681-4643 or 681-0309.

Wiskows to celebrate 50 years of marriage Oct. 21

An open house celebrating the 50th wedding anniversary of Arnold and Eunice Wiskow will be held on Sunday, October 21, from 2 to 5 p.m. at Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

The event for family and friends will be hosted by the couple's family. No gifts please.

Amanda Nygaard to celebrate 90th birthday Oct. 26

Former Thief River Falls resident Amanda Nygaard will celebrate her 90th birthday on October 26.

She was born in Stephen to Sophie and Mikal Arneson and moved to Thief River Falls with her family when she was a young child. Her father owned Thief River Steam Laundry on 4th Street.

Amanda is suffering from Alzheimer's disease and is now living with her son and daughter-in-law, Wayne and Patti Nygaard, in Quartz Hill, Calif. Anyone wishing to send birthday greetings may send them to Amanda Nygaard, 5215 West Ave. M-4, Quartz Hill, CA 93536.

NCTC volleyball team has state spot on line

Northland will be looking to clinch a berth in the 2001 Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament tonight (Wednesday) when the Pioneers face Itasca in a 6:30 p.m. match at Grand Rapids.

Top four regular season finishers in the Northern and Southern Division standings earn MCCC tournament spots. A win over the Vikings would guarantee the Pioneers of at least a fourth place finish in the North.

Northland is coming off a weekend that not only produced three home court wins, but also some of the Pioneers' best volleyball of the season, according to head coach Mike Zachow.

In a Friday triangular, Northland beat Vermilion 28-30, 30-25, 30-22, 30-14 in a Northern Division-counting match and swept a Canadian foe, Providence College of Manitoba, 30-25, 30-26.

Saturday, the Pioneers rolled to a 30-21, 30-23, 30-26 MCCC victory over Mesabi Range.

"We started off a little slow, again, against Vermilion," explained Zachow, "but after that, we were pretty dominant the rest of the weekend."

Christel Berube registered 19 kills and 6 blocks to lead the Pioneers past Vermilion. The stat sheet, pointed out Zachow, did not show an error on the part of the freshman from Fisher – a remarkable feat for a hitter who is afforded so many opportunities in the middle of the Pioneers' offense.

It was a spread-the-wealth showing in a solid team effort vs. Providence, noted Zachow.

Becky Bray, a Northland freshman from Thief River Falls, had a 15-kill afternoon against Mesabi Range. Amanda Spong, a sophomore from Dklee, added 9 kills to the Pioneers' attack against a team that beat them 3-1 earlier this year at Virginia.

"We most definitely played our best match of the year," said Zachow after the Saturday victory. "We were pretty impressive. Mesabi is a good team, and we dominated. It was fun to watch."

Vermilion beat Providence 30-28, 30-14 in the other portion of the Friday triangular.

Northland is 13-7 overall and 7-4 in the Northern Division.

The Pioneers will be be part of the Providence College Invitational Saturday in Dtterburn, Man. They finish the regular season at home Monday vs. Fergus Falls and Wednesday against Central Lakes.

■ Friday, Oct. 5 - Thief River Falls 26, Proctor 8, Duluth East 14, Duluth Central 13, Duluth Denfeld 29, Grand Rapids 26; Cloquet 30, Hibbing 21.

Final Thief River Falls regular season high school football home game Friday will feature first-time Super Sea Range Conference foe Cloquet as the Prowlers' 2001 homecoming opponent. Kickoff at the Multi-Events Center is set for 6 p.m.

The Prowlers kept their share of the league lead Friday with a 28-8 win at Proctor that put them at 4-1 in the Super Sea Range standings and bumped their overall record to 4-2.

Jon Swanson carried the ball 11 times for 165 yards and two second half touchdowns as the Prowlers shook off the pesky Rails over the final 24 minutes after owning just a 7-6 halftime lead.

"We weren't very sharp in the first half," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm, who watched the Prowlers fumble four times in the first two quarters. "We had some opportunities to score some points, but we didn't take advantage of the situations."

Trent Christensen and Aric Berg opened and closed the scoring for the winners, and Stephan Hahn was 4-for-4 in the extra-point department.

Travis Dlson did the Proctor scoring with a 2-yard second quarter run and a fourth quarter safety when he tackled Swanson in the end zone.

Proctor took the second half kickoff and ran nearly 10 minutes off the clock before stalling just shy of the Prowlers' end zone.

"They marched the ball on us, but we kept them out of the end zone," pointed out Mumm. "That was a huge goal line stand."

The safety followed, but the Prowlers answered with a touchdown drive and controlled play the rest of the way.

"I was a little concerned when they got the safety and made it 14-8," acknowledged Mumm. "I thought the momentum was swinging toward them. But when we had to step up and make the plays, our kids came through."

Thief River Falls finished with a 403-217 advantage in total offense. And the one touchdown allowed the Rails followed a 40-0 shutout the Prowlers registered a week earlier at home against Duluth Central.

It was the fourth straight win after two season-opening losses for the Prowlers, who will close out their regular season schedule with a Wednesday, Oct. 17, trip to Hibbing

Wolverines' serving fails them in defeat at hands of Roseau

Serving, it was stressed by Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Jean Schulz last week, has one of the Wolverines' strong points throughout the 2001 high school volleyball season. Consistent, accurate serving helped get the offense started. Until Monday, that is, when the serving fell apart in a 3-0 loss at the hands of Roseau at Goodridge.

"We missed way too many serves," reported Schulz after the 15-4, 15-6, 15-5 setback. "We hit the net or served them out of bounds. I don't understand it. Our serving has been good all year."

The loss dropped the Wolverines to 14-9 for the year.

An invitation to a media tour for the new Ralph Engelstad Arena at the University of North Dakota allowed Mike Lundgren of The Times an opportunity to visit parts of the $100 million Grand Forks facility not open to the general public during Oct. 3-6 grand opening ceremonies – like the large, eye-opening state-of-the-art weight room. Las Vegas businessman Ralph Engelstad, a Thief River Falls native and UND graduate, financed and coordinated the project.

Pioneers' rally vs. Cards sets up VCC game

Northland's quest for a second straight Northern Division football title faces another challenge Thursday when the Pioneers play Vermilion in a 7 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference game at Ely. Both teams are 2-0 in division play.

The Pioneers overcame a major hurdle to maintain its pennant hopes by scoring 20 unanswered fourth quarter points to complete a game-long comeback in a 41-31 Thursday win at Hibbing.

Northland fell behind 21-0 and still trailed 31-21 through three quarters before the rally kicked in.

A 13-yard Jeremy Cost touchdown pass to Brian Harris started the final period comeback, cutting the difference to 31-27.

Northland went ahead for the first time, 34-31, on a 15-yard Maurice Johnson run and a Steve Crummy conversion kick with 4:54 remaining.

Just 1:18 later, after the Pioneers held the Cardinals on downs and forced a punt, Johnson broke away on a 50-yard scoring play to seal the decision.

Johnson finished the night with 228 yards on 29 carries, boosting the 5-10, 195-pound freshman from Chicago over the 1,000-yard mark for the year.

Cost was a major player, too, with 215 yards of total offense. He carried the ball 19 times for 105 yards and was 8-for-19 passing for 110 yards and four touchdowns. Harris did his part by catching three of those touchdown passes.

"We made some mistakes in the first half," explained Northland coach Guy Finstrom. "We just had to come out in the second half and correct them."

It was the second time in two Northern Division starts the Pioneers won in nail-biting fashion. They got by Mesabi Range 26-21 a week earlier.

Even though they still trailed Vermilion 28-14 at halftime, the Pioneers gained a shot of confidence when Cost and Crummy hooked up on a 7-yard pass to close out the second quarter scoring.

"I knew we could come back when we scored on the end of the half," said Finstrom. "The kids are playing with a lot of confidence. They believe in themselves."

A 382-yard Northland ground game took off in the second half.

"I knew we were doing the right things in the first half," said Finstrom. "We just had to do it better in the second half. We ran some mis-direction, and got some yards."

Opening holes for Johnson & Co. were seven offensive linemen who earned post-game credit from Finstrom: Matt Myers, a 6-8, 350-pound freshman from Thief River Falls; Jeremy Lian, a 5-8, 225-pound freshman from Thief River Falls; Scott Galifus, a 6-2, 250-pound sophomore from Rolla, N.D.; Josh Moulds, a 6-1, 225-pound freshman from Fisher; Tyler Knutson, a 6-1, 280-pound sophomore from Newfolden; Jade Gores, a 5-8, 210-pound sophomore from Rock Lake, N.D.; and Joey Johnson, a 6-3, 200-pound freshman from Warroad.

Finstrom was also quick to cite the Pioneers' defense that limited Hibbing to just a second half field goal.

"Hibbing has a good football team," noted Finstrom. "They have some very good kids in skill positions. We did a great job giving up just three points in the second half. It was a strong team effort."

The Cardinals' Tosconni Minton rushed for 178 yards, with 152 of those coming in the first half.

Northland is 3-3 overall.

A serve reception by Thief River Falls' Kelly Bendickson (19) draw the attention of teammates Lindsey Swanson (left) and Kayla Loe (17) during a high school volleyball match against Moorhead. The Prowlers' final two matches of the 2001 regular season schedule will be played in the Lincoln High School gym Thursday against Fosston and Tuesday vs. Roseau.

Fosston, Roseau will close out TRF home schedule

Home matches against Fosston Thursday and Roseau Tuesday will close out the 2001 Thief River Falls regular season high school volleyball schedule.

The Prowlers fell to 5-16-1 following a 15-8, 15-3, 15-3 Thursday loss at the hands of Detroit Lakes.

"We started out doing well," explained Thief River Falls co-head coach Erika Jensen. "The girls were playing well, and we really excited. But all of a sudden, it dropped off. I don't know what happened. We asked the players, and they didn't know, either. We just couldn't do anything after that first game."

Cross country team runs at Duluth

Chad Persons knew what the Prowlers were getting into when the Thief River Falls cross country coach elected to have his runners make their first appearance in the Duluth Swain Invitational Saturday – one of the top high school meets in Minnesota. Expectations weren't high, but the experience was worth the effort, according to Persons.

"By times and places, our varsity runners did not fair well," acknowledged Persons, "but in the big picture, the Swain was by far the most unique race our kids have run. Over 2,000 students raced, and many times there were 200 competing at the same time."

Competition was held in Class A and Class AA.

Running in Class AA, the Thief River Falls boys finished 27th in a field of 29 teams, and the Thief River Falls girls trailed a 22-team field.

Brian Newton and Nate Browning led the Thief River Falls boys by running 93rd and 112th, respectively, in a 201-runner race. "They did a great job," noted Persons. "I would have liked to have seen our third and fourth guys come through a little closer to those guys."

Janae Harlow was the Prowlers' top finisher for the girls with a 142nd place run in a 168-runner race.

Younger runners provided a highlight for the Prowlers' program, pointed out Persons, when Jeremy Sich placed third and Evan Jones ran seventh, respectively, in a 168-runner boys junior high race. "They ran phenomenal races," said Persons. "They were second and third with a half-mile to go. They definitely showed their talents."

Win-E-Mac holds off RLCC comeback

Win-E-Mac dominated at the start and hung on at the end en route to a 3-2 Thursday high school volleyball win over Red Lake County Central.

The host Patriots won 15-0, 16-18, 8-15, 15-8, 15-12.

"We couldn't do anything right the first game," explained Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "We picked up our play after that. We finally got going on offense."

But four missed serves wound up costing the Mustangs in Game 5.

Brittany Berberich recorded 23 kills and Michelle Halvorson had 10 to lead the Red Lake County Central attack. Maureen Munt collected 15 assists, with Halvorson picking up 12.

Nordics winning close games for 5-1 season mark

A mark of a good team is the ability to win the close games, and Marshall County Central has done just that during the 2001 high school football season en route to a 5-1 record.

Thursday, the Nordics followed script with an 18-14 victory over East Grand Forks Sacred Heart. The previous week featured a 35-34 nail-biter against North Star. Before that were down-to-the-wire wins vs. Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 34-30 and Sacred Heart 22-16 in the season opener.

Louis Peterson scored all three Marshall County Central touchdowns to complete the home-and-home sweep of the Eagles. He reached the end zone on a 56-yard run and on passes from quarterback Adam Reisen that covered 75 and 37 yards.

The win wasn't secured until linebacker Josh Larson came up with an interception at the Nordics' 10-yard line with 10 seconds remaining.

"We came out kind of flat," said Marshall County Central coach Scott Parker. "Playing a Thursday game took us out of our routine."

The Nordics made it hard on themselves, pointed out Parker, with three fumbles that put an abrupt end to promising drives. "We did some real nice things, but we need to eliminate the mistakes – the fumbles," he said.

Early season success by Marshall County Central fullback Jake Anderson has opened the door for Peterson, and the junior halfback has taken advantage of the opportunity. Thursday he accounted for 299 yards of offense by rushing for 139 yards and catching three passes for 160 yards.

"It's hard for teams to defend both of them," explained Parker. "If they key on our power game (Anderson), that opens up the outside (Peterson)."

The Nordics finished with 232 yards on the ground. Reisen didn't throw often, but he was effective by picking up the 160 yards on a 3-for-6 night passing.

Sacred Heart wound up with 192 yards rushing and 134 passing (10-for-27).

On defense, Parker said Larson, Joey Hogberg and Pat Brons all had big games for the winners.

Thief River Falls will not compete Saturday as originally planned in the University of North Dakota Invitational girls high school swim meet.

The Prowlers will be at the Pirate Invitational Tuesday in Crookston.

Mustangs win title at own invitational

A second Red Lake County Central vs. Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke championship match showdown ended with another title for the Mustangs Saturday at the Red Lake County Central Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

This time, the Wolverines outlasted the Wolverines 14-16, 15-12, 15-12.

Two weeks earlier the same two teams reached the finals of the Thief River Falls Northern Lites Invitational, where Red Lake County Central prevailed 2-0.

"It was a good match," said Mustangs coach Nancy Bray after the second title-winning victory over the Wolverines. "We had a good day. Our serving was better than it was Thursday (a 3-2 Red Lake County Central loss to Win-E-Mac), and we hit the ball. We played our game."

In the round-robin pool play portion of the tournament, Red Lake County Central beat Mahnomen, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart and Clearbrook-Gonvick in matches played at Plummer. Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke defeated East Grand Forks and Red Lake Falls, while losing to Climax/Fisher, in matches played at Oklee.

The four wins boosted the Mustangs' season record to 16-4. It was their third tournament and third tournament final of the 2001 season – they were runner-up to Dilworth-Glyndon-Felton at the Ada-Borup Invitational.

It was also the third trophy-winning tournament performance of the fall for the Wolverines, who were the consolation champions at the Marshall County Central Invitational.

Blue Devils beaten by Wolfpack 32-12

According to the scoreboard, Kittson Central is three touchdowns better than Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke this fall. The Wolfpack, after beating the Blue Devils 32-12 in the 2001 high school football season opener back on Aug. 31, completed a two-game sweep over the Top of the Conference rivals Thursday, 27-8.

There was some early success for the Blue Devils thanks to a 1-yard Cory Ostby first quarter run and a 31-yard Ostby pass to Elroy Johnsrud on a second quarter halfback option.

But the Wolfpack used a pair of big plays – touchdown runs of 59 yards by Teal Plaine and 61 yards by David Ogorek – to turn a slim 13-12 halftime edge into a 25-12 third quarter difference.

"We held our own in the first half," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach John Wilebski. "He played them head-to-head. But we gave up a couple of big runs right after the half, and that just took us out of it. When you fall behind like that, it changes your offensively philosophy. With Cory, we grind it out. It takes a long time for us to march down the field. They can score a lot faster than we can."

Ostby finished with 113 yards on 31 carries.

Wilebski said the play of Joe Robischko, Casey Jones and Matt Rindahl in the defensive line kept the Blue Devils close until the third quarter Wolfpack breakaways.

"We gave up three big plays, otherwise it was pretty much a stalemate," said Wilebski, who watched his team drop to 0-6 heading into a Tuesday match-up with unbeaten Stephen-Argyle. The Blue Devils lost to the Storm earlier this year 52-24.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke will close out the regular season with a Monday, Oct. 15, rematch against Marshall County Central at Newfolden.

Ulen-Hitterdal passes Red Lake Co. Central

■ Passing nets all seven touchdowns

Passes accounted for all seven touchdowns Friday in a 32-14 Ulen-Hitterdal high school football win over visiting Red Lake County Central.

The first five scores came from the Spartans on passes that covered 23, 34, 20, 57, and 11 yards as they turned an 18-0 halftime lead into a 32-0 fourth quarter spread. Four of those passes were thrown by Kirby Jacobson. Three were caught by Jordan Grafsgaard

Red Lake County Central came back with final period touchdowns from Carl Dugstad to Nick Vettleson (73 yards) and Doug Melby (28 yards).

The loss dropped the Mustangs to 2-4.

While Red Lake County Central picked up 218 yards on 13-for-29 passing, the visitors netted just 61 yards on 28 running plays.

"They have a nice ball club," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "Offensively we struggled. We had a very difficult time getting a running game going. They're a tough team to run against."

Mitch Rystad's 35 yards on 13 carries led the Red Lake County Central runners. Dugstad did most of the passing, with a 12-for-28 game that produced 207 yards and two touchdowns. Ryan Paradis caught 6 passes for 89 yards, while Adam Koralewski caught 3 passes for 16 yards and Melby grabbed 2 for 31 yards.

On defense, Koralewski had 11 tackles, Thor Vettleson 9, Melby 8, Dugstad 6, and Wade Longtin 6.

Red Lake County Central will play at Waubun Friday, then close out the 2001 regular season schedule with a Tuesday, Oct. 16, game against Win-E-Mac at Oklee.

B/G-MR falls to Bears, Rams in back-to-back 3-0 volleyball matches

It was a tough draw for Badger/Greenbush-Middle River back-to-back Oct. 2/4 matches against Lake of the Woods and Roseau, arguably the strongest teams on the Gators' 2001 high school volleyball schedule. The Bears and Rams both won 3-0.

A 15-3, 15-4, 15-8 Lake of the Woods Tuesday victory was followed by a 15-6, 15-1, 15-8 Roseau Thursday sweep.

"Their hitters were too much for us," said Gators coach Christine Adrian, looking back at the loss to the Bears. "We were never able to get anything going offensively."

The Gators' level of play picked up against the Rams, although they still had trouble collecting points. "The scores might not show it, but we actually played a lot better against Roseau than we did against Lake of the Woods," said Adrian. "There were stretches where we played with them. Defensively, we did okay. Their top two hitters only got 12 kills against us."

One of the few offensive highlights for the Gators in the two matches, according to Adrian, came from Katie Borgen, who had 4 service aces against Roseau.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River fell to 3-13 with the losses.

Deer, elk preserve hunts illegal across Minnesota

It looked too good to be true. Rather than make a trip to a western state, an Internet Web site promised Minnesota hunters easy-to-find big game animals in their own back yard. Not only is it too good to be true, it is illegal.

Minnesota is among several states in which it is illegal to shoot deer or elk, also called cervidae, in fenced preserves. An estimated 32 states allow some sort of big-game shooting preserves.

Despite their popularity, however, the preserves are in trouble. The federal government has threatened to shut down preserves throughout the Midwest because they operate on land enrolled in a conservation program that pays farmers to plant their fields in native grasses instead of crops.

Farmers pocket $20 to $70 an acre for planting grasses. It's illegal for them to seek further profit by turning those fields into preserves and charging hunters to tramp through the very grasses the government is paying them to conserve.

Minnesota elk producers have unsuccessfully pursued changing the hunting preserve law in recent years. They say the hunts provide an option for people who don't want to make a trip west to hunt wild elk. Producers also say it would provide another source of revenue in rural areas hungry for new revenue.

Minnesota statute states that "farmed cervidae" raised for producing fiber, meat or animal by-products, raised as pets, or used as breeding stock are considered livestock and not wild animals for the purpose of game farm, hunting, or wildlife laws. Minnesota law only designates certain bird species as available for shooting within such preserves.

"That means hunting elk, caribou and deer on licensed game farms or shooting preserves is prohibited," said Lt. Jim Dunn, DNR Enforcement Division supervisor in Baudette. "The concept of game farms goes against the heritage and tradition of public game hunting in this state."

Critics also say shooting a big-game animal within a fenced area runs counter to the ethic of fair chase held by many hunters.

The DNR has other concerns as well, including diseases being passed from domesticated animals to wild deer, the possibility that game farm operators would capture wild deer to supplement their herds, and the threat of large blocks of land being fenced off, separating native deer herds.

There are an estimated 520 captive white-tailed deer and elk herds in Minnesota.

"As the old saying goes 'If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is,'" Dunn said. "Hunting elk, caribou or deer within shooting preserves or game farms is against the law."

DNR lists regulations, seasons for whitefish, tullibee sport-netting

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced the 2001 dates for the start of the whitefish-tullibee sport-netting season.

As in past years, Schedule I lakes will be opened and closed on a 48-hour notice posted at lake accesses and other public places. These lakes are opened based on weather conditions that affect the vulnerability of game fish to accidental harvest and presence of whitefish or tullibees in shallow water. Upper Red Lake, Beltrami County, will not be opened to whitefish-tullibee netting in 2001.

Schedule II lakes will be opened and closed as follows: Schedule A lakes will be open from Friday, Oct. 12, through Sunday, Dec. 2; Schedule B lakes will be open from Friday, Nov. 2, through Sunday, Dec. 9; and Schedule C lakes will be open from Friday, Nov. 9, through Sunday, Dec. 9.

Individuals can obtain a copy of the 2001 whitefish-tullibee regulations by calling the DNR Information Center toll free 1-888-646-6367. Information is also available on the fishing page of the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us/fishing.html.

Minnesota DNR restricts burning permits in state

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources directed the state's fire wardens to discontinue issuing open burning permits as of Friday, Sept. 28, in anticipation of the strike by state employees.

Open burning permits previously issued by the DNR were suspended as of midnight Sunday, Sept. 30. Only special permits will be issued by the state after that time. Those permits must be obtained from an area DNR Forestry office.

Permits are still being issued by federal agencies. This includes lands administered by the U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and National Park Service, and American Indian lands.

According the Olin Phillips of the DNR Forestry Division, "We have adequate plans and resources in place to respond to wild fires, but burning restrictions are an appropriate precaution under these circumstances."

Variances to the burning restrictions may be applied for at DNR Forestry Division offices for commercial, agricultural or resource management burning projects for which the lack of a burning permit would create a hardship. Decisions regarding variances will be determined on an individual basis.

This restriction does not affect campfires or other activities that do not require a burning permit. However, this is still fire season in Minnesota; as always, the DNR urges caution.

New treaty harvest plan in place

Eight Chippewa Indian Bands in Minnesota and Wisconsin have developed and submitted to state officials a new draft five-year plan to guide their regulated taking of wildlife in the 1837 Treaty Ceded Territory of east-central Minnesota. The draft plan is currently under review by Minnesota Department of Natural Resources staff. The Bands have regulated their own wildlife harvests in the Minnesota portion of the 1837 Treaty Ceded Territory since 1997, when the first of a series of federal court decisions affirmed their treaty harvest rights in this area.

The federal courts did not allocate a specific percentage of the allowable harvest to the Bands. During the course of the litigation, the Bands prepared and adopted an initial wildlife harvest plan that set upper limits on their harvest of wildlife for the first five years of exercising treaty harvest rights (1997-2001).

The proposed new plan is intended to guide treaty harvest of wildlife in the ceded territory over the next five-year period from 2002 to 2006.

Band harvests of deer and other game species over the past four years have been very low compared to harvests by state-licensed hunters in the ceded territory. The state has generally not modified harvest plans due to harvest declarations by the Bands. Because of this, few changes are proposed in the new five-year plan. Most of the technical changes are directed at streamlining the plan to reduce staff time and paperwork on the part of the Bands and the state as long as treaty harvests do not exceed minimum threshold levels.

The DNR will complete its review of the wildlife proposals soon. The Bands have indicated an intent to finalize the proposed wildlife harvest plan by December. The state is also anticipating receiving a separate five-year plan this winter for Band fisheries harvests from 2003 to 2007, which will be reviewed separately.

Harvest Thresholds

Previously, the Bands declared maximum harvest quotas for all species with annual limits, including antlerless deer, black bear, wild turkey and registered furbearers such as river otter and bobcat. Band harvests of these species have been very low.

The Bands do not expect them to increase significantly in the next five years. Therefore, the new five-year plan proposes to eliminate annual declarations of treaty quotas, except for antlerless deer, unless a minimum threshold harvest level is reached the previous year.

Should Band harvest exceed the established threshold in a given year, the Bands will return to making a declaration of harvest for that species the following year.

Deer

The original five-year plan set a maximum total antlerless deer quota of 900 per year, with a provision to raise the maximum up to 10 percent in any year that the harvest the previous year exceeded 90 percent of the maximum total.

Band antlerless deer harvests for all Bands collectively over the past four years have averaged a total of about 125 per year. The Bands are not proposing any changes for deer harvest in the new draft plan. The maximum total remains at 900 and the Bands will continue to make annual declarations of treaty quota by permit area.

Black Bear

The original five-year plan set a maximum treaty quota of 10 bears in Quota Area 45 and 25 bears in Quota Area 51. In addition, the Bands made annual declarations of planned harvest quota by permit area, and the state prepared a management response describing whether or not state quotas would be adjusted.

The proposed plan uses the same numbers, but sets them as thresholds rather than quotas. As long as they are not exceeded, the Bands would not prepare annual declarations and the state would not prepare annual management responses. If they are exceeded, the following year the Bands would declare harvest intentions and the state would prepare a management response to adjust state quotas as necessary.

Moose

The original five-year plan allowed Band members to take up to five moose per year if moose were found in the ceded territory, except in the area of the Nemadji State Forest where moose were fully protected.

Because the 1837 Ceded Territory is outside the moose range, taking moose that wander south into this area has no conservation impact on Minnesota's moose population. At the time the original plan was developed, it was suspected that the area of the Nemadji State Forest might contain a small resident moose population. However, cooperative surveys by the state and the Bands since 1997 have failed to identify a resident moose population in that area.

Because of that, the new draft plan proposes to eliminate the tribal prohibition on taking moose in the Nemadji area.

Turkey, Furbearers

The original plan provided for annual Band quota declarations and annual state management responses to make any necessary adjustments in state quotas or harvests for these species. The proposed plan establishes minimum threshold harvest levels, but annual declarations and management responses would only be prepared for species and areas where the previous year's harvest exceeded the threshold.

In addition to the five-year wildlife plan, the court decision included a number of court-ordered stipulations and protocols to direct how the Bands and the state are to work together and address issues such as harvestable surplus determinations, special hunts, conflict resolution, and so on. In addition to the management plan revisions summarized above, the state and the Bands are also proposing a few procedural changes within the protocols, primarily related to adjusting dates for exchange of various information to more realistically reflect existing procedures and data availability. Additional proposed protocol changes would provide for early Band involvement in the planning of special deer hunts in the ceded territory and for changes in internal Band permitting procedures.

DNR unveils plan to improve waterfowl heritage...

Duck hunting gains attention

Department of Natural Resources has released the two-year action plan for restoring Minnesota's wetland and waterfowl hunting heritage. It directs the work of the DNR by specifying exactly what will be done, the DNR staff person responsible, and the expected completion date of an action. It also identifies and commits funding for completing each objective.

"This two-year action plan is what starts a much more concerted effort to address the problems identified in the long-range plan to restore Minnesota's wetland and waterfowl hunting heritage," said DNR Commissioner Allen Garber. "I, along with our partners and hunters, am committed to maintaining the values and traditions of waterfowl hunting in Minnesota."

Over the past several years, waterfowl hunting success in Minnesota has declined, despite increasing waterfowl numbers in North America. Wetland habitat quality has also deteriorated.

In cooperation with Ducks Unlimited, the Minnesota Waterfowl Association, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and other partners, the DNR has produced a plan for restoring Minnesota's waterfowl hunting heritage and improving wetlands. The goals of the plan are to improve and increase wetland habitat for waterfowl and other wildlife and to restore Minnesota's share of the Mississippi Flyway duck harvest.

The plan identifies three primary factors contributing to Minnesota's decreasing share of the Mississippi Flyway duck harvest:

■ A decline in the quality and quantity of fall migration habitat, mainly food such as wild rice, sago pondweed and aquatic insects.

■ Growing disturbances to migrating ducks in the fall, including increased boat traffic.

■ Lower production of Minnesota raised ducks.

"What it comes down to is that we need to improve food resources and resting areas," said Tim Bremicker, DNR Wildlife Division director. "For ducks to stay in an area, they need food and rest."

In general terms, the action plan commits the DNR to work with its partners - which include the organizations mentioned above plus tribal governments and other conservation groups - to do the following over the next 24 months:

■ Improve fall migration habitat and food resources by conducting temporary "draw-downs" (where possible) on shallow waterfowl lakes, increasing wild rice management, and buying and restoring wetlands.

■ Eliminate carp in shallow lakes to improve plant growth to attract ducks.

■ Reduce disturbances to migrating ducks (so they don't leave too quickly) by improving and enlarging refuge and resting areas.

■ Boost hunter satisfaction by providing more information and more hunting opportunities.

Bill Hartwig, regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, said, "Given the long-term decline of both the quantity and quality of waterfowl habitat throughout the breeding range, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is pleased to see the Minnesota DNR take on the challenge of reversing that trend."

Tom Landwehr, Minnesota conservation director for Ducks Unlimited, said that his group embraced the opportunity to help develop the plan to improve Minnesota waterfowl habitat. "We are really looking forward to working with the DNR and other partners on more ground-level habitat projects," he said.

Bremicker cautioned hunters and other waterfowl fans to "not expect miracles overnight." He pointed out that habitat improvements can take many years to yield improved food for waterfowl and that factors such as weather can thwart efforts to boost duck food production. "I think what we've outlined here is a great start for the first two years," Bremicker said.

Mike McGinty, executive director of the Minnesota Waterfowl Association, said that some of the work will be accomplished as part of the Restoring Minnesota's Fish and Wildlife Habitat Corridors Project, recently approved for funding by the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources. The MWA was key to pulling the LCMR project proposal together.

"This new two-year waterfowl action plan fits neatly with the habitat corridors project," McGinty said. "The way to improve waterfowling in Minnesota is through comprehensive habitat management, including both duck migration and production habitat."

INTRODUCING A TRULY EFFICIENT FURNACE
During these times of high energy costs, it makes sense to use a heat source that uses a cost effective and readily available heat source. The Cozy Cornburner heat furnace burns shelled corn. Corn costs less per BTU than other heat sources, plus generates business for farmers. The low cost of shelled corn together with the efficient burning process of these furnaces & boilers produces an economical, ecologically safe home heating system.
BURNS CLEAN - NO MORE CREOSOTE
The Cozy Cornburner furnace or boiler feeds corn into the bottom of the combustion chamber therefore providing the most efficient fuel consumption. The residual ashes (clinkers) are then spilled over the top of the combustion ring into the ash pan. In effect, this self-cleans the combustion chamber.
THE FIRST UL LISTED
The Cozy Cornburner furnace & boiler are the first shelled corn fired central furnaces to be listed by Underwriters Laboratories, assuring you of a safe and quality product. Using an auger drive to meter the fuel allows for precise control of combustion.
SAFE, COMFORTABLE HEAT
Your home's thermostat controls the fuel feed system to provide a constant temperature. The furnace or boiler will remain lit as long as the bin contains corn, and shuts down automatically if the fuel supply is depleted. The low stack temperature and absence of creosote buildup eliminates the possibility of chimney fire.
A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood heat. The large storage bin holds up to 10 days supply of fuel, which is fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace or boiler several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters and storage and handling problems connected with wood fuel.
QUALITY CONSTRUCTION
The Cozy Cornburner furnace and boiler feature quality construction for long lasting performance. A one year warranty is included on parts and a five year limited warranty on the burner and heat exchanger.

Motorists should watch for deer

Motorists should exercise extra caution while driving in Minnesota this fall to avoid colliding with deer, according to a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources official.

"The onset of cooler autumn weather and the increased pace of harvest activity have deer on the move in rural and suburban areas," said Col. Bill Bernhjelm, DNR Enforcement Division chief. "Motorists need to be very careful when driving near deer habitat and need to be on the lookout for deer on or near roads and highways."

Autumn months are prime time for deer-vehicle collisions in Minnesota. The number of accidents tend to increase during the deer breeding season or "rut," which peaks about mid-November.

Responding to their instinct to mate, deer become less cautious, more unpredictable and more likely to ignore vehicles on the road.

Among the suggestions to motorists to avoid deer-vehicle accidents:

■ Drivers should be especially cautious at dusk through the early evening hours and in the hours before sunrise, when deer are most active.

■ Motorists should reduce speed and be prepared to stop on roads where deer may be present.

■ Drivers should anticipate deer when driving in wooded areas, areas of dense vegetation or crop fields.

■ Drivers encountering deer on the roadway should try flashing their vehicle headlights from bright to dim and honking their horn to try to encourage the deer to move on.

■ Drivers who come upon deer should warn motorists behind them by tapping their brakes.

■ Most important, drivers should maintain control of the vehicles; swerving into oncoming traffic or off the road to avoid a deer can also result in serious injuries.

Should an accident occur, the first priority is to provide assistance to injured drivers or passengers, according to Bernhjelm. He said people should not try to remove a dead or injured deer from a busy roadway. They should contact state, county or local road authorities to remove the animal.

Minnesota law requires that all accidents resulting in property damage or personal injury of $1,000 or more be reported and an accident report be filed with the police.

"The most important thing drivers can do to avoid deer-vehicle mishaps is slow down," Bernhjelm said. "Chances are that if you see a deer, there are other deer nearby. Slowing down offers a better chance to see deer on or near the road, and more time to react."

Bernhjelm said many accidents occur in areas of natural deer habitat along waterways, fence rows, farm fields and wooded corridors. More than 20,000 deer-vehicle accidents are reported annually, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation. The DNR estimates that only one-third of the accidents are reported. Any Minnesota resident may claim the animal by contacting a law enforcement officer.

An authorization permit will be issued allowing the individual to lawfully possess the deer.

Wedding Celebration!

September 22, 2001 was the wedding date of Richard Leiser and Lea Saga. Rick is the son of Darrell and Veldonna Leiser of Fertile. His grandparents are the late Halvor and Esther Moe and the late Max and Cora Leiser. Lea is the daughter of Leland and Carol Saga of Fertile. Her grandparents are Ron and Dallas Paradis, Leland H. Saga, and the late Valora Saga.

The ceremony was held at the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception in Crookston with Msgr. Roger Grundhaus presiding, with the reception at the National Guard Armory. Wedding colors were plume and creme, including many beautiful fall and grape accents. The bridal party included Lacey Saga, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. Friends of the bride, Jessica Bak and Denise Rice were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was KayLee Saga, sister of the bride. Best man was Christopher Miller, groomsmen were Ryan Lindbom and Nathan Stuhaug, all friends of the groom. Junior groomsman was Ethan Paradis, cousin of the bride. Max Leiser, nephew of the groom was the ringbearer. Miniature bridal couple included Amanda Paradis and Blair Nelson, cousins of the bride. Despite the rainy weather and heightened security at the Armory, a good time was held by all.

The newlyweds will be residing in Natick, Massachusetts. Lea is a 1999 Fertile-Beltrami graduate, currently attending Regis College in Weston, Mass. She will graduate in May, 2002, with her degree in political science. Rick, also graduated from Fertile-Beltrami, in 1992. He graduated from UMC in 1996 with his degree in Agronomy/Agricultural Business. Rick currently is employed in sales with Suntech Efficiency Systems, Inc. of Canton, Mass. "Congratulations and best wishes to you, Rick and Lea!"
